RUSSIA INDICATES IT MIGHT GIVE ATOMIC HELP TO NON-RED NATIONS

Plans for Nuclear Aid for Communist China and Satellites Are Outlined as Geneva Conference Ends.

By WILLIAM SEXTON.

GENEVA, Aug. 20 (UP)—Russia today promised to give new atomic reactors and nuclear fuels to Red China and the satellite nations and said it would "consider" giving atomic help to some non-Communist countries.

The Soviets made the announcement at the final session of the United Nations atomic conference here.

Russian delegate A. N. Lavrishchev read a prepared statement detailing a nuclear aid program for Russia's Communist neighbors, including supplies of tritium, a radioactive isotope that in large quantities could be used in the hydrogen bomb.

Adds to Speech.

After reading his speech, which did not mention aid to non-Communist countries, Lavrishchev added:

"Russia is prepared to consider extension of the number of countries to which the U.S.S.R. could grant assistance."

Lavrishchev also departed from his text to announce Soviet backing of President Eisenhower's proposal last week that another atoms-for-peace conference be held.

The Soviet scientist said his country hopes "such conferences on the peaceful uses of atomic energy shall in the future be convened at regular intervals."

Lavrishchev said Russia's initial atomic aid program would include Red China, Poland, East Germany, Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary. Only tiny Albania was excluded among the satellite nations.

Biggest Reactor for China.

The biggest reactor, capable of producing up to 10,000 kilowatts, will go to Red China, the Soviet announcement said.

The report also disclosed for the first time the exact location of Soviet atomic plants, cyclotrons, accelerators and other installations for nuclear research. Locations were given as Leningrad, Kiev, Kharkov and Moscow.

At a news conference following the final session, chief Soviet delegate Prof. D. V. Skobeltzin said Russia's original atomic electric power station is located outside Moscow.

He also described installations at the research institute in Moscow and said there was a heavy water reactor at Moscow University.

Skobeltzin said Soviet scientists have been working to harness the hydrogen bomb for peace "for a number of years." He said he did not know "how soon we may possibly achieve practical results."

'Enormous Funds' Spent.

The Soviet Union said it had spent "enormous funds" on nuclear research but was giving its scientific data and experience to other countries "free of charge."

The announcement said the equipment and fuels going to the satellites will be delivered at "actual cost."

One Polish delegate said uranium from mines in the satellite countries is being used for part payment for the Soviet research reactors.

Shortly before Russia unveiled its atomic aid program for the Communist nations, the United States took a major step in fulfilling the peaceful nuclear aid program which Mr. Eisenhower first put before the world in 1953.

Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the United States Atomic Energy Commission, signed over to Switzerland for $180,000 the atomic reactor set up by American scientists as part of the United States exhibit here. It was the first reactor sold abroad under the United States plan to provide research reactors at half price.

Message From Bulganin.

Conference Chairman Homi J. Bhabha, in his closing statement, said the United Nations would try to carry on the atoms-for-peace movement initiated at this conference.

Bhabha read a message from Soviet Premier Bulganin.

"The exchange of views and information which has taken place at the conference represents a valuable contribution to further scientific and technical progress in this field," Bulganin's message said. "This conference will undoubtedly serve the cause of peace and make for a further relaxation of international tension."

Noise in Nautilus Worries Navy As Craft Sails for Combat Test

Nuclear Submarine Carries Gear to Find Source of Vibration That Might Make Vessel Easy to Detect.

By C. YATES McDANIEL

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP)—The world's first atomic-powered vessel, the Nautilus, will be ready for sea again next week to test its strength—and weaknesses—for first line combat duty.

The big submarine is scheduled to leave the builder's yards at Groton, Conn., on Friday loaded with additional gear installed to detect sources of difficulty that were brought out on a recent six-week shakedown cruise. That cruise, Navy men say, was about as rugged as any naval vessel has ever been put through.

The Nautilus has been in the yards for nearly three weeks while operating submarine men and engineers have gone over its hull and complex equipment with every trouble shooting device known to modern science.

The Nautilus, said Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas, has performed far beyond Navy expectations. It is now seven months since its skipper's historic message: "Under way on nuclear power." Then followed various tests, including the shakedown cruise.

It can travel under water at speeds in excess of 20 knots. It can also be disclosed that the Nautilus has successfully carried out mock torpedo attacks on Navy surface vessels, including at least one big and fast aircraft carrier.

But the Nautilus has yet to pass its big test as a first-line combat unit craft. This will come in a deadly serious game of run, seek, strike and hide against the most powerful anti-submarine forces and devices that the Navy can assemble.

The Navy has found no fault with the atomic power plant installed in the Nautilus, but submariners who have been aboard say the vessel makes too much noise and has developed a vibration in the hull that could reduce the enormous tactical advantage provided by the nuclear power plant.

Navy engineers say that there is no basic fault in design and that the vibration and other apparent difficulties are not surprising in view of the enormous power packed in the Nautilus and the terrific strains it has been subjected to.

The Nautilus has already traveled 18,000 miles, considerably more than half of that under water. Engineers say it already has gone at near-top power for more hours than many other Navy vessels could stand without some reconstruction.

Men who have traveled in the Nautilus complained that the interior noise was so great at times that they had to shout to be heard. Some engineers, checking the submarine after its shakedown cruise, figured that they had found and eliminated the cause of this racket by securely fastening compressed-air containers stored in a forward compartment.

Vibration and noise may be only a nuisance to a vehicle traveling on land, but to a submarine they can mean death and destruction because they can be detected by delicate instruments on surface vessels and aircraft pitted against the undersea boats.

The Navy seeks to find as many answers as possible in the continued testing of the Nautilus, because another nuclear-powered submarine, the Seawolf, is nearing completion, a third one has been started and five more are on the way.

NANTES, FRANCE, PATROLLED BY TROOPS AFTER RIOTING

NANTES, France, Aug. 20 (UP) — Soldiers and National Guardsmen patrolled the streets of Nantes today to keep peace during a strike of 13,000 shipworkers. One person has been killed and more than 300 wounded in riots in the last two days.

Government mediators stepped into the strike tonight and ordered representatives of the shipworkers and management to meet at Rennes, at the foot of the Brittany peninsula, tomorrow. The two unions representing the shipworkers and the managements officials had planned to meet Monday.

The shipyard metal and construction workers on strike are demanding a pay increase of about 25 per cent—about 11 cents an hour.

Heavy rains sent sudden floods surging into a number of villages.

Standing crops of sugar and rice suffered considerable damage.

REDS SAY PILOT OF PLANE THEY DOWNED IS ALIVE

No Mention of Other American on Craft—U.N. Demands Return of Both.

PANMUNJOM, Sunday, Aug. 21 (AP)—The Communists today said one of two Americans shot down by Red gunners Wednesday is alive.

They identified him as Air Force Second Lt. Guy Bumpas, Jackson, Miss., pilot of the small unarmed T-6 training plane which the U.N. command said was shot down by "trigger happy" Red gunners near the armistice line.

The Communists made no mention of the second American, Army Capt. Charles W. Brown, West Louisville, Ky.

Communist confirmation that the pilot was alive came at a joint Military Armistice Commission meeting at which the U.N. Command demanded the immediate return of the two men.

North Korean Maj. Gen. Jung Kook Rok, senior Red delegate, claimed in a statement that the pilot had denied he was on a routine training mission when shot down.

Jung accused Maj. Gen. Harlan C. Parks, the senior Allied delegate, of "attempting to deceive the world" by calling "this provocative and hostile act a routine training flight.

Jung also apparently tried to claim the pilot admitted he was north of the demarcation line when first fired upon.

The U.N. Command has said the plane "inadvertently intruded" across the southern border of the demilitarized zone but was fired upon before it crossed the demarcation line separating North and South Korea.

After it was hit by ground fire, the plane went out of control, the U.N. Command said, and crashed in Communist territory north of the line.

An informed source in Seoul said Saturday the Army captain was a military intelligence officer who was on the lookout for any buildup of South Korean forces along the front lines. The informant said this has been routine procedure since South Korean officials set up a clamor for retaking Red-held territory south of the thirty-eighth parallel.

At Kimpo air base yesterday, the Fifth Air Force said "it was not Communist artillery" which hit a C-47 plane Thursday while searching for the downed trainer. The announcement said the search plane "was flying in the vicinity of a friendly ground practice artillery military firing range . . . when it was hit." The plane returned to base safe.

MAYOR PUTS NEW WORKHOUSE HIGH ON LIST, HOPES FOR IT NEXT YEAR

Top Priority for $3,000,000 Bond Project Follows Series of Escapes —Warden Cites Lack of Guards.

Planning for a new City Workhouse was given top priority rating yesterday by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, and he expressed hope that it can be built next year. The new structure was among projects in a bond issue program authorized by voters last May.

The $110,693,000 program included $3,000,000 for a new workhouse, but until now it had not been assigned any priority.

Tucker joined Mrs. Edward G. Brungard, Director of Public Welfare, in deciding to put the Workhouse high on the list following a series of escapes from the institution, which is more than 100 years old.

Warden Harold E. Baynes, who took the job last May, has emphasized not only the inadequacies of the buildings but the staff as well. Guard towers have been left unmanned much of the time because of lack of guards.

As a result of the latest escape Thursday night when two men sawed their way out of a second-floor cell and went over a wall beside an empty tower, six additional guards were assigned to the Workhouse Friday night on an emergency basis by the city personnel department.

May Get More Funds.

Mrs. Brungard said yesterday she felt sure she could obtain additional funds through the Board of Estimate and Apportionment without delay, to provide enough guards on a permanent basis.

She said she expects to see Baynes early this week and obtain details of what additional help is needed to make the old institution as efficient as possible in its present state of obsolescence. Baynes has drafted a rough analysis of the personnel problem, but Mrs. Brungard said she would not go before the Board of Estimate until a finished plan is ready.

Mrs. Brungard explained that when the present Workhouse budget was presented there was no warden, and she had nothing but last year's budget as a guide in making her fund request to the money-allocating board. Members told her at the time, she said, that if those funds were not enough they would be glad to consider a request for more.

Mrs. Brungard said she would press for prosecution of escaped prisoners on escape charges—felony charges—on which they could be kept in City Jail rather than the Workhouse while awaiting trial. Well-behaved prisoners should not be penalized by stricter treatment necessary for those who try to escape, she said.

Seeking Suitable Site.

She has asked the City Plan Commission to look for a site for the new Workhouse, and also called for a study of modern penal structures so that planning of the building can be started.

The new Workhouse plan presented to voters in the bond issue election called for facilities for 500 inmates, with 100 single cells, dormitory quarters for 400, a chapel, library, mess hall, kitchen, warehouse, power house and shops.

The plan called for its location on not less than 50 acres, with plenty of land for truck farming.

Closer search of the old Workhouse was planned since an assortment of escape tools was discovered in a hurried shakedown after the latest escape. In addition to the saw used in the escape, Baynes and guards found two files, another saw, a steel rod about six inches long and a table knife sharpened to a point.

Escapees Recaptured.

The latest escapees had only a few hours of freedom. They were arrested Friday at Union City, Tenn., when they went past a stop light in a stolen automobile.

Baynes started the necessary legal steps to have them returned but he said he had not been told where the car was stolen. There was a possibility that they might be held at Union City on a federal charge of taking an auto across a state line.

They are Carl LeRoy Brown, who lived in the 2000 block of Farrell street, and Billie Joe Dean, of the 1100 block of South Ninth street. Brown was serving a one-year term for automobile theft, and Dean was serving a one-year sentence for larceny.

All guard towers at the Workhouse were manned Friday night and last night after six temporary employes were assigned there by the city personnel department. The tower overlooking the area where Brown and Dean went over a wall was not manned at the time.

Zoo Has Many Old-Timers, Including a Hippo That Is Camera-Shy After 36 Years in Public Life

ZOO DIRECTOR GEORGE P. VIERHELLER talking to Spike, an emu, the Zoo's "senior citizen," having been on display more than 37 years.

Steve, a camera shy hippopotamus, is senior mammal in the Zoo's collection. It came to Forest Park 36 years ago. Preparing to give hay to Steve is KEEPER WILLIAM C. ROST.

'Senior Citizen' Is Spike, an Emu, on Display for More Than 37 Years.

Birds and animals at the Zoo so far have been bypassed completely by the trend toward retirement plans. Consequently, a lot of old-timers still are on display.

A discernible mellowing in the disposition of Ida, a giraffe and a terror in her time, yesterday touched off a survey of the veterans by the Zoo staff.

They found, among other things, that even though Ida has been around for 20 years, she still would be considered a newcomer by many of the other animals—hardly eligible for any first-family circles.

But the Zoo's "senior citizen" could scarcely look down its nose at Ida. Ida is 16 feet tall. The senior citizen is an emu named Spike, which has been on display more than 37 years.

How many more could not be determined, because the bird—which somewhat resembles a bunch of hay—was already on hand when Zoo census records were started in 1918. But even with its long neck erect Spike stands only 4½ feet tall, so any nose-looking-down at Ida is strictly out of the question.

Steve, the camera-shy hippopotamus, has been at the Zoo longer than any other mamal, arriving 36 years ago at the tender age of 2. He came straight from Washington, D.C., where he was born at the National Zoological Garden.

Another 1919 arrival is a roseate cockatoo, which was the first purchase made by Zoo Director George P. Vierheller. The bird, a member of the parrot family, is reaching advanced years in the parrot world.

Two other notable old-timers in the bird division are a pair of white pelicans, which arrived in 1928. They weathered the stock market crash of 1929 and now are watched by children of children who looked at them in their early days.

Toughy, an alligator, holds seniority among the reptiles, having joined the Zoo collection in the mid-1920s. And one of the python snakes has been living there for 20 years.

There is not a single elephant among the old-timers, and Vierheller explained that elephants do not live as long as is popularly believed.

He would not venture any predictions as to how long the present "senior citizens" will continue to be on display.

One thing he was certain of, however. Not all animals mellow with age, as Ida seems to be doing. And for this reason the list of old timers was hastily revised yesterday.

The revision followed a rhinoceros-sized rumpus in the Elephant House, stirred up by—of all things—a rhinoceros. "Oh my!" Vierheller said, "Don't forget to include Harry. Been here since 1934 and he cost $8800."

Nobody could forget Harry. Not for long.

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

Ida, a giraffe, which has been at Zoo for 20 years, still steps gracefully, although advancing years cause her to rise slowly from resting position.

RECORD 12,137 AT PARK OPERA'S 'SOUTH PACIFIC'

A crowd of 12,137 persons jammed the Municipal Opera in Forest Park last night to see the Rodgers and Hammerstein hit, "South Pacific," breaking an attendance record set five years ago.

It was the same composer-lyricist team—Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II—who drew the previous record audience to the summer theater. A total of 12,123 witnessed a performance of the Rodgers and Hammerstein Musical Festival on the same date in 1950, Aug. 20.

A spokesman for the Municipal Opera said thousands of persons wishing to purchase tickets for last night's show were turned away. "South Pacific" will begin its second week tonight and the 1955 Municipal Opera season will end with its final performance next Sunday.

Only 50-cent and $1 seats remain. They will go on sale today at 9 a.m. at the box office in Forest Park.

ALTON FIRE STIRS MOVE TO LICENSE ROOMING HOUSES

City Engineer to Urge Provisions for Escapes and Other Safety Measures.

Alton city council will be asked to require licensing of all rooming houses, with special provisions for fire safety measures, as a result of Friday's fire in which four persons were killed, the Post-Dispatch was told yesterday.

"There is a definite need for constant inspection in the matter of safety," City Engineer Guy Fairchild said in announcing he would ask the council to pass a licensing ordinance.

He pointed out that Alton officials now have no authority to inspect private buildings used as rooming houses.

"We need regulations that can be enforced for fire escapes and other measures for safety in human occupancy," Fairchild states.

"The only way to accomplish this seems to be an ordinance that will provide for inspection as a means of effecting enforcement."

Building Regarded as Hazard.

Fire Chief James Lewis said the old, three-story brick building in which the four elderly persons died had "long been regarded as a fire hazard."

The upper two floors of the structure, at 306 West Broadway, were used as a rooming house. A welding shop occupied the first floor.

Chief Lewis said quarters of the approximately 30 roomers consisted of relatively tiny cubicles, which were partitioned from each other.

"The partitions on the second floor were capped by the fanning flames that extended between the tops of the partition and the ceiling," Lewis stated.

Trapped by Flash Fire.

Lewis described the blaze as a "flash fire," which swept through the upper floors, trapping Mr. and Mrs. Charles Irion, James Sievers and Mrs. Virginia Duncan. Their bodies were found by firemen.

Referring to the building, said to be more than 100 years old, Lewis said:

"We had only one other fire there in the last 10 years and fortunately we were called in time to get it out before the whole business went up in smoke."

Friday's blaze was the worst disaster of its kind in the records of Alton. No more than three persons died in previous fires.

The fire chief described those who had rooms in the building, in Alton west-end business district, as "transients, old-age pensioners and others seeking only a cheap, temporary place to sleep." The rent was $10 to $12 a month.

N. S. Wittels of Alton has owned the structure for about the last 40 years.

CITY COUNSELOR'S OFFICE UPHOLDS VIADUCT CONTRACT

The action of the Board of Public Service in awarding a contract for repair of the South Kingshighway viaduct to Western Waterproofing Co., Inc., without advertising for bids, was "entirely legal and proper," a spokesman for the city counselor's office told the Post-Dispatch yesterday.

Complaints have been voiced by several firms that bids should have been sought by the Public Service board on the $200,000 project which is to be paid for with bond issue funds. The city charter provides, however, that such contracts may be negotiated without bids, if the ordinance authorizing the work so prescribes. The ordinance in this case did.

President Frank J. McDevitt of the Board of Public Service explained that the contract for repairing the viaduct was negotiated because of the impossibility of preparing exact specifications and getting a good firm bid. The work consists of chipping away deteriorated concrete and replacing it with fresh concrete injected under pressure. Extent of the work cannot be determined in advance.

TUCKER LEAVES NEXT SUNDAY FOR TOUR OF WEST GERMANY

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker will leave by plane for Germany next Sunday on a month's tour sponsored by the West German government.

Others on the trip, part of an exchange program, will be Mayors Andrews Broaddus of Louisville, Ky.; Donald H. Mead of Syracuse, N.Y., and George M. Vermillion of Long Beach, Calif.; City Managers Carleton F. Sharpe of Hartford, Conn., and Ray W. Wilson of Phoenix, Ariz., and Patrick Healy Jr., executive director of the American Municipal Association.

Mayor Tucker said he might go on to Rome for a meeting of the International Congress of Local Authorities, from Sept. 26 to Oct. 1.

EMPLOYE KILLED IN ACCIDENT AT GRANITE CITY STEEL CO.

Guy Foster, 139 Bruce street, Collinsville, was killed yesterday in an accident at Granite City Steel Co., Granite City, where he was employed. He was 24 years old.

Foster was killed instantly when he was caught between a five-ton coil of sheet steel and an angle iron building support, a company spokesman said. The coil tumbled against Foster when it became disengaged prematurely from an electro-magnet by which it was being moved, the spokesman said. Foster is survived by his wife.

STREET LIGHTING IS INCREASED IN DOWNTOWN AREA

First Phase of City Project Completed—Work to Start Soon in Neighborhoods.

First phase of a program to increase candlepower of street lights on a city-wide basis has been completed in the downtown area, Mayor Raymond R. Tucker announced yesterday.

Work of increasing candlepower of lights in neighborhood areas will be started by the city's lighting division about Sept. 1. In these sections, lighting will be increased about 50 per cent.

In the first phase of the program, 2287 street lights were increased to 1000 candlepower in an area bounded by Fourth street, Twelfth boulevard, Market street and Franklin avenue.

Of this number, 1502 lights were increased from 400 candlepower and 785 from 600 candlepower.

Work is expected to be completed this week in making street lights brighter in a section bounded by Twelfth, Jefferson avenue, Market and Franklin. Candlepower already has been increased on some streets in the area.

The city is awaiting delivery of 70 lamps of 2500 candlepower to be installed on Twelfth, between Market and Washington, replacing 1500-candlepower bulbs.

In the interest of uniformity, 114 lights on Delmar boulevard, from Fourth to Twelfth, have been cut from 1500 to 1000 candlepower.

Funds for the brighter street lights are provided in this year's increased budget. In addition, the recent bond issue proposals approved by the voters for civic improvements included a $6,000,000 item for new street lighting.

The Board of Aldermen has authorized the letting of contracts amounting to $1,250,000 for street-lighting improvements as provided in the bond issue.

CAMP FLOOD SURVIVOR TELLS OF TRAGEDY

couldn't do anything but watch the water coming up toward us. It kept getting higher and higher.

"When it reached the attic floor we felt the house give a shudder and the whole house collapsed. It just fell apart, and the 20 of us went tumbling into a jumble of water, boards and screams.

"It was dark but I could hear the children screaming for help. I wanted to help them but I had all I could do to keep myself on an even keel.

"My God it was terrible—all those children (she wiped away tears, choked momentarily and then went on).

"It must be awful to drown. I went down, down, down and I guess I kept waving my arms trying to fight back to the surface. But I don't know what happened after that. All I know is that something must have hit me in the head and knocked me out.

"When I came to I was floating on top of the water and there was junk all around me.

"I grabbed a board, then gave it up for a bigger one. It seemed like hours passed before I finally found myself jammed between two logs.

"I Heard Beth."

"I couldn't see anything. It was so dark, but after a little bit I heard Beth (Beth Liddle, an 11-year-old girl who was at the bungalow camp with the Liddle family) calling for help. I could tell because her voice was so close.

"I realized when I reached out and touched her that we had both been cast up on a pile of debris that was tossed into a heap by the storm. It was like an island of twigs, small branches, cans and other things and the two of us were on it.

"By this time my eyes were accustomed to the darkness and I could see the water. It was so black and so terrible looking.

"Beth and I held on to each other and cried every time we heard a child somewhere in the distance crying for help. Some of them just screamed hysterically. And I could not tell if any of the voices belonged to my own children.

"You can't guess how it feels to sit there and wonder whether your own are going to live or die.

"Beth and I both wondered if we would live through the night but we didn't mention it to each other. We just prayed.

"When day broke we couldn't see anyone in the stream but at about 7 o'clock some men came along the shore and saw us.

"They went away at first but came back a few minutes later in a motorboat. They came back to where we were and took us to shore.

"Firemen took us to the hospital but it was hours before I found that Nancy (her own daughter) was safe.

"Oh God, if only I could have saved my boys."

Mrs. Johnson has been assured by East Stroudsburg hospital nurses that her sons might have been picked up and might be alive and well. They are not among the unidentified dead in any of the area funeral homes.

The children's father, Joseph Johnson, is employed as a checker for the Isthmian Steamship Co., Brooklyn.

Mrs. Johnson said her husband normally drove down to camp on weekends, arriving Friday night.

She said she supposed he had come down yesterday as usual but because of the breakdown in communications he has been unable to get in touch with her, or she with him.

This interview was obtained in the hospital within minutes after a Navy helicopter had flown me to East Stroudsburg.

Lt. Allen Bean of the Lakehurst (N.J.) naval air station and I flew from the athletic field of the Clearview school in Stroud township to the campus of the state teachers college adjoining the hospital.

We found doctors and nurses whose red-rimmed eyes showed the effect of nearly 40 hours' uninterrupted duty.

Al Malik, administrative assistant at the hospital, described the situation at the hospital caused by the sudden onslaught of Thursday night's floods.

He said that the electric power supply went out at 10:55 p.m., but the hospital's stand-by generator was put into use within a matter of minutes.

The dispensary was flooded with emergency cases, most of them suffering from exposure and shock.

Malik estimated that nearly 300 person had been treated that night and early Friday morning. He said the number of homeless in East Stroudsburg would run close to 1400.

141 KNOWN DEAD AND 80 MISSING IN FLOOD AREA

were 56 dead and around 70 others missing.

The worst single tragedy occurred at a small camp-cabin site on Broadhead creek, five miles north of Stroudsburg, where 40 women and children were trapped in a two-and-a-half story house which collapsed into the rushing water.

Only three persons are known to have survived after clinging all night to debris in the muddy currents. They were Mrs. Jennie Johnson, Jersey City, N. J.; her daughter, Nancy, 19 years old, and Beth Liddle, 11, home town undetermined.

14 Bodies Recovered

The bodies of 14 others were recovered as the waters receded. Six young girls left the camp site shortly before the flood and were found safe at a nearby Pine Brook Bible Conference camp. The entire camp site — known as Davis Camp, named after the owner, the Rev. Leon Davis of Manuet, N. J.— was covered with water.

The exact death count in Pennsylvania may not be known for days. Estimates by state police said it would run well over 100, perhaps up to 150.

Nearly 100 summer camps for boys and girls dot the Pocono region—but all reports indicated that the children had escaped the flood. Thousands of them, however, were isolated by the waters which cut off all communication for more than 24 hours. In some instances, power and gas service were affected.

Many cities and towns were deprived also of drinking water, power or gas. Among these were Scranton, in the heart of the anthracite district; Easton, Hazleton, Tamaqua, Reading, Wilkes-Barre, Pottstown, Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg.

The state highways department estimated damage to roads and bridges at $10,000,000.

In the Stroudsburg area alone nearly 40 bridges were washed away, the largest a 330-foot steel span linking the community with East Stroudsburg.

As the waters fell, enabling rescue workers to get into areas previously inundated, more bodies were found.

The total estimated homeless ranged as high as 20,000. This included 4000 around Easton, 2500 in the Stroudsburg area, 1500 at Scranton, 2000 in Bucks county neighboring Philadelphia.

The State Health Department dispatched a corps of sanitary engineers and nurses to the afflicted areas to see that all contaminated food was destroyed.

In Connecticut, Gov. Abraham A. Ribicoff reported damage ran into "billions of dollars." He said the state faced "a major disaster."

Some Connecticut cities still were cut off from the rest of the state more than 24 hours after the floods had struck their hardest blow.

Reports told of no power, no drinking water, heavy damage, widespread looting.

National Guard troops were flown to Winstead, a town of 9000, to keep order. State police said four bodies had been recovered there already.

Evans Clinchy of the Hartford (Conn.) Times was the first reported into Winstead. He saw people "wandering the streets, dazed."

"Every store front along the main street was smashed in and the street itself, normally a hard, blacktop road, is now nothing but a mass of twisted asphalt, concrete and broken pipe from the city's water system," he said.

Torrington (28,000) farther south, also was isolated. It had no drinking water, no sanitary facilities, no telephones or electric power, and its food supplies were dwindling rapidly.

17 Looters Seized.

At Waterbury (104,000), still farther south, the Naugatuck river left at least 10 dead. There was no power in half the city, no drinking water at all. Seventeen persons have been arrested for looting.

At Ansonia (19,000), Mayor William T. Sheasby said: "The whole center of town has been wiped out. All our factories have three or four feet of silt in them. We don't have a piece of lumber in town. We have to get it and bring it in. All the railroad tracks are washed out."

Fire raged out of control tonight in two flood-isolated mills in Mechanicsville, Conn. The mills, side by side, were surrounded by several feet of water.

Firefighters used all available boats in an effort to transport hoses and portable pumps to the blaze.

The Army Engineers in Boston, in radio contact with Putnam, Conn., reported Putnam "completely devastated." They said more than 300 homes have been destroyed by flood waters and hundreds of barrels of magnesium, released from a burning plant, swept through flooded streets and exploded.

Virtually all communication between Putnam and outside communities was cut off. Putnam itself was split in two by a river created by the storm and flood. Service helicopters were the only form of transportation between one side of the city and the other.

The helicopters dropped canned food to isolated residents. Hospitals were reachable only by helicopter.

Bridges across the Quinebaug river for 30 miles were destroyed.

Western Massachusetts was bracing itself against the twin menace of hunger and disease as it began to clean up the slime and debris left by the worst flood in its history.

The damage to industrial plants, homes, highways and railroad rights of way was estimated at more than a billion dollars. Massachusetts Public Works Commissioner John A. Volpe said the cost to repair state highways alone would be about $6,500,000.

Food Rushed to Families.

State police rushed food to stricken families in hard hit towns like Charlton, Oxford and Southbridge. Only cold edibles were transported. Cooking facilities and power were not available in several communities.

The shortage of water and the danger of pollution brought the warning to flood-ravaged towns to boil all drinking water before using.

Many persons were missing or unaccounted for in the state. In Charlton alone there were several automobiles under water and rescuers had not been able to reach them to determine if they contained passengers.

There were no trains running out of Springfield. A reporter who flew over the western sector reported seeing tracks buckled and ties splintered.

The main highway from Boston to New York—Route 20—was impassable and it appeared it would be days before it could be opened to traffic.

In Southbridge, near the Rhode Island line, the American Optical Co. reported its loss would reach $10,000,000.

Eleven thousand families were without water in Worcester's north end because of a leak in the high pressure system.

Boston Health Commissioner John H. Cauley said the loss of food because of power failures in refrigeration units was very severe.

The New England Telephone and Telegraph Co. reported 51,600 phones in Massachusetts and 3500 in Rhode Island still out tonight.

The Delaware river poured new destruction downstream in New Jersey today after swamping homes, flooding highways and dumping tons of silt along a 120-mile flood path.

Muddy water ran into the State House basement at Trenton and the Capitol's power was off. One thousand nearby residents had been evacuated.

New Jersey damage was estimated in the millions.

Trenton—and the entire river-front in a four county area—was affected.

In New York state a 50-mile square downstate area was a sea of mud and devastation.

Thousands of citizens streamed back to water-soaked homes this morning just 24 hours after rampaging streams and record rainfall sent them fleeing for higher ground.

Property losses ran into many millions. One county—Sullivan—suffered $1,000,000 in damage just to its highways alone.

The only serious situation reported was at a summer camp just across the New York line in Pennsylvania. There, at Camp Colong near Lackawaxen, Pa., still surrounded by water, were about 400 children and adults. Civil defense planes dropped about a ton of food last night and today.

Port Jervis, a city of 10,000, caught the brunt of the flood in New York. It is at a point where the Deleware river, which forms part of the boundry between New York and Pennsylvania, is joined by the Neversink river.

Both sent water cascading over their banks yesterday. A large part of Port Jervis was inundated and 1500 residents were forced to leave their homes.

In Woonsocket, R. I., most of the city of 50,000 was without drinking water, its mains shattered at many points.

Gov. Dennis J. Roberts of Rhode Island estimated flood damage at $150,000,000 in Woonsocket. Included in the total, he said, was 15 to 20 million dollars damage to city-owned facilities such as roads, bridges and public buildings.

While much of Woonsocket was flodded to a depth of five feet by the Blackstone river, there was almost a complete lack of drinking water in the city.

The collapse of two dams and the resultant onrush of their waters raised the Blackstone to 15 feet above normal late today.

Woonsocket officials put a fleet of tank trucks on shuttle service to carry drinking water into the city from nearby Lincoln.

In Virginia, 120 families were driven from their homes, and roads overrun. Maryland also got a taste of the flood, with the Potomac driving families out of the community of Point of Rocks. Water lapped into a tunnel at Baltimore, stopping trains for a time.

Rains ordinarily seen only near the equator were poured into steep-sided valleys and narrow twisting streams that never before had been called on to carry such a burden as a result of Hurricane Diane.

The downpours came without warning other than a forecast of "showers."

The people of New England, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania went to bed Thursday night in the belief that the rainfall outside was routine—that Diane had faded out somewhat around West Virginia or Pennsylvania.

They awoke to find that usually meandering streams had turned into raging floodwaters. Some Massachusetts and Connecticut towns reported up to 19 inches of rain in little more than 24 hours.

Explanation of Floods.

What had happened was this, according to meteorologists:

The moisture the hurricane had sucked up from the Atlantic encountered an already heavily-humid area stretching from eastern Pennsylvania into New England.

This combination produced a low pressure trough that enabled the wet air to rise, cool, and release its water in devastating torrents.

The ground already was saturated from the rains of Hurricane Connie less than a week before. Streams and reservoirs already were high.

Under these conditions, the new downpour flowed down the hillsides and filled streams and rivers to overflowing at a frightening speed—too fast for scores of people to escape.

The death and property toll was high because many of the industrial communities in the stricken area nestle close beside the streams. They were founded there to be near the mills that in the past operated on water power.

Often the hills beside the streams are steep, with the result that floods rise much more rapidly than they would on level terrain.

AUBENAS, France, Aug. 20 (AP)—Ten persons were reported killed and one severely injured today when a funicular car plunged down a mountainside in the Cevennes range at Mont Pezat.

The accident apparently resulted from brake failure.

Scientist Fired From U.S. Job In New Guilt-by-Relative Case

Dismissed Because of Parents' Old Ties to IWO — Lon Hocker Questions Handling of Case.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (UP) —A new guilt-by-relative case came to light today with the disclosure that a Cleveland scientist was dismissed from a government research job because of a "close relationship" to his parents.

A staff member of the Senate Constitutional Rights subcommittee revealed that the scientist, Fred Karpoff, had been fired in April, 1954, after serving for eight months at the Lewis Flight Propulsion Laboratory of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

Similar to Seamen's Cases.

The action was similar to the recent cases of seamen Eugene W. Landy and Norton Pierre Gaston, who were denied naval reserve commissions because of security questions raised about their mothers. These cases are being reviewed by high naval and coast guard authorities. The Civil Service Commission said today that it will re-examine the Karpoff case.

The commission's board of appeals refused to reconsider Karpoff's ouster before. It said in September, 1954, that the scientist's "own record appears to be entirely clear," but it added that it could not consider rehiring him because of his "close relationship to Mr. Fred Karpoff Sr. and Mrs. Lillian Karpoff," his parents, who were members at one time of the International Workers Order.

The commission said it is reopening the case at the request of the Senate Constitutional Rights subcommittee. The case had been called to the subcommittee's attention by the CIO United Auto Workers.

Questioned by Lon Hocker.

The subcommittee's chief hearing counsel, Lon Hocker of St. Louis, questioned the handling of the case in a letter to the commission. He wrote that Karpoff's parents joined the workers order "for the prime purpose of obtaining cheap insurance."

"At the time of Mr. Karpoff's dismissal," he continued, "the organization was under liquidation by the New York State Insurance Department and last November the Subversive Activities Control Board, following a court order, dismissed the Attorney General's petition that the organization be required to register as a subversive organization."

Hocker asked "whether in a democracy the dismissal of a man with an entirely clear record is in reality consistent with the interests of national security."

Board Named in Landy Case.

Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas today named a special three-officer board to review the Navy's refusal to give Landy a commission. Landy was a recent honor graduate from the Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y.

Board members named were: R. Adm. K. L. McManes, commander mine force, Atlantic Fleet; Capt. Albert B. Cook, now on duty in the Sixth Naval District, and Cmdr. Alfred E. Gallant Jr., a veteran of seven naval engagements in World War II.

Landy has been invited to appear before the board. He may be represented by counsel, call witnesses and make any statement he desires. The board has been authorized to meet at Philadelphia or New York to minimize inconvenience and expense to Landy.

G.I. HOME LOAN REQUESTS DECLINED 7.5 PCT. IN JULY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP) —The Veterans Administration said today applications for G.I. home loan guarantees dropped 7½ per cent in July but still topped the 50,000 mark for the twelfth straight month.

The VA received 54,130 applications in July, compared with 58,738 in June. However, the July figure was 19 per cent higher than that for July 1954.

During the last 12 months, 668,000 applications were received—an average of 55,673 a month.

UNITED FUND ADOPTS NEW CAMPAIGN PLAN

Chapter Method Designed to Avoid Multiple Drives.

Adoption by the United Fund of a solicitation plan intended to further its goal of eliminating multiple fund drives was announced yesterday by William A. McDonnell, general chairman of the campaign.

The plan, said to have proved popular in a number of other cities, will be known as the "Chapter Plan." It applies to employe groups and their managements.

By undertaking to meet four qualifications, the contributing firm or organization and its employes form a chapter which bears their corporate name.

These qualifications are: Making one corporate gift through the United Fund to those health, welfare and character-building organizations eligible for support from the fund; establishment of a solicitation plan for employes; one employe solicitation a year for the fund, and permission for personnel to be available for one campaign a year, the United Fund campaign.

Key to success of the plan, McDonnell said, is a voluntary payroll contribution plan for all hourly-paid workers. Under such a procedure, he said, the contributor is enabled to pledge in keeping with the combined needs represented by the new campaign. His gift is deducted in small amounts from his salary through the year.

U.S. Reported Ready to Trade Data on Foreign Bases to Russia

Willing to Let Reds Photograph World-Wide Net in Exchange for Information of Equal Value.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP)—The United States is prepared to let Russia make aerial photographs of its world-wide net of military bases if the Russians will trade information of equal value to this country.

The American position on this point has been developed in preparation for the reopening of disarmament negotiations between the Western powers and the Soviet Union, at New York on Aug. 29.

The United States, Russia, Britain, Canada and France comprise a United Nations subcommittee charged with working out a global plan for controlling and reducing armaments and eliminating atomic weapons from the arsenals of all nations.

The work of the committee has been given a new forward push by last month's Big Four talks in Geneva and particularly by the spectacular proposal which President Eisenhower made to Soviet Premier Bulganin.

Mr. Eisenhower suggested that the United States and Russia trade blueprints of military establishments and permit each to make aerial photographs of the other's territory "from one end of our countries to the other."

This proposal raised a big question which officials at Geneva never answered but which has no wbeen answered by high authorities here.

The question is whether the President's limitation of the exchange proposal to the territories of each country meant that he was deliberately excluding foreign bases.

The answer now supplied is that he had to exclude overseas bases from his Geneva talk because they are on the territories of many other countries from Japan to Iceland and no reference could be made to them without consultation with those countries. The President's advisers did not want to consult for fear of tipping his hand and destroying the surprise impact of the proposition he made.

In principle, however, the Administration was not opposed to considering an information trade with Russia covering overseas bases. It has now been decided that if the Soviets are interested in a trade, and if they wish to get information about American bases abroad they may do so provided they will give information of their own to the United States, and assuming the countries where the bases are located give their consent.

Security Council Decision.

Decisions such as this one, officials said, are being made by the National Security Council, under the President's leadership, as developments in the disarmament planning require.

As to the kind of military information which Russia might have to yield in order to get a look at American bases, that is a question which the Washington government may not have to answer for a long time, if ever. But, by way of illustration, officials point out that the Soviets are supposed to have a formidable force of submarines deployed in the Pacific area and elsewhere. The United States would be interested in finding out about their deployment.

Czech Girl Held as Spy.

Handy Dog.

MEMPHIS, TENN. — (UP) — Mrs. Joe Dunning was fishing from a boat on Moon Lake when she realized she'd left the fish stringer on shore. She called to her son on the dock, then put her dog in the water. The animal swam to shore, paddled back with the stringer attached to his collar.

$2-A-DAY PAY RISE FOR COAL MINERS IN NEW CONTRACT

Lewis and Northern Association Sign, UMW Expects Others to Follow.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (UP)—President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers announced tonight he had signed a contract with northern soft coal producers calling for a $2-a-day wage increase for his miners.

Lewis negotiated the increase, the first his miners have had in three years, in secret negotiations with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, which represents most major northern operators, and the so-called "captive mines" owned by big steel companies.

Lewis said he would expect all other operators to make the same "voluntary adjustments."

"If they don't they don't have a contract," he said. "It requires 60 days to terminate it. It is a reasonable assumption that we would give them notice by Sept. 1 if they did not make adjustments.

"They have reasonable time now to reflect and cogitate," he said.

Aimed at Southerners.

This was directed at the Southern Coal Producers Association, which represents about a third of the industry. Informed sources have said that the Southern operators "probably would fall in line within two or three days."

The contract gives the 125,000 miners employed by the bituminous association a wage increase of $1.20 a day beginning Sept. 1 and an additional 80 cents beginning April 1. The present daily wage is $18.50.

It also provides that they will get 12 days vacation annually with $140 pay instead of the 10 days with $100 they now get.

Additionally, the miners will receive time-and-a-half for Saturday work and double time for Sunday, regardless of whether they have worked any other day of the week.

Lewis said the agreement "was devoid of Marxian babble and contains no wind or water."

He made his statement at a press conference which followed a meeting of his 200-man policy committee. The committee voted ratification of the agreement and Lewis announced the signing soon thereafter.

Asked by a reporter if previous contracts had contained such "Marxian babble," Lewis said, "I leave that to your imagination."

Producer's Comment.

Harry M. Moses, president of Bituminous Coal Operators Association, told reporters the terms were "generous but consistent with basic wage patterns set in other basic industries."

Moses said he would "certainly anticipate that coal prices will be increased" because of the new wage agreement.

He said it is impossible now to estimate how much coal prices would go up. However, he gave reporters copies of a formula which showed that the new contract would cost the producers roughly $39,000,000 a year.

The last wage increase negotiated for soft coal miners was in 1952. They got a $1.90-a-day increase.

Moses said he had "been shadow-boxing with Lewis for several months" and had reached an informal agreement with the 75-year-old UMW chief last Thursday.

Moses said the contract was "unparalled in modern history."

Six Years Without Strike.

"It will mean more than six years without a coal strike," he said. ". . . It assures the country of at least another year's uninterrupted coal supply."

Lewis said the agreement would not oppress the consumers "nor yet expose the brittle bones of the operators to the icy blasts of the coming winter."

The contract is for one year beginning Sept. 1. It raises the hourly wage rate to a level slightly higher than that received by non-skilled workers in the auto and steel industries. It provides a basic rate of $2.61 an hour.

Lewis said he would deal with hard coal (anthracite) producers individually. But he said he was not ready to make any announcement on that score, as yet.

430 ARE KILLED IN CLASHES IN MOROCCO, ALGERIA

troops set up cordons across all roads out of Constantine. At the same time they started a systematic clean-up of several quarters of the city. They threw several hand grenades to dislodge rebels who were seeking to escape by climbing down a rocky gorge at the city's outskirts.

Order was reported restored in midafternoon. Jacques Soustelle, governor general of Algeria, left Algiers by plane for Constantine.

Witnesses of the disorders in Carrieres Centrales, largest of the shanty towns surrounding Casablanca, said the trouble was started by Arab youngsters who brandished portraits of Ben Youssef and harangued French troops in Arabic.

Crowds collected and soon rioters carrying long knives, pistols and sporting guns went into action. Some of them carried a red-starred green Moroccan flag.

A French sergeant and his men were surrounded and had to be rescued by a patrol. Six Moroccans were killed by machine gun fire.

Tanks, Legionnaires Arrive.

Order was re-established after 30 light tanks and trucks carrying French Foreign Legion units and parachutists arrived in the town.

The Oued Zem rioting began this morning when Moroccan nationalists raided the European quarter of the town, pillaging and killing. The main street was quickly in flames.

With about 30 Europeans killed in the town there was still anxiety for Frenchmen living in the countryside nearby. The rebels had disrupted communications in the region.

Earlier, Berber tribesmen were reported fighting with French troops at Kenifra in Morocco's Atlas mountains, 122 miles southeast of Casablanca.

The natives at both Kenifra and Casablanca were demonstrating for the return of Ben Youssef, former sultan who was banished two years ago today to Madagascar.

Heretofore the Berber tribesmen have been supporters of the new sultan, Mohammed Moulay Ben Arafa.

French Resident General Gilbert Grandval, who has favored deposing Ben Arafa in an effort to satisfy the nationalists and bring peace to the embattled protectorate, was first reported to have gone to Kenifra and then to have decided to stay in Rabat, the Moroccan capital.

More Home Rule.

He returned to Rabat from Paris early Saturday to begin a series of consultations with Moroccan leaders, including nationalists, on formation of a new government with more home rule for the Moroccans.

The step had been determined upon by the French cabinet, but apparently the French decision was too late or was not widely understood by the Moroccans.

Last night, it was reported, 2000 Berber horsemen from the Zaian tribe rode through Kenifra. The French sent parachute reinforcements to the town and fighting broke out when a parachute lieutenant was shot while he and his men were inspecting a barricade.

His men attempted to recover his body but armed Moroccans swarmed upon them and they had to retreat. A violent clash followed.

At one point the rebels seized a French armored car but it was recaptured. About 500 Europeans in the city of 10,000 were evacuated. The rebels cut the town's telephone communications.

Dispatches from Tetuan, capital of Spanish Morocco, said more than 6000 Moroccans there demonstrated today for the return of Ben Youssef. There were no disorders in the Spanish protectorate.

Police and other security forces have been on the alert for days in Algiers and Morocco, fearing an outbreak of disorders on the anniversary of the deposing of the Sultan.

FIRST OFFICIAL SUPERSONIC SPEED RECORD REPORTED SET

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20 (AP)—An Air Force pilot today established the world's first official supersonic speed record with a North American Super Saberjet flying between 800 and 900 miles an hour at high altitude over the Mojave desert, the Times reported.

Col. Horace A. (Dude) Hanes, flight test director at Edward's Air Force Base, made the level flight run after a week of speed flights at 35,000 feet.

The Times's aviation writer, Marvin Miles, said Charles Logsdon, chief timer of the National Aeronautic Association, verified that supersonic record operations were underway on the desert. Exact time of the new mark is to be announced by the Air Force at a Philadelphia air show Sept. 3-5, Miles said.

The previous world speed record was set by Lt. Col F. K. (Pete) Everest, test pilot at Edwards, on Oct. 29, 1953. He flew a swept-wing Super Sabrejet (F-100 C) at 755.149 m.p.h. in level flight passes over a 15-kilometer course (9.32 miles) at the Salton sea. This mark was just under the speed of sound.

JEWISH-CATHOLIC ADOPTION CASE HEARING POSTPONED

DEDHAM, Mass., Aug. 20 (UP)—A Jewish couple today won a new postponement of court action on contempt charges in their battle to keep a 4-year-old girl they have reared from infancy.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin B. Ellis of Brookline have been in hiding since late June with little Hildie McCoy. Contempt action was put off again yesterday because sheriffs have not been able to find them to serve papers. The hearing was continued to Sept. 14.

The Ellis couple is charged with contempt for refusing to surrender Hildie to her Catholic mother, Mrs. Marjorie McCoy Doherty, in line with a probate court order. Mrs. Doherty invoked a state law barring interfaith adoptions. She contended she did not realize the Ellises were Jewish when she turned the infant over to them in 1951.

WORLD JAMBOREE OPENS FOR 10,800 BOY SCOUTS

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, Ont., Aug. 20 (UP)—Canada's Governor General Vincent Massey today formally opened the eighth world Boy Scout Jamboree.

Massey, Chief Scout of Canada, took the salute at a marchpast by the 10,800 boys who will spend a week in the encampment.

President Eisenhower sent an opening-day message saying the Scouts could build between themselves a bridge of understanding in world affairs which cannot be built by governments alone.

A message was also received from Pope Pius XII calling on Roman Catholic scouts to be "artisans of peace" and "true disciples of the Master of the Beatitures."

KEEPING THEIR DIPLOMAS DRY

FORT COLLINS, Colo., Aug. 20 (UP)—Russell K. Britton, director of instruction in the Denver city school system, cut short his outdoor commencement address at Colorado A. & M. college yesterday when rain began falling.

"This a state institution," he said, "but we don't believe in soaking the public."

UPSURGE OF RELIGION IN RUSSIA REPORTED

Head of Baptist World Alliance Preached There 18 Times.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 (AP)—The Rev. Dr. Theodore Adams, of Richmond, Va., president of the Baptist World Alliance, returned today from a two-week visit to Russia and reported a great "upsurge of religion" since his last visit there 21 years ago.

Dr. Adams, accompanied by three other Baptist clergymen, traveled 3500 miles in Russia and preached 18 times in 15 Baptist churches there.

"I was very much impressed by the sincerity of our Baptists, and there are 500,000 of them attending 54 registered churches," he said. "The freedom of religion as we know it is not found in the Soviet. The people are free to worship within their church buildings and to discuss their religion within their homes.

"Wherever we went, the Baptist churches were crowded with from 200 to 2000 persons attending, and wherever we preached there were more people standing that sitting."

As an example of change, Dr. Adams said St. Isaac's cathedral was an anti-religious museum 21 years ago but now has been closed.

The Russian Orthodox church has been permitted to reopen 20,000 churches, and 1500 Catholic and 800 Lutheran churches are open to the people, Dr. Adams said.

The Baptists, he said, have received permission to suppy 50,000 bibles to Russians.

MONORAIL TRANSIT SYSTEM SUGGESTED FOR MILWAUKEE

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 20 (AP)—A monorail rapid transit system in which train cars travel on a single tracks has been suggested as a possibility for Milwaukee.

A transportation study committee yesterday urged the city to look into the idea as part of its proposed expressway system. Monorail lines have proved successful in European cities.

"The advocates of such a system," the committee said, "assert that it can be built over city streets or expressways because of its slender supporting pylons. Its height and structural design offer no interference to surface traffic."

Perhaps you are like so many people who think: "Vitamins? They're fine—for the other guy," without really understanding what a lack of vitamins can do to your body. BRITISH SEIZE 4TH SUSPECT IN I.R.A. RAID ON ARSENAL

LONDON, Aug. 20 (UP)—Police announced today they have arrested a fouth man suspected of participating in the Irish Republican Army raid on the British army Arborfield barracks and arsenal last Saturday.

Three other men suspected of being among the 20 raiders who swooped on the barracks and arsenal and escaped with automatic arms and ammunition were arrested earlier this week.

The stolen arms and ammunition were found by police Monday night in a deserted London shop.

U.S., REDS STILL DEADLOCKED ON CIVILIANS' RETURN

Delegates Hold Ninth Session but Can't Get Past First Item on the Agenda.

GENEVA, Aug. 20 (AP)—United States and Red Chinese representatives adjourned their meeting again today without reaching agreement on the repatriation of 41 Americans detained in Red China.

It was the ninth meeting between Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson and the Red Chinese envoy, Wang Ping-nan.

A brief announcement after the session disclosed only that the two delegations were still bogged down on the first agenda item concerning the return of 41 American civilians held in Red China and Chinese students Red China charges are detained in the United States, a charge denied by Washington.

Not until some agreement is reached on this matter can the ambassadors proceed to the discussion of the second item—"Other practical matters at issue between the two sides."

The next meeting was set for Tuesday.

Chinese Students Back From U. S. Tell of 'Persecutions.'

TOKYO, Aug. 20 (AP)—Three Chinese students, recently returned to their Communist homeland, told a story today of what they called "interrogations, persecutions, threats, arrests and jailings" while being detained three and a half years in the United States.

The Peiping radio, in a propaganda broadcast, identified them and the schools they attended as:

Miss Sha Yi-shen, University of California; Huang Pae-tung, Texas A.&M. and Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn, and Tu Yen-yae, Pennsylvania State University.

All said they lived in fear. They claimed there were others being held under similar conditions. Red China has made the same charge in ambassadorial talks now under way at Geneva to free citizens of the two nations.

Huang, a chemistry student, was quoted as saying he was imprisoned for 116 days in 1951 after applying for permission to go to Red China.

Churchmen Off for Russia.

TEACHERS UNION BACKS SIGNING OF ANTI-RED PAPERS

Affidavits to Be Required From Three Fired for Invoking Fifth Amendment.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Aug. 20 (AP)—The A.F.L. American Federation of Teachers said yesterday it will deny defense funds to anyone who refuses to submit an anti-Communist affidavit.

The federation's executive council Thursday voted $1500 from the union defense fund to contest the June dismissal of three Newark, N.J., teachers fired for invoking the Fifth Amendment.

But yesterday, delegates to the federation's annual convention here attached two strings to any such commitments.

They approved a proposal to require that any union local asking for defense funds submit a signed affidavit that the person to be defended "does not now and never has been a member of an organization" with totalitarian leanings.

The proposal also requires approval by the federation's executive council of any attorney selected to defend a person.

The Newark school board gave the three teachers a hearing, but A.F.L. vice president Herrick Roth of Denver said the board wouldn't admit any evidence except that they had used the Fifth Amendment in refusing to answer some questions before the House Un-American Activities committee.

The 16-member executive council said in a statement that it opposes hiring of Communists as teachers but also insisted teachers shouldn't be fired merely on Fifth Amendment grounds.

In another action, the delegates instructed the Birmingham, Ala., local to remove from its constitution the requirement that only white persons be allowed to become members.

MAN SHOT TO DEATH AFTER HE KILLS DETROIT POLICEMAN

DETROIT, Aug. 20 (UP) — Detroit police flushed a Shelbyville (Ind.) man from his estranged wife's apartment with tear gas and shot and killed him early today after he fatally wounded Patrolman George Krueger of Detroit.

Police said Ellis Bailey, 30 years old, arrived here yesterday with a shotgun, threatening to kill his wife, Linda, 22.

Krueger and three other officers answered a call to investigate a "drunk with a shotgun" shortly after midnight, they said. The officers walked by the door of the Bailey apartment and Krueger, last in the file, was felled by a blast in the chest. He died two hours later.

FLOOD LEAVES 30-INCH PIKE IN POOL IN MAN'S BACKYARD

PORT JERVIS, N.Y., Aug. 20 (AP)—Austin Crane lives along the bank of the Delaware river, which surged over its banks yesterday.

Inspecting his flooded yard, he saw a nine and one-half pound pike, about 30 inches long. Later, when the water receded from the yard it left a pool—with the fish still in it.

AMERICANS URGE LOCAL CONTROL OF SOVIET FARMS

Visitors Also Recommend More Machinery — They Will Leave for Home Today.

MOSCOW, Aug. 20 (AP)—Fifteen American farmers who have been touring the Soviet Union for more than a month told their hosts in a frank report today that Russian agriculture would benefit from more machinery and less central control.

The Americans topped their strenuous tour in a conference with Russian agricultural leaders at the agriculture ministry and a visit to the Lenin-Stalin mausoleum here. They will depart for home tomorrow.

They urged the Soviets in a 14-point program to seek agreement with the United States on an exchange of farming know-how through a big program for swapping experts and technical publications. Since the Americans had no official status, it was not known here whether their views on exchanges are shared by Washington.

The Americans delivered their report to Ivan A. Benediktov minister of state farms, at a 2½-hour conference at the agriculture ministry building. The chief emphasis in their recommendations was on how Russian farmers can adapt American techniques to improve their lands and increase their output.

Local Control Stressed.

The Americans, who are used to making most of their own decisions about handling their farms, stressed the importance they attach to local control.

They said the efficiency of Soviet agriculture "may be improved by allowing more initiative at the state and collective farm level concerning livestock and chopping programs. People at the local level are usually more familiar with their own soil, weather, labor, and managerial capacities and would be in a better position to make these decisions."

The report also hammered hard on the value of adapting American know-how in farming, recommending:

A close study of American research in corn-growing in order to help the program in this field sponsored by Russian Communist party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev.

Efficiency studies, increased mechanization, greater incentives for individual workers, and more education for workers to increase labor efficiency. Recommendations for workers to increase labor efficiency. Recommendations for special courses extended to Russian women to aid them in the home.

Greater emphasis on saving labor and space in designing farm buildings.

Reducing heavy damage from soil erosion in the Soviet Union by contour plowing, terracing, proper crop rotation, building more dams to impound water, and retention of organic matter in the soil.

Saving manpower, equipment, and over-all costs in the corn program by making cultivations less frequently, using instead more herbicides for killing weeds. U. S. research in this field was specially cited.

To keep up with latest developments in these and related areas, the Russians were advised to take immediate steps to arrange for exchanges of scientific and technical personnel and working farmers, plus an exchange of technical publications.

Optimistic on Russian Farming.

The American farmers have seen more, learned more and traveled more than any other group of foreign farm experts has ever been permitted to do by the Soviet government. After going thousands of miles across the Ukraine, the Don and Volga basins, and visiting the newly opened lands of Soviet Asia, the visitors as a whole were considerably more optimistic about the future of Soviet agriculture than when they arrived.

They expressed their views to Western and Soviet reporters today.

"Soviet agriculture is certainly not on the verge of collapse," said Lauren K. Soth, editorial page editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, who originally inspired the idea of an exchange of Soviet and United States farmers in an editorial he wrote.

William E. Reed of Greensboro, N.C., said he had found Soviet agriculture "much better than I expected, and they keep making improvements."

Ralph Ainslee Olsen of Ellsworth, Ia., was struck by the Russians' "talk of and desire for peace." Olsen added that if Russia "could warm up and get some water there (in the Asian new lands), there is enough land to feed the whole world."

The impression of both the Soviet press and Western diplomats in Moscow was that the Americans' visit had been a success.

There was no doubt among the diplomats that the tour helped boost American prestige and popularity among the Russian people. The general belief was that the impact of the meeting of working farmers of the two countries could have important results.

RUSSIANS WIND UP U.S. FARM TOUR

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 20 (UP)—Touring Russian agriculturists ended a sightseeing tour of movieland at 2 a.m. today and bounced back up after five hours sleep to take a look at the dairy industry of this area.

The last day of a rigorous 32-day schedule that has carried them across the nation, they joked and were in good spirits as they breakfasted at 7 a.m. They had gone to bed at 2 o'clock this morning at the end of a "sneak" sightseeing tour by bus last night from one end of Los Angeles to the other.

At 8 a.m. they were under way on the last leg of their inspection tour, to the huge nearby dairy farm of County Supervisor Roger Jessup.

The visitors tried to dodge the press last night after a late dinner, explaining they were dog-tired. Then they sneaked into their special air-conditioned bus and "did the town."

They drove out Wilshire boulevard to Santa Monica, 18 miles of neon-lighted store fronts and business establishments. The distance caused one of the farm leaders to comment "where does this street end?"

When they trudged through the sands of the Santa Monica beach for a close-up of the booming Pacific surf, another commented "Why, this ocean also washes our shores."

Andrei Stepanovich Schevchenko, legal adviser to the Soviet ministry of agriculture, wore his swimming trunks under his trousers and when the group stopped on the ocean shore, he went for a swim.

PHILIP RAY RODGERS

PHILIP RAY RODGERS NEW NLRB CHAIRMAN

Guy Farmer Resigns as Head of Board and as a Member Also.

FRASER, Colo., Aug. 20 (AP)—President Eisenhower yesterday chose Philip Ray Rodgers, now a member of the National Labor Relations Board, to be the new chairman of the unit.

Mr. Eisenhower, at the same time, officially announced the resignation of Guy Farmer as a member and chairman of the NLRB. His retirement was predicted months ago. Farmer is a Democrat, Rodgers a Republican.

What Mr. Eisenhower actually did was name Rodgers acting chairman of the NLRB until Farmer's term expires Aug. 27.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said at Mr. Eisenhower's vacation headquarters here that Rodgers would take over officially as chairman at that time. Farmer is leaving the board immediately.

Farmer's departure—for "business reasons," Hagerty said—leaves one opening on the five-man board. Farmer was appointed by Mr. Eisenhower and he notified the President he did not wish to serve another term.

Rodgers was clerk of the Senate Labor Committee during the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress. He also served as secretary to former Senator James Davis of Pennsylvania.

PLAYGROUNDS' PAGEANT TO BE HELD THURSDAY NIGHT

The annual municipal playgrounds' pageant will be presented by the division of parks and recreation of the Department of Public Welfare at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Kiel Auditorium, it was announced yesterday.

Two thousand children from playgrounds throughout the city, who have engaged in singing, dancing and dramatic activities for the last two months, will participate in the pageant. About 30 girls will model clothing they have made in a fashion show and a handicraft display will be exhibited in the auditorium lobby.

District winners will compete in playground championship finals in track and field and other athletic events and table games from 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday at Sherman Park. A tennis championship tournament will also be held Wednesday at Forest Park, beginning at 10 a.m. All playground events are free to the public.

U.S. EXPECTS RISE IN SMUGGLING OF ARMS TO CUBA

Customs Men in Miami Say Step-up Usually Follows Seizure of Cache in Havana.

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch. Copyright 1955.

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 20—Arms-smuggling activities between South Florida and Cuba "may be stepped up again any day now," United States customs officials predict in Miami.

"Every time the Cuban police or Army uncover a cache of 'revolutionary' rifles and machine guns, new efforts will be made to import more as replacements for anti-Batista forces," agents here contend. They explain:

"This smuggling of weapons to Cuba is—and has been—'big money' business.

$225 for M-1 Rifle.

"The 'standard price' for delivery of an M-1 rifle in Miami—for secret shipment to Havana—long has been set at $225. A machine gun brings the smuggler up to $400, for delivery to 'friends' in Miami.

"The cost of getting these arms from Miami to Havana is probably even higher. Money, apparently, is no object however."

"There always has been more profit than patriotism involved in attempts to smuggle arms to Cuba," according to Charles R. Wyatt, regional supervisor of customs agents in the southeast United States and the Caribbean area, and James R. Offutt, his chief assistant in the Miami office.

Recent return to Cuba of Dr. Carlos Prio Socarras, ousted in 1952 as President, "could mean another pickup of smuggling in the next month or two," Wyatt and Offutt agree.

"Prio has openly admitted (in a speech last week after his flight from Miami to Havana) that he encouraged gun-smuggling from the United States for use in 'regaining through force the liberties of the Cuban people.'

"There is no reason to believe that those efforts will suddenly halt now that he is back with his hot-blooded supporters again," Offutt comments.

Raids in Cuba.

Their observations come closely on the heels of feverish searching and raiding in Cuba.

National police on Aug. 5 seized a big cache of arms, including American and Mexican machine guns, automatic rifles, grenades, mortars, gunpowder and more than 5000 rounds of ammunition.

From Havana came news Tuesday that raiders had uncovered another weapons hideout in Guanabacoa, across the bay from Havana—the fourth "find" in two weeks.

Seized Tuesday were 15 rifles, four machine guns, eight pistols, several grenades and ammunition. Arrested was Jose Valdez Ginzalez, a warehouse custodian.

President Fulgencio Batista—dictator in Cuba from 1933-40, later its elected President and Chief Executive since March 10, 1952, when he chased Prio in a bloodless coup—has charged recently that $5,000,000 has been spent by his political foes in buying up and smuggling arms into Cuba in Prio's exile in Miami.

He has directed police in the last fortnight to search out a $1,000,000-store of arms.

Customs officials—from Miami to New York—have been "on guard" against weapon exports since the summer of 1952, shortly after Prio's arrival in Florida.

The first "break" in the smuggling patrol came in New York when officials rounded up a $20,000 cache of arms—Cuba-bound—at Mamaroneck on Dec. 19, 1952.

14 Men Indicted.

Fourteen men, including Prio, were indicted in an export conspiracy and taken to trial in New York almost a year later.

Prio, pleading no defense to the federal charge, was fined $9000 last September and then resumed his well-guarded life in exile here until Aug. 11 when he and his supporters returned by plane to Cuba, guaranteed amnesty by Batista.

At least nine "supporters" of the ousted President are still awaiting trial in Miami federal court for their arms smuggling operations of the last 18 months.

Salvatore C. Pena, alias Sabiur, a former customs agent, is one of the nine although still a fugitive to Mexico.

He and three others—Engenio Ramon y Jordan, Evilio Prieto y Guillama and Eduardo Garcia y Lavandero—are under federal grand jury indictment for conspiracy to ship arms to Cuba from the La Rhumba club in May, 1954.

Customs agents found 10 carbines, 20 rifle slings, cartridge belts, M-1 ammunition and clips ready for shipment.

A careful check is kept on sales made by dealers in firearms at all times but this seldom produces a hot lead to a big smuggling attempt.

From South America.

Arms from other countries—Mexico, South America and Central America—also find their way into Cuba despite the efforts of Batista's police forces, customs agents declare.

Exporting of weapons from the United States is currently a federal violation of the Mutual Security Act of 1954 (formerly the Neutrality Act) in that such shipments are made without first obtaining a permit or license from the Secretary of State.

Such a violation makes the smuggler liable to a two-year prison term, a fine up to $25,000, or both, on conviction.

Those charged with conspiracy to export arms face a prison term of five years and a $10,000 fine as penalty on conviction.

BAR DELEGATES TO HEAR ADDRESS BY EISENHOWER

Nixon, Warren Also to Speak — 200 Leaders to Present Papers at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 20 (AP)—The American Bar Association opens its seventy-eighth annual meeting here Monday with more than 5000 lawyers programmed to examine the nation's laws.

The five-day session of the A.B.A. delegates will hear discussions of old and new laws and good and bad judicial practices. And they will hear talks on law and justice from President Eisenhower, Vice President Nixon and United States Chief Justice Earl Warren.

In addition, more than 200 leaders in law, government, business and diplomacy are scheduled to present dissertations on how the law, its practioners and interpreters can serve the profession and their country better.

Here are some of the topic themes:

"Should cumulative voting for corporation directors be mandatory?" "The defense of insanity in criminal cases," "Legal aspects of atomic power," "Property damage claims arising from low flying airplanes," "Fire insurance problems in the atomic age," "Progress in the administration of military justice," "Lawyers and the Fifth Amendment," "Prison or probation?—which and why."

Resolutions Planned.

Separate A.B.A. committees will prepare resolutions for consideration by the House of Delegates, the ruling body of the association.

The highlight of the week-long meeting is the appearance on Wednesday of President Eisenhower and Chief Justice Warren—on the same program—to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the birth of John Jay, the first chief justice.

The President will speak from a special platform behind historic Independence Hall, just 30 feet from the famed Liberty Bell. Warren will make the introduction.

A crowd of more than 30,000 is expected to jam the Independence Hall mall area—now partially completed—that surrounds the building where the patriots of the American Revolution signed the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776.

Before the President makes his afternoon speech he will lunch with about 4000 lawyers in five big tents erected on the mall. There will be no speeches here.

The Insurance Company of North America is footing the bill for this luncheon, and also has posted a $25,000 bond in case the tents and the lawyer-guests damage the grass recently planted in the Mall.

Communism Resolution.

The A.B.A. committee on American citizenship, headed by United States Circuit Judge Walter M. Bastian of Washington, has prepared a resolution for consideration of the House of Delegates concerning whether the theories of Communism should be taught in America's public schools.

The committee's report recommends only that a qualified federal commission prepare a suggested curricula of studies for schools, colleges and universities "which will make clear the basic differences between the theories and practices of the American way of life and the theories and practices of atheistic Communism."

This is a toned down approach to the issue that exploded at the A.B.A. convention last year and which was tabled then for further consideration. However, the committee said in a preliminary convention report that it "has not abandoned its resolution regarding the teaching in schools of the theory and practices of Communism."

Georgian to Be Named.

Loyd Wright of Los Angeles is the current head of the A.B.A. He will be succeeded by E. Smythe Gambrell of Atlanta, Ga., at the formal election Monday.

Besides the experts on American law the A.B.A. meeting has attracted a number of foreign officials including Dag Hammarskjold, United Nations secretary general who will discuss "law and liberty in international life" at the annual dinner honoring United States judges Monday night.

Others from the international scene are Sir Lionel Frederick Heald, member of Parliament and former attorney general of Britain; Dr. K. C. Wu, former mayor of Shanghai and governor of Formosa who will describe "the hope and despair of Formosa"; the right honorable Lord Justice Denning, lord justice of appeal of England; D. Park Jamieson, president of the Canadian Bar Association; Dean Pablo Oro of the school of law of the Central Philippine University and Dr. Eduardo Salazar, Quito, Ecuador, chairman of the executive committee of the Inter-American Bar Association.

MANY CARELESS TOURISTS PREY OF EUROPEAN THIEVES

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1955.

PARIS, Aug. 20 — Careless American tourists were robbed of $120,000 in travelers checks in Italy alone in the first six months of 1945, says M. I. Soederlund, chief special agent of the American Express Co. for Europe.

"Some people can't seem to learn not to leave their suitcases on the tops of their cars or in unlocked luggage compartments," he adds.

Tow Firm 'Gifts' Allegedly Were Given to 24 Policemen

List of Names Obtained by Inspector's Office in Inquiry Is Not Made Public.

Names of 24 policemen have been obtained by the police inspector's office in its two-month investigation of payments and gifts allegedly made by a firm which held the city's contract for towing away illegally-parked automobiles, the Post-Dispatch was told last night.

The list of police officers said to have received benefits of some sort from Cy's Service, Inc., 34 North Boyle avenue, was not made public by the inspector's office.

A spokesman said the names would be withheld, at least until a progress report on the investigation had been made to the Police Board.

The list is reported to include principally officers assigned to traffic division, including motorcycle policemen and men assigned to direct traffic at intersections. Some members of the automobile theft bureau also are among those named.

"Piggy Banks" With $2.

The distribution to police officers by the towing firm allegedly fell into three categories: $1 for each automobile towed away to the policeman who placed the call; "piggy banks" that contained $2, and desk pencil sets.

Charles Morgan, operator of Cy's Service, has denied to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he gave any money payments to policemen, asserting: "I never made a pay-off to anyone."

The piggy banks and desk pencils were said to have been distributed at Christmas. Morgan told the Post-Dispatch that some policemen attended his Christmas parties and, like other guests, received food and desk pencils.

Morgan's firm lost its one-year towing contract with the Police Department last July when another company submitted a lower bid for the following year. Under its contract, Cy's Service received $5.91 from every motorist who redeemed his car.

No Action by Dowd.

Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd, whose office is directing an intensive inquiry into reported pay-offs to some policemen by brothel operators, said he plans no investigation at this time into matters dealing with the towing firm and policemen.

He said that, after the pay-off inquiry is completed, he will consider what, if anything should be done about the other reports.

The grand jury will meet again Tuesday to continue hearing testimony in the pay-off investigation.

Seven police officers who testified before the grand jury have been given 70-page questionnaires in which to give complete details of their financial affairs. These questionnaires are to be returned to Dowd's office.

Four of the officers were asked by the Post-Dispatch last night whether they would answer the questionnaires.

Only two of the officers indicated a definite intention to complete the questionnaire, which includes an affidavit stating the answers are true.

Detective John G. O'Keefe said: "I definitely plan to answer all the questions. I have not completed the questionnaire yet, but I will answer these questions and any others. I have nothing to hide."

Detective Sgt. William Ferie also said he intended answering every question, but added he needed additional information to complete the questionnaire.

Detective Richard Windhorst told the Post-Dispatch he had not decided whether to answer any of the questions. "If I do, it will be because I feel coerced to do so. It (the questionnaire) is against my personal beliefs and convictions and I feel it is against my legal rights."

Lt. Jake Joseph refused to make any comment regarding them.

GIRL, 5, TIED IN TREE IN FLOOD, IS FOUND SAFE

The New York Herald-Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

FARMINGTON, Conn., Aug. 20—Yolanda Bartolomeo, 5 years old, who was left tied to a tree at the height of the flood yesterday was found unharmed today at the foot of the tree.

The little girl, her mother, two brothers and a sister, were taken from their home by volunteer firemen. The boat swamped and the seven took refuge on a rooftop.

A helicopter took the mother and two of the smallest children to safety, and one fireman and the boy reached dry land by clinging to a tree.

The second fireman, Albert Leone, tied Yolanda to the tree as the house broke up. He was swept away by the water, but survived.

When the waters subsided, Yolanda loosened herself, climbed down and was found playing in the rubble-strewn sand at the foot of the tree.

TWO STAY ON SHIP POUNDED BY GALE FOLLOWING FIRE

Big Waves Break Over Listing Decks of Coal Freighter—Tugs Racing Toward It.

WICK, Scotland, Aug. 20 (UP) —A stand-fast captain and his first mate were riding out an Atlantic gale tonight aboard a disabled freighter with 14-foot waves breaking over the listing decks and water rising in the engine room.

Capt. George Watson and First Mate Kenneth Seaman clung to the fire-blackened coal ship Argobeam in hope of saving it from salvage.

Watson sent a blinker message to the British weather ship Weather Recorder, standing by in case the two men had to abandon ship, that the powerless freighter was taking water in the engine room.

He asked that the message be relayed to the seagoing tugs Salveda and Metinda which were racing from Scotland to take the Argobeam in tow. They were expected to reach the stricken ship sometime during the night.

The Argobeam, its engine room gutted by fire yesterday, was already heeled over in a 30-degree list while gale-force winds drove 14-foot waves over the decks.

Watson and Seaman decided to stay aboard and try to save the 7133-ton freighter, loaded with American coal, from a salvage claim after 29 other crewmen jumped overboard and were rescued by the Swedish-American liner Kungsholm yesterday.

Watson had partly flooded the engineroom to keep the fire from spreading to the rest of the ship.

The weather ship reported that Watson and Seaman could be seen on the bridge of the Argobeam and that they appeared "quite cheerful." It said the disabled ship appeared to be "lying comfortably."

Its batteries and radio dead, the Argobeam's only means of communication was a signal lamp.

The two men had ample food and water to last them indefinitely if the vessel survived the pounding of heavy seas.

STATE STANDING PAT ON RICHMOND HEIGHTS ROUTE

peatedly refused to authorize an agreement with the Highway Commission whereby the commission would proceed with acquisition of Daniel Boone right-of-way, subject to repayment of the county's share when the bond funds are available.

Commission Chairman Harris D. Rodgers of Benton said the special meeting had been called to consider a request by Mayor Leo M. Duggan of Richmond Heights that the commission rescind its earlier designation of the Richmond Heights route and select another one that would pass along the southern outskirts of Maplewood.

Reasons for Rejection.

In rejecting the request, the commission pointed out the southern route would add to the length of construction necessary and require expenditure of several millions more dollars than the one approved. Rodgers said it would also delay use of the road because the southern route does not lend itself readily to stage construction. Stage construction permits one part of the project to go into use before other parts are completed.

After further review, the commission said, it reaffirmed its earlier position that "the chosen location which passes through Richmond Heights will provide the area to be served with greater relief from traffic congestion in the shortest time and with minimum expenditures."

Attending the meeting were all members of the commission, including Chairman Rodgers of Benton, A. D. Sappington of Columbia, W. M. Robertson of Joplin, former State Senator J. G. Morgan of Unionville and Dr. T. R. Beveridge of Rolla, state geologist and ex-officio member of the commission. They all concurred in the conclusion.

The commission took the position that the route adopted will give greatest service to the greatest number of people in the shortest time. It was pointed out that by following the route through Richmond Heights the expressway could be put in use through construction of about 2½ miles of highway, whereas adoption of the southern route through Maplewood would require construction of 12 miles of highway before it could be used.

CIO PACKINGHOUSE PRESIDENT TO ACCEPT CONTEMPT CITATION

CHICAGO, Aug. 20 (UP) — Ralph Helstein, president of the CIO United Packinghouse Workers of America said today that the and two other union officers will accept service of a contempt of court citation issued by a New Orleans judge last month.

The citation was an outgrowth of a strike against the Godchaux Sugar Co., and Colonial Sugar Co., at Reserve and Gramercy, La.

Helstein said he and two other union officers "took a walk on a public highway . . . to look at the Colonial sugar refineries," early in July.

Judge Walter B. Mahlin, New Orleans, sitting as a visting judge at Gramercy, ruled this action violated an anti-picketing injunction and issued the contempt citation.

David Eisenhower, Grandfather Entertain 32 Boys at Lunch

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER, military man with working knowledge of barbed wire, moving cautiously through strands being held apart for him at his vacation retreat near Fraser, Colo., Friday. He was bound for trout pool to give his grandson, David, a lesson in casting.

President Beams as Grandson Plays Host at Ranch Hot Dog Feast.

The New York Herald-Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

FRASER, Colo., Aug. 20.—President Eisenhower and Dwight David Eisenhower II, his 7-year-old grandson, had 32 boys and eight adults from nearby Skyline ranch over for a hot dog lunch today.

Some 25 reporters and photographers were also invited—for the preliminaries.

Young David the Star.

As was true yesterday, when the White House press corps visited the President's Rocky Mountain vacation spot at Byers Peak Ranch young David was the star attraction.

David was galloping around on his dirty-gray horse, when the pre-lunch picture-making began. As the crowd of boys gathered around the President, Mr. Eisenhower shouted, "Everybody's here but the host."

The photographers waited while the President asked someone to find David.

When the boy finally showed up, his grandfather said, laughing, "Here comes Lochinvar; all right stop that steed and get over here now."

David, grinning the famous Eisenhower grin, ran over to the group, and the President advised him to "get up front and get your picture taken."

James C. Hagerty, the President's press secretary passed out to the boys engraved, signed invitations to the lunch from the President and David.

The first hand to reach out for one of them was David's.

"You're the host," Hagerty reminded him.

Before the eats began, David gave each guest a gold-and-ivory ball point pend inscribed with the President's name. The President also officiated at a presentation of prizes to outstanding Skyline ranch campers,

David Wins a Prize.

One of the prize-winning campers, incidentally, was David, who had been at Skyline ranch (which is run by Jack Thompson, his mother's uncle) for two weeks before joining his grandfather here on Tuesday.

David got a red ribbon for winning second place in an air rifle shoot.

"This is the second time I congratulated you today," the President said as he pinned the ribbon on David's short-sleeved polo shirt. "The first time was for that fish."

Later the President explained that David had caught an 11-inch rainbow trout.

"He was proud of that fish," Mr. Eisenhower said. "It was the first one he ever caught and cleaned all by himself. He got up and went to that pond bright and early. He was out there for an hour and 45 minutes.

"I believe he promised to give it to some one from his camp, but now he's so proud he has a problem of what to do with it. He'll probably take it to his great-grandmother (Mrs. John S. Doud, Mrs. Eisenhowers' mother, who lives in Denver) to prove he got it."

Shortly afterward, as cold drinks were being handed out to the boys, David asked the President anxiously, "You think my mom would mind if I had a bottle of coke"

"No," Mr. Eisenhower replied, "I don't think so. I think she'd think it all right. As a matter of fact you tell her I broke over and let you have it, and I'll have one with you."

David parked a big wad of gum he was chewing, and ran to the outdoor table. Then as he gulped from the bottle, he explained to reporters, in the nonchalant manner he has adopted toward the press: "Mom doesn't think they're good for me, you know."

As the children lined up for the hot dogs, the President stood aside leaning against a tree and discussed shorthand writing, the number of times he has to sign his name, and other things.

Suddenly he interrupted the conversation to note the doings at the hot dog table.

"Look at ole David," he chortled. "He's getting ahead of everybody."

"David," the President shouted, "you gotta get out of there so someone else can get something to eat."

His mother told police she, her husband and son were crossing Big Bend when the boy suddenly broke loose from her and ran ahead.

Mrs. Gertrude H. Allen, driver of the automobile, told police she was driving north in Big Bend when suddenly she saw the boy at the left side of her machine. Mrs. Allen lives at 53 Ridgeline drive, Warson Woods.

PUBLIC SCHOOL CHANGES HAILED AS SIGNIFICANT

Racial Integration and Smaller Classes Planned in Elementary Buildings.

The school year starting Sept. 8 will be "one of the most significant in the history of public education in St. Louis," from the standpoint of meeting needs of the individual pupil, Superintendent of Instruction Philip J. Hickey told the Post-Dispatch yesterday.

Racial integration will begin in elementary schools when classes resume, completing the desegregation program in the school system except for upper grades in technical high schools—delayed until the new John O'Fallon Technical High School is completed.

Because of integration in the lower grades, and construction of 66 new classrooms, average class size in elementary schools will be reduced from 38.8 to 37.6 pupils.

This will enable teachers to give more attention to each child in areas where overcrowding had been heaviest, Hickey said, pointing out that substantial decreases in class size will take place in some sections.

Eventual Goal is 32.

The superintendent emphasized that this year's reduction is only the first step in a Board of Education plan to decrease the average elementary class to 32 pupils—at the rate of a one-pupil cut each year until the goal is reached.

Besides the smaller elementary classes, three special programs of instruction will be inaugurated. Two involve so-called gifted children, those with an I.Q. of 125 or more. The third is for mentally-retarded pupils, whose I.Q.'s range under 78. An I.Q. of 100 is considered normal.

Regarding plans for the exceptionally bright children, Hickey said:

"The school system has developed special educational programs for children who deviate from normal physically or are below normal mentally. However, to all intents and purposes we heretofore have done virtually nothing special for the extremely able individual."

One of the new programs for gifted students will be carried out in the high schools. The other will be undertaken in the sixth grade.

Enriched Course of Study.

In both plans, the children will be given an intensified and enriched course of study, designed to challenge their abilities. Those in the sixth grade program will attend special classes in nine schools, centrally located in various sections of the city.

The classes will have about 36 pupils each, which is the same size as the average room in the upper elementary grades. Next year, the special classes will be extended to the seventh grade and the following year to the eighth.

This will provide a link with the program being launched in high schools this fall. The high school plan differs from the sixth grade program in that it will be carried out in every high school.

Besides students with a high I.Q., those with outstanding ability in a particular field will be included in the high school program. In addition to their intensified classroom work, the students will be urged to develop their abilities through wise selection of extra-curricular activities and participation in community affairs.

Encouragement to Parents.

Parents will be encouraged to make plans for these children to attend college or receive advanced technical training.

A program extending work with mentally-retarded pupils beyond the elementary school level for the first time will be started in Roosevelt and Beaumont high schools. Those selected for the program, age 15 to 18, will attend the high schools for two years.

Emphasis will be on preparation for jobs. The pupils will attend special classes for half the school day and regular classes, for which they are fitted, the rest of the time. Plans call for extension of the program to other high schools later.

Children entering elementary schools for the first time, including an expecetd 5000 kindergarten pupils, must register on Aug. 31, Sept. 1 or 2. Those changing to a new elementary school because of changes in district boundaries as a result of integration also must register.

EAST SIDE TO SEEK MILLION IN U.S. AID ON SLUM PROJECT

The East St. Louis Housing Authority will apply shortly for about $1,000,000 in federal aid for urban redevelopment of a five-block slum area, Dan Foley, city commissioner of finance and chairman of the authority, announced yesterday.

Foley also said the authority will meet Wednesday to discuss making application to the Federal Housing Authority for funds to construct 300 additional low-income housing units similar to 1108 units it now operates. The latter units, which make up five low-rent, federally-financed housing projects, were taken over by the city authority last May from the old St. Clair County Housing Authority.

Plans have been completed for redevelopment of an area bounded by Broadway and Missouri avenue, and Tenth and Thirteenth streets, Foley said. Slum dwellings there would be razed and the land resold to private interests, which would erect modern apartments.

HOSPITAL TO PUT HOLSTEIN HERD ON AUCTION BLOCK

A herd of Holstein cattle, built up over a 40-year period, will go on the auction block Friday at St. Vincent's Hospital, 7301 St. Charles Rock road, St. Louis county, it was learned yesterday by the Post-Dispatch. The 45 cows and 15 heifers in the herd will be sold individually to the highest bidder.

The registered herd has been a source of milk for the hospital and its 250 patients. But increased hospital responsibilities, the drouth of recent years, and difficulty in finding reliable help have forced the hospital administration to liquidate the herd and the dairy equipment, Sister Anne, hospital administrator, said yesterday.

"It's a very fine herd, and we hate to part with it," she added. "But we have to realize our limitations. The worries of the farm and the herd are just beyond what the staff can cope with, and our hospital duties come first."

STOLEN ELECTRICAL DEVICES RECOVERED, 3 MEN HELD

About $2000 worth of stolen electrical appliances were recovered yesterday after three St. Louisans were charged with burglary and larceny in thefts from seven Jefferson county homes and business establishments in the last two months, police reported.

The burglary suspects, who are held in the Jefferson county jail at Hillsboro, identified themselves as Norbert Leonard, laborer, living in the 3700 block of Oregon avenue; Clinton E. Henry, electrician, 3800 block of California avenue, and Harland L. Lewis, unemployed, 3700 block of Oregon.

Most of the loot, which included television sets, radios, air-conditioning units and clocks, was found at Henry's home and electric shop, police said. Officers also reported recovering three pistols, a shotgun and a rifle at Leonard's home. The loot was hauled in a truck yesterday from the Hampton avenue police station to Hillsboro by Jefferson County Sheriff Leo Church.

$3600 STOLEN AT TAVERN, HOME IN EAST ST. LOUIS

A total of about $3600 was stolen by burglars who broke into a tavern at 7515 State street, East St. Louis, early yesterday, police reported.

The tavern is operated by Miss Jeannie Herrin, who lives at the rear of the building, but who is now on vacation in New York. Miss Nell Spence, an employe, who has been managing the establishment in Miss Herrin's absence, told police the theft was discovered when a porter, Joseph Menard, arrived to clean up. The tavern closed at 1 a.m., she said.

Menard found a screen removed from a bedroom window, a window lock forced and an office adjacent to the living quarters ransacked. Miss Spence, who estimated the loss, said some of the money was taken from the tavern and some from the living quarters. A small pistol was taken also, she said.

13,000 WESTERN ELECTRIC WORKERS GET PAY BOOSTS

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 (AP)—The Western Electric Co. and 13,000 CIO communications workers have agreed on general wage increases of seven to 12 cents and hour.

A company spokesman announced yesterday the signing of a new one-year contract covering installers of central office equipment in Bell telephone buildings in 44 states.

The spokesman said the average hourly wage under the old contract was $2.

CHILD KILLED BY HELICOPTER

Up to that time the helicopter had evacuated 13 persons from flooded areas without mishap.

CHIANG'S TOP AID QUITS, UNDERLING FOUND TO BE SPY

U.S.-Trained General Says He Had No Idea Subordinate Headed Red Ring.

TAIPEI, Formosa, Aug. 20 (AP)—United States trained Gen. Sun Li-jen, once commander in cheif of the Nationalist army, was disclosed today to have quit as Chiang Kai-shek's personal chief of staff after exposure of a subordinate as head of a suspected Red China spy ring.

The disclosure ended rumors which have been sizzling for weeks in Taipei about the four-star general, a hero of World War II in Burma.

Gen. Sun, who got his training at Virginia Military Institute and is highly rated by American officers, is not under arrest but faces the possibility of a court-martial.

Even if a commission of inquiry confirms his assertion he had "no idea" his long-time subordinate was using the connection for spy purposes, there is no doubt that Sun's military career has ended.

The government announcement said he resigned Aug. 3 as "an admission of negligence."

He was replaced by Huang Chen-chiu, vice minister of defense.

Spying Since 1948.

Wn Nan-ju, head of the Nationalist Information Bureau, said that Sun's subordinate, Kuo Ting-liang, has confessed using his long connection with the general for spying activities dating back to 1948.

Gen. Sun, in an interview today at his home, said he and Kuo "fought in Burma and Manchuria," that Kuo became a major under him.

Asked if he ever suspected Kuo was a Communist agent, Gen. Sun said:

"I had no idea. It came as a surprise to me and I was very disturbed about it."

Kuo and others are under arrest.

Wu's statement said Kuo and his group "stepped up their effort at infiltration" in August 1954 at a time when the Chinese Reds started clamoring for an invasion of Formosa.

The statement added:

"General Sun, while pleading negligence and oversight in the Kuo's subversive intentions, which might have caused serious damage to the nation, has tendered his resignation to the President with a request for a full investigation of the case and his responsibility therefor."

List of Accomplishments.

The 55-year-old general, a handsome man with a distinguished appearance:

Fought the Japanese in 1932 and 1937.

Commanded the nucleus of the new First Army and of Burma, once rescuing the British First Disision encircled at Yen-angaung.

Commanded the thirty-eighth Division which covered the Allied retreat from Burma in 1942.

Commanded the new First Army, activated in March 1944, and won fresh honors in Burma.

Was invited to Europe by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for a tour of battlefields.

Attended the United Nations conference as senior member of the Chinese military delegation.

Was named commander in chief of Nationalist ground forces in 1949, holding the post until June of last year.

On June 24, 1954, he became Chiang's personal chief of staff.

House Stolen.

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Mrs. Margaret Seay complained to the sheriff's office that someone stole her house. When last seen, the two-room house was wearing white paint and black screens.

JAPAN ASKS SOUTH KOREA EXPLAIN TRADE BAR REPORT

TOKYO, Aug. 20 (UP)—Japan today called on South Korea for an explanation of reports that the government of President Syngman Rhee has severed all trade relations between the two nations.

Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs Suemitsu Kadowaki met with Korean Minister Kim Yong Shik to discuss the issues which have plunged relations between Tokyo and Seoul into deeper crisis.

WOMEN WATER SKIERS GIVE UP WHEN BOAT HITS SHOAL

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 20 (UP)—Two young mothers failed to break the distance record for women on water skis when their pull boat plowed into a gravel shoal eight miles north of Tiptonville, Tenn., today. The skiers—Mrs. John Coll, 23 years old, and Mrs. Harold Dodds, 20, both of Memphis, were not hurt. But Ann Wilkinson, in the boat, was thrown through the boat's windshield and suffered cuts that required 17 stitches.

Mrs. Coll and Mrs. Dodds, mothers of two children each, drove to Cairo, Ill., last night and at 7:15 a.m. both were in the water heading toward McKellar lake here, a water distance of 244 miles. Mrs. Coll and Mrs. Dodds wore life jackets over swim suits.

The women were being towed by Dr. Paul Vescovo of Memphis, and were reported making good time when the mishap ended the venture at 10:20 a.m., after more than three hours of time racing down the Mississippi.

ARCHIVIST SETS UP PRESIDENTIAL LIBRARY POLICIES

Competition With Historical Societies to Be Avoided — Fees to Help Cut Costs.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (UP) —The Government set in motion today newly-created machinery to make sure that papers of United States Presidents will from now on be preserved in places easily accessible to scholars and historians.

On Aug. 12, President Eisenhower signed into law a bill authorizing the Federal Government to accept and operate presidential libraries built with private funds and donated to the Government. Federal supervision likewise is permitted for presidential collections held by universities and other institutions.

Dr. Wayne C. Grover, archivist of the United States, drew up today a list of guiding principles to be followed when the Government takes over libraries, such as the Harry S. Truman library, now under construction at Independence, Mo.

Grover said that while such libraries will serve as federal archival institutions of national and international scope, their core will be the papers of the Presidents in whose names the libraries are given to the nation.

Sets Up Legal System.

The General Services Administration, the Government housekeeping agency which controls the national archives, said the new law not only will set up a legal system of presidential libraries but also is expected to lead to the "establishment of important collections of historic papers throughout the country where they can be easily used by scholars and will be relatively safe from nuclear destruction."

GSA Administrator Edmund F. Mansure said the system will "contribute lastingly to the understanding of American life and American history."

The papers of many Presidents have either been destroyed or scattered so scholars cannot easily examine them.

Fire destroyed the papers of Presidents William Henry Harrison and John Tyler. A "fact sheet" distributed by GSA said that President Franklin Pierce seems to have "willfully destroyed" his papers after leaving the presidency and that relatives, heirs and friends destroyed papers of Presidents Willard Fillmore, Chester A. Arthur and Warren G. Harding.

Substantial collections of papers of 21 Presidents have been preserved, including those of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln. James Monroe's papers have been scattered among various libraries and private collections, although the largest single collection is now in the Library of Congress.

First Three Under System.

The first three libraries to come under the new system will be the Franklin D. Roosevelt library, at Hyde Park, N.Y., the Truman library, and the Dwight D. Eisenhower library, which is to be constructed next to the Eisenhower museum and family home at Abilene, Kan.

The libraries' maintenance is expected to cost $150,000 a year for each library. An estimated $50,000 of this is expected to come from tourist fees and fees to make reproductions of the documents.

Referring specifically to the Truman library, Grover listed three guiding principles:

7. It should avoid competition with state or local historical societies. It should stick chiefly to federal records, material acquired from organizations in which Truman has been active, Truman family papers, and material collected by the Democratic ex-president which reflects his personal interest.

2. It should concentrate on collections relating to national affairs, particularly during the period of Mr. Truman's service to the Senate and White House.

3. It should collect primarily original source materials rather than printed materials.

U.S. EXPECTED TO KEEP ITS TIN SMELTER GOING

Rep. Thompson Says Texas Plant Is Being Shown to Prospective Private Buyers.

By BEN F. MEYER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP) — Representative Clark W. Thompson (Dem.), Texas, said today a Government-owned tin smelter at Texas City, Tex., "apparently is going to be kept in operation."

The future of the smelter, built by the Government during World War II to guarantee this country a supply of highll strategic tin, has been something of a headache for the Government for several years.

As Government investments go, the $13,200,000 plant hardly represents a drop in the bucket. But its future has run into problems of international diplomacy, world trade, national security, Administration policy concerning Government in business, and some politics. It is the only tin smelter in the Western Hemisphere.

Bolivian Pleas.

Bolivia, a South American country whose economy depends largely on tin, has appealed to Washington to keep the smelter operating. It contends it helps keep Bolivia's economy from falling apart, and affords an outlet for a part of its tin ore. About 50 per cent of the ore used at the Texas City plant comes from Bolivia, the rest from Indonesia, Siam, the Belgian Congo, Mexico and Nigeria.

One Government official said there may be disagreement on many things about the smelter but "everybody agrees it saved this country from an acute shortage of tin during and after the war."

President Eisenhower last year recommended to Congress that the Government dispose of the plant. Congress suggested it be kept going until June 1955. This year it adopted another resolution saying it should remain in operation at least until June 30, 1956.

The same resolution passed the ball right back to the White House on the future of the plant. It asked the President to make new recommendations as to disposal of the plant, should it be determined that the Government does not wish to operate it any longer.

Shown to Possible Buyers.

"On the basis of that resolution," Thompson said, "high officials of the Government have set to work studying the situation, and I understand they are already showing the smelter to interested groups with a view to selling it to private interests for operation. That is exactly what I have been urging since 1947."

In recent years the smelter's output has been going to the Government's stockpile of strategic commodities. The Hoover commission on government organization said recently the stockpile of tin—an official secret—is estimated at a five-year war supply.

There is still a question in some minds, though, whether (1) that would be enough in case of another war or (2) if this hemisphere's independence of Europe and Malaya as a source of tin in the future is worth the $1,500,000 yearly loss at the plant.

NEW MISSOURI RIVER BRIDGE OPENED AT JEFFERSON CITY

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 20 (AP)—National, state and local officials dedicated the new $6,500,000 Missouri river bridge here tonight. Within a few days, a contractor will begin the job of dismantling the 69-year-old abandoned span.

Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.), Missouri, said the new bridge represented a new road across the river and thereby symbolized one of two great resources in America—highways. The river represented the other, water.

Symington said the country's water resources are being "chewed up by industry" and that they must be conserved. He said water resources are becoming more and more important to the country's future and that the demands for power, for cheap transportation and for increased water supplies are increasing daily.

Margaret Won't Marry Townsend, She Tells Family--Birthday Today

Reaches 25—Could Become Bride Without Consent of Her Sister the Queen.

By JOSEPH NEWMAN
The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio

LONDON, Aug. 20—Princess Margaret, younger sister of Queen Elizabeth II, has informed members of the British Royal family that she does not intend to marry Group Capt. Peter Townsend, the Royal Air Force officer with whom her name has been linked romantically.

This was learned yesterday from a member of the Royal family.

Princess Margaret will be 25 years old tomorrow and free, under the law, to marry without the consent of the Queen.

With the approach of her birthday, the public, and particularly newspapers, in Britain and other parts of the world have become increasingly interested to learn whetner Princess Margaret would use her new freedom to marry Capt. Townsend, a 40-year-old divorced man who is British air attache at Brussels.

Across the English Channel, meanwhile, Townsend rode the mare Kwenda in an international gentlemen's race at Ostend. It was a tight race, but he won in a photo-finish.

PRINCESS TAKES FALL AT BAZAAR

BALLATER, Scotland, Aug. 20 (AP) — Princess Margaret fell headlong before a crowd at a church bazaar today.

"I think I have sprained my ankle," she said.

But she got up, limped to her station wagon, and drove off to Balmoral castle nearby.

The incident climaxed a day in which the Princess and her family joked and chatted with crowds, but kept the closely guarded secret of Margaret's romantic intentions.

Margaret stumbled in the long grass as she walked toward her car from the grounds of Abergeldie castle, scene of the bazaar. She fell flat on her face.

Gasps went up from the great crowd of onlookers.

The Princess clambered to her feet and stood a few seconds before moving off to the car. At the bazaar, she stood at a counter and sold nylons and nighties. Queen Elizabeth II sold biscuits, Prince Charles and Princess Anne peddled postcards. The Duke of Edinburgh sold grouse, and Queen Mother Elizabeth sold clothing.

The Queen Mother organized the sale to raise money for the church where royalty worships while on its Balmoral castle holidays.

All day long the royal family rubbed shoulders with the commoners. Margaret, hatless, wore a white shantung suit adorned with black and purple flowers.

She will celebrate her birthday in the seclusion of Balmoral with members of her immediate family. In the morning the family is expected at Crathie church. In the afternoon, if the weather is good, the royal party will picnic on the castle grounds.

RUSSIANS SET UP INSTITUTE FOR STUDY OF CAPITALISM

LONDON, Aug. 20 (AP)—The Soviet Academy of Sciences has set up a "special institute of economy of modern capitalism," the Moscow radio said today.

The broadcast said that at a meeting of the academy in Moscow yesterday the institute of economics was "subjected to criticism for failing to study systematically the works of foreign progressive scholars of economics."

MIDWEST OPERA CONCERT

SUDAN MUTINY SPREADS INTO THREE PROVINCES

Three Officers Reported Killed in Uprising of Native Army Units —Troops Flown In.

KHARTOUM, Aug. 20 (UP)—The mutiny of southern troops in the Sudanese army against their northern officers spread through three provinces of southern Sudan today despite government efforts to smother the rebellion.

The Sudanese government flew loyal troops from Khartoum to Torit and Juba in the south to smash the mutiny which began yesterday.

However, the uprising of the native troops was reported to have spread today to Yei, in Upper Nile province. The government said that the rebellion now has broken out in three provinces—Equatoria, Bahr el Ghazal and Upper Nile.

Began in Torit.

The uprising of the troops in the Sudanese defense forces began in Torit, in Equatoria, and spread to other garrisons.

Reports from the southern provinces said three officers were killed. However, the government pointed out that these reports were incomplete and that casualties were expected to be higher.

A state of emergency was declared in the three southern provinces last night by the office of Governor General Sir Knox Helm, who is vacationing in Scotland.

Meanwhile in northern Sudan the Planters Union at Gezira, south of Khartoum between the White Nile and the Blue Nile, called a mass strike to protest the jail sentences passed by a national tribunal on five union members.

President Included.

The union leaders included the president of the union, Sheikh el Amin Mohammed el Amin who was sentenced to eight months in prison for "terrorism" and disturbing the peace.

The disgruntled planters attempted to march on the provincial capital of Wad Medani but were halted by police.

Long staple cotton is grown by the planters on the huge Gezira irrigation scheme farms.

TWO U.S. CONGRESSMEN SEEK TO VISIT RED BALTIC STATES

MOSCOW, Aug. 20 (AP)—Two American Congressmen asked the Soviet government today for permission to visit the Soviet Baltic republics of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia. No Americans have been permitted in these republics since their absorption into the Soviet Union.

The Congressmen are Representatives Joseph R. Holt (Rep.), California, and John J. Rhodes (Rep.), Arizona, who are making their first visits to Russia. There was no indication whether permission to visit the closed areas would be granted.

BELGRADE, Aug. 20 (AP)—United States Senator George W. Malone (Rep.), Nevada, arrived here today with hopes of being the first high American official to enter Communist Bulgaria since 1950. He said Bulgarian Foreign Minister Mino Neychev has invited him to visit Bulgaria.

PRO-GERMAN PARTY REJECTS TRUCE IN SAAR VOTE DRIVE

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar, Aug. 20 (AP)—One of three pro-German parties fighting Europeanization of the Saar today rejected a truce in the violent Saar plebiscite campaign.

The truce proposal was submitted to all political parties yesterday by Belgian Senator Fernand Dehousse, chairman of the five-power commission which will supervise the Oct. 23 vote. It was aimed at ending bloody street demonstrations by pro-German parties.

The Democratic Party of the Saar (DPS), in a memorandum to the plebiscite commission, rejected the truce terms. It proposed instead that the government of Premier Johannes Hoffmann resign and new elections be held prior to the October plebiscite.

Airman Starting Divorce Action

AIRMAN SCHMIDT SAYS HE AND WIFE MAY BE RECONCILED

CHILD'S MEADOWS, Calif., Aug. 20 (UP)—Airman Daniel C. Schmidt said today that "it's possible" he may be reconciled with his twice-married wife Una even though he filed for divorce against her charging "extreme cruelty."

"It's possible," Schmidt said when he was asked about a reconciliation. "I'm not saying yes or no. There is a possibility. I can't tell you any more than that."

It was the first time Schmidt had publicly spoken on his tangled marital affairs since he retained Sacramento attorney Howard Welch to obtain his divorce. Welch had quoted Schmidt as saying he was not interested in a reconciliation.

Schmidt was at this resort community in the Sierra Nevada with his wife's mother, Mrs. Walter Ferguson, and her husband. He came here yesterday after filing his divorce papers at Red Bluff, Calif.

"I am not going to try to get custody of the child now," Schmidt said. "I am just getting a divorce so far. I hope to get custody of the child later."

Schmidt left by automobile late today for Portland, Ore., to see his mother, Mrs. Nelli Peters.

prison camp. On receiving the cards, she asked government officials to try to obtain his release.

The State Department said Fields had been missing from his unit in Germany since June 2, 1943. His next of kin was listed as Mrs. Herman Bailes, Bayside, N. J. He was born June 1, 1919, in Brooklyn, N. Y. He enlisted in the Army in Germany on Feb. 17, 1947.

The Army records show Fields first enlisted in 1940 under the name of Feingersch and at that time gave an emergency address as Marvin Sirus, a cousin, New York City, and an uncle, Edward Sirus, care of general delivery, Brooklyn.

The Army records further showed that Fields's mother, who signed herself at different times as Mrs. May Feingersch and Mrs. Fields, wrote the Army on a number of occasions seeking information about the whereabouts of her son. The records do not show the present whereabouts of Mrs. Fields.

Reported by P.O.W.s.

The State Department said its July 16 note requesting the release of the two soldiers was in line with its "continued efforts" to obtain the release of Americans detained in Communist bloc countries. It said the presence of Cumish and Fields in Russia had been reported by returning prisoners of war of other nationalities.

The American embassy in Moscow was informed yesterday by the Soviet Foreign Office that these two and Hopkins would be released. Date and place for their release were not specified by the Soviets.

"The case of Frederick Charles Hopkins," said the Department, "has never been taken up with the Soviet government. His background and the circumstances of his case are unknown to us. Previous reports from prisoners of war returning from the Soviet Union had mentioned an American named 'Johnny' Hopkins as being held in the Soviet Union, but intensive efforts to trace a person by this name produced negative results."

serve, but had been done by employes of member banks.

An intensive search was begun in 1953 for the missing money by FBI agents who went out in large numbers to Michigan and Indiana looking for other bills. Other notes may have been picked up by them, although the agency has refused to comment on progress of the search.

Two former St. Louis policemen, Lt. Louis Shoulders and Patrolman Elmer Dolan, were sentenced to prison terms in 1954 for perjury in the inquiry which sought to determine what happened to the money.

Shoulders and Dolan arrested Hall, winning national attention for their work. Later, the Government charged they lied under oath about the handling of two of Hall's suitcases that were supposed to have contained almost all of the $600,000 ransom.

12TH AIR FORCE IN EUROPE FULLY CONVERTED TO JETS

RAMSTEIN, Germany, Aug. 20 (UP)—The United States Twelfth Air Force announced today it has completed its conversion into a fully jet-powered tactical striking force "capable of meeting any challenge."

The announcement was made by Maj. Gen. Robert M. Lee, the unit's commander, in a message marking the thirteenth anniversary of the Twelfth Air Force, America's major air contribution to the defense of Western Europe.

Lee said the addition of such jet planes as the RB57, the RF84F and the F86D have "tremendously increased" the Twelfth's firepower and weapons potential.

AIR FORCE FLYING WOMAN POLIO VICTIM FROM KOREA

TOKYO, Aug. 20 (UP)—A young American woman missionary, encased in a portable iron lung, was flown from Seoul to Tokyo today by a United States Air Force C-54 transport plane on her way home to the United States.

Mary Chisholm, 24-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Chisholm, missionaries of Berkeley, Calif., was stricken June 4 in Korea with poliomyelitis.

She was treated by Army doctors who twice believed that she had died. She is now en route to the University of Buffalo's Polio Respiratory Center at Buffalo, N. Y.

SAMUEL C. WAUGH NAMED EXPORT-IMPORT BANK HEAD

FRASER, Colo., Aug. 20 (UP)—President Eisenhower today appointed Samuel C. Waugh, assistant secretary of state for economic affairs, to be president of the Export-Import Bank.

Waugh, a Lincoln (Nebr.) Republican, will succeed Maj. Gen. Glen E. Edgerton, whose resignation was accepted today, effective Oct. 1.

Mr. Eisenhower said he was accepting Edgerton's resignation "with a great deal of regret" and praised him for a "capable job" at the helm of the United States-financed agency for loans abroad.

SEAMAN SAVED BY BLOOD DONATIONS BECOMES DONOR

GREAT LAKES NAVAL TRAINING STATION, Ill., Aug. 20 (UP)—A Pekin (Ill.) sailor whose life was twice saved by blood transfusions today became the first to answer an appeal for donors of a rare blood type.

Seaman Robert G. Hendricks, whose B-negative blood was twice augmented by donors, replied to the call for blood to help save the life of Arthur J. Follie. Follie's wife, an ex-Wave, wrote the Navy for help. She said her husband's life depends on daily transfusions.

The Navy published her letter here and Hendricks responded promptly.

WEAVER ON INDEFINITE LEAVE AS SHURTLEFF COLLEGE HEAD

Dr. David A. Weaver has taken an indefinite leave of absence as president of Shurtleff College, Alton, with the permission of the board of trustees, it was announced yesterday. He has been president since 1945.

Dr. Roland E. Turnbull, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Alton and a member of the board's executive committee, was named acting president until a permanent successor can be found.

SEN. KEFAUVER QUESTIONS VALUE OF P.O.W. CODE

'Fine Set of Principles for Club Conditions,' Senator Says in Letter to Wilson.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP) — Senator Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, said today he was dissatisfied with the "lack of anything substantial" in the newly-proclaimed code of military conduct.

In a caustic vein, Kefauver wrote to Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson terming the code "a fine patriotic set of principles which are excellent and beneficial for club conditions . . ."

"But," Kefauver continued, "I wonder how they would serve the man exhausted by battle, hungry, cold, facing hostile interrogators and the prospect of more suffering and unknown dangers any better than do the present articles of war . . ."

The Tennessee Senator, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, told Wilson he hopes "you will undertake a more thorough study of the treatment of returned prisoners of war and their needs for the future."

Kefauver made the letter public.

Stresses High Ideals.

President Eisenhower on Wednesday proclaimed the new military code which sets forth guideposts for the conduct of American fighting men, stressing the highest ideals of valor in an effort to strengthen them against severe tests in the front lines or in enemy prison camps.

The code was drawn up by a committee of high ranking retired military officers and civilian Pentagon officials.

Kefauver asked whether "as a nation (we) are playing square with some of the boys whose photographs I have seen in the papers upon returning home . . . boys who had but a few years of education, who now are labeled 'turncoats,' tried and given very little chance to resume the life of an American citizen."

Cites Circumstances.

The Senator said the United States "cannot condone a breakdown of military discipline in time of war but there are circumstances in these cases which a humane nation must take into consideration."

Kefauver suggested that "political criticism" of American participation in the Korean war may have caused some American servicemen to turn coat and sign "confessions."

He said this country's objectives in the Korean war "were confused by political propaganda," and added:

"These young boys before they left undoubtedly had heard some of the highly publicized and political criticism of the fight in which they were engaged—such phrases as 'useless war' and 'Truman's war'—many of them uttered right here on the floor of the Senate and by men who are now in highly important positions in the government from whence the new (code) emanates."

HARRIMAN 'UNHAPPY' OVER STAND ON CAPTIVE PEOPLES

The New York Herald-Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20—Gov. Averell Harriman said tonight that President Eisenhower should have taken the opportunity at Geneva "to insist that the Kremlin live up to its wartime agreements" of political freedom and free elections for eastern European nations.

"I am unhappy that President Eisenhower only mentioned the question of the captive peoples behind the Iron Curtain, and did not seize the occasion to insist that the Kremlin live up to its wartime agreements concerning these people." Harriman said.

Harriman spoke at the twentieth anniversary dinner of the Catholic War Veterans. James P. Mitchell, Secretary of Labor, also spoke.

UNESCO CLEARED OF RED CHARGES IN LEGION REPORT

Committee Says Agency Is Not Communistic and Opposes World Government.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Aug. 20 (INS)—A special committee of the American Legion issued a report today absolving the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization of charges that it is Communistic and seeks a world government.

The long report will be submitted to the national convention of the American Legion meeting in Miami, Fla., in October.

The report said:

"The special committee has reached conclusions at variance with opinions commonly held by adverse critics of UNESCO. Usually such critics charge that UNESCO is (a) atheistic, (b) communistic and—or—subversive (c) favorable and tending toward world government.

"The special committee specially finds:

"1. That UNESCO is not favorable toward world government; that the programs and functions of UNESCO are not such as to tend toward world government; that the United States National Commission for UNESCO, individually and as a group, are strongly opposed to world government.

"2. That UNESCO is not atheistic.

"3. That UNESCO in no sense or degree is communistic."

The report by the Legion's special committee was signed by Mrs. Harold S. Burdett, a past president of the Legion Auxiliary and present vice chairman of New York; Ray Murphy, past national commander and Legion chairman of Iowa; William G. McKinley, national executive committeeman of New Jersey; Jacob Ark, past department commander of New York; Paul M. Herbert, past department commander of Ohio; the Rev. Gordon L. Kidd, past department chaplain of New York.

Anticipating criticism of the conclusions drawn by the report on UNESCO, the committee said:

"The subject matter of our research has been involved in furious controversy, making even more difficult a major and perhaps thankless assignment—an assignment given to us a year and a half ago, an assignment which we did not seek but a task we would not shirk; a task we have refused to shirk despite pressures put upon us to abandon it."

ALEXANDRIA, VA., MAY RAID NORFOLK FOR LEE STAMPS

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Aug. 20 (UP)—Alexandria, where Robert E. Lee spent his boyhood, threatened today to raid the Norfolk, Va., post office Sept. 21 and capture the first issue of a stamp honoring the Civil War general.

Norfolk, complained Alexandria Councilman Frank E. Mann, was Gen. U. S. Grant's headquarters during the siege of Petersburg, Va.

Mann advanced this plan for capturing the Lee stamps: Alexandrians will put up money for as many stamps as possible, a representative will fly to Norfolk, buy out the first issue and bring the stamps back on a return flight.

Alexandrians can then collect the stamps, rush to the post office and get them canceled.

BRIDEGROOM FACES FORGERY CHARGE, RING IS EVIDENCE

VENTURA, Calif., Aug. 20 (AP)—When Lenwood Andrew Jeane walked out with his bride from a wedding chapel today he received the traditional shower of rice. Also a warrant from police Lt. Ray Rude.

Jeane was booked on suspicion of forgery. Rude said he had paid for the wedding ring with a forged check. Rude took the ring from the bride and held it as evidence.

Town Rallies to Aid of Oriental Barred From Purchasing Home

Citizens of Garden Grove, Calif., Invite Sammy Lee, Olympic Star, to Try Again.

GARDEN GROVE, Calif., Aug. 20 (AP)—Things will be different the next time Dr. Sammy Lee comes to Garden Grove.

Lee, an Army major, a physician and a two-time Olympic diving champion, was rebuffed twice—because of Korean ancestry—when he tried to find a home here.

But yesterday citizens of Garden Grove, aroused by the news, rallied to Lee's support.

Realtors, physicians and politicians urged Lee, now serving with the Army Medical Corps at Fort Carson, Colo., to come to Orange County to find a home.

Said Lee: "My belief in the American people is substantiated."

The Long Beach Press-Telegram said that the major had accepted its offer to fly him and his family here.

Lee said, however, that an imminent addition to his family and studies for a medical specialty board examination might delay his return until October. He is due to be separated from the Army this fall.

His parents came to California from Korea 50 years ago. Because of his Oriental ancestry, two deals for homes fell through in Garden Grove, Lee said.

Yesterday, Joe Furr, president of the West Orange County Real Estate Board, offered to find Lee a home of his choice in the community, a city of 33,000 some 30 miles south of Los Angeles.

Garden Grove doctors organized an unofficial committee to support Lee, and the Orange County Medical Association reported it knew no reason why Lee could not be admitted immediately to membership.

Willis Warner, chairman of the Orange County Board of Supervisors, said he was shocked to learn what had happened to Lee. "We didn't have anything to do with it," he said. "A subdivider can put restrictions in deeds, but whether he can enforce them is another thing."

WIVES ON INSTALLMENT PLAN, ONE TO CUSTOMER PROPOSED

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—The sales of wives on the time payment plan may return to eastern Nigeria.

A Government committee investigating current prices paid to parents for brides has recommended a price freeze of $84 to be paid in installments. The committee recommended rationing, too—one wife.

The marriage mart of this British colony has been inflated since World War II by soldiers loaded with mustering-out pay.

ICEBOX, EMPTIED OF FOOD, PROVES TO BE DEATH TRAP

STEPPVILLE, Ala., Aug. 20 (AP)—A large electric refrigerator from which the food had been removed was a death trap yesterday for a baby boy, but his two sisters were revived.

Coroner Grady Moss said Jerry O'Neal Burns, 19 months old, was dead on arrivel at a nearby clinic. Geraldine Burns, 10 years old, and Elaine, 6, revived when fresh air reached their lungs.

Moss said the children were left at their farm home while the parents worked in a field. He said Terry Odell Burns, twin of the dead boy, apparently closed the door on the three after they crawled inside.

The mother, Mrs. James O. Burns, found them when she noticed the food was out of the refrigerator.

FREIGHT TRAIN HITS THREE STANDING LOCOMOTIVES

CLINTON, Ill., Aug. 20 (UP)—An Illinois Central freight train went through a switch point into train yards east of here and crashed into three standing locomotives today, derailing four engines and four cars. No one was injured.

At Du Quoin authorities are investigating the derailment of an Illinois Central engine apparently caused by spikes placed on the track. The locomotive was pulling an 81-car freight train Friday night when it was derailed near the Du Quoin station. Railroad officers said two spikes had been placed on the track.

SUDAN MUTINY SPREADS INTO THREE PROVINCES

Three Officers Reported Killed in Uprising of Native Army Units —Troops Flown In.

KHARTOUM, Aug. 20 (UP)—The mutiny of southern troops in the Sudanese army against their northern officers spread through three provinces of southern Sudan today despite government efforts to smother the rebellion.

The Sudanese government flew loyal troops from Khartoum to Torit and Juba in the south to smash the mutiny which began yesterday.

However, the uprising of the native troops was reported to have spread today to Yei, in Upper Nile province. The government said that the rebellion now has broken out in three provinces—Equatoria, Bahr el Ghazal and Upper Nile.

Began in Torit.

The uprising of the troops in the Sudanese defense forces began in Torit, in Equatoria, and spread to other garrisons.

Reports from the southern provinces said three officers were killed. However, the government pointed out that these reports were incomplete and that casualties were expected to be higher.

A state of emergency was declared in the three southern provinces last night by the office of Governor General Sir Knox Helm, who is vacationing in Scotland.

Meanwhile in northern Sudan the Planters Union at Gezira, south of Khartoum between the White Nile and the Blue Nile, called a mass strike to protest the jail sentences passed by a national tribunal on five union members.

President Included.

The union leaders included the president of the union, Sheikh el Amin Mohammed el Amin who was sentenced to eight months in prison for "terrorism" and disturbing the peace.

The disgruntled planters attempted to march on the provincial capital of Wad Medani but were halted by police.

Long staple cotton is grown by the planters on the huge Gezira irrigation scheme farms.

TWO U.S. CONGRESSMEN SEEK TO VISIT RED BALTIC STATES

MOSCOW, Aug. 20 (AP)—Two American Congressmen asked the Soviet government today for permission to visit the Soviet Baltic republics of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia. No Americans have been permitted in these republics since their absorption into the Soviet Union.

The Congressmen are Representatives Joseph R. Holt (Rep.), California, and John J. Rhodes (Rep.), Arizona, who are making their first visits to Russia. There was no indication whether permission to visit the closed areas would be granted.

BELGRADE, Aug. 20 (AP)—United States Senator George W. Malone (Rep.), Nevada, arrived here today with hopes of being the first high American official to enter Communist Bulgaria since 1950. He said Bulgarian Foreign Minister Mino Neychev has invited him to visit Bulgaria.

PRO-GERMAN PARTY REJECTS TRUCE IN SAAR VOTE DRIVE

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar, Aug. 20 (AP)—One of three pro-German parties fighting Europeanization of the Saar today rejected a truce in the violent Saar plebiscite campaign.

The truce proposal was submitted to all political parties yesterday by Belgian Senator Fernand Dehousse, chairman of the five-power commission which will supervise the Oct. 23 vote. It was aimed at ending bloody street demonstrations by pro-German parties.

The Democratic Party of the Saar (DPS), in a memorandum to the plebiscite commission, rejected the truce terms. It proposed instead that the government of Premier Johannes Hoffmann resign and new elections be held prior to the October plebiscite.

AIRMAN SCHMIDT SAYS HE AND WIFE MAY BE RECONCILED

CHILD'S MEADOWS, Calif., Aug. 20 (UP)—Airman Daniel C. Schmidt said today that "it's possible" he may be reconciled with his twice-married wife Una even though he filed for divorce against her charging "extreme cruelty."

"It's possible," Schmidt said when he was asked about a reconciliation. "I'm not saying yes or no. There is a possibility. I can't tell you any more than that."

It was the first time Schmidt had publicly spoken on his tangled marital affairs since he retained Sacramento attorney Howard Welch to obtain his divorce. Welch had quoted Schmidt as saying he was not interested in a reconciliation.

Schmidt was at this resort community in the Sierra Nevada with his wife's mother, Mrs. Walter Ferguson, and her husband. He came here yesterday after filing his divorce papers at Red Bluff, Calif.

"I am not going to try to get custody of the child now," Schmidt said. "I am just getting a divorce so far. I hope to get custody of the child later."

Schmidt left by automobile late today for Portland, Ore., to see his mother, Mrs. Nelli Peters.

prison camp. On receiving the cards, she asked government officials to try to obtain his release.

The State Department said Fields had been missing from his unit in Germany since June 2, 1948. His next of kin was listed as Mrs. Herman Bailes, Bayside, N. J. He was born June 1, 1919, in Brooklyn, N. Y. He enlisted in the Army in Germany on Feb. 17, 1947.

The Army records show Fields first enlisted in 1940 under the name of Feingersch and at that time gave an emergency address as Marvin Sirus, a cousin, New York City, and an uncle, Edward Sirus, care of general delivery, Brooklyn.

The Army records further showed that Fields's mother, who signed herself at different times as Mrs. May Feingersch and Mrs. Fields, wrote the Army on a number of occasions seeking information about the whereabouts of her son. The records do not show the present whereabouts of Mrs. Fields.

Reported by P.O.W.s.

The State Department said its July 16 note requesting the release of the two soldiers was in line with its "continued efforts" to obtain the release of Americans detained in Communist bloc countries. It said the presence of Cumish and Fields in Russia had been reported by returning prisoners of war of other nationalities.

The American embassy in Moscow was informed yesterday by the Soviet Foreign Office that these two and Hopkins would be released. Date and place for their release were not specified by the Soviets.

"The case of Frederick Charles Hopkins," said the Department, "has never been taken up with the Soviet government. His background and the circumstances of his case are unknown to us. Previous reports from prisoners of war returning from the Soviet Union had mentioned an American named 'Johnny' Hopkins as being held in the Soviet Union, but intensive efforts to trace a person by this name produced negative results."

serve, but had been done by employes of member banks.

An intensive search was begun in 1953 for the missing money by FBI agents who went out in large numbers to Michigan and Indiana looking for other bills. Other notes may have been picked up by them, although the agency has refused to comment on progress of the search.

Two former St. Louis policemen, Lt. Louis Shoulders and Patrolman Elmer Dolan, were sentenced to prison terms in 1954 for perjury in the inquiry which sought to determine what happened to the money.

Shoulders and Dolan arrested Hall, winning national attention for their work. Later, the Government charged they lied under oath about the handling of two of Hall's suitcases that were supposed to have contained almost all of the $600,000 ransom.

12TH AIR FORCE IN EUROPE FULLY CONVERTED TO JETS

RAMSTEIN, Germany, Aug. 20 (UP)—The United States Twelfth Air Force announced today it has completed its conversion into a fully jet-powered tactical striking force "capable of meeting any challenge."

The announcement was made by Maj. Gen. Robert M. Lee, the unit's commander, in a message marking the thirteenth anniversary of the Twelfth Air Force. America's major air contribution to the defense of Western Europe.

Lee said the addition of such jet planes as the RB57, the RF84F and the F86D have "tremendously increased" the Twelfth's firepower and weapons potential.

AIR FORCE FLYING WOMAN POLIO VICTIM FROM KOREA

TOKYO, Aug. 20 (UP)—A young American woman missionary, encased in a portable iron lung, was flown from Seoul to Tokyo today by a United States Air Force C-54 transport plane on her way home to the United States.

Mary Chisholm, 24-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Chisholm, missionaries of Berkeley, Calif., was stricken June 4 in Korea with poliomyelitis.

She was treated by Army doctors who twice believed that she had died. She is now en route to the University of Buffalo's Polio Respiratory Center at Buffalo, N. Y.

SAMUEL C. WAUGH NAMED EXPORT-IMPORT BANK HEAD

FRASER, Colo., Aug. 20 (UP)—President Eisenhower today appointed Samuel C. Waugh, assistant secretary of state for economic affairs, to be president of the Export-Import Bank.

Waugh, a Lincoln (Nebr.) Republican, will succeed Maj. Gen. Glen E. Edgerton, whose resignation was accepted today, effective Oct. 1.

Mr. Eisenhower said he was accepting Edgerton's resignation "with a great deal of regret" and praised him for a "capable job" at the helm of the United States-financed agency for loans abroad.

SEAMAN SAVED BY BLOOD DONATIONS BECOMES DONOR

GREAT LAKES NAVAL TRAINING STATION, Ill., Aug. 20 (UP)—A Pekin (Ill.) sailor whose life was twice saved by blood transfusions today became the first to answer an appeal for donors of a rare blood type.

Seaman Robert G. Hendricks, whose B-negative blood was twice augmented by donors, replied to the call for blood to help save the life of Arthur J. Follie. Follie's wife, an ex-Wave, wrote the Navy for help. She said her husband's life depends on daily transfusions.

The Navy published her letter here and Hendricks responded promptly.

SEN. KEFAUVER QUESTIONS VALUE OF P.O.W. CODE

'Fine Set of Principles for Club Conditions,' Senator Says in Letter to Wilson.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP) — Senator Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, said today he was dissatisfied with the "lack of anything substantial" in the newly-proclaimed code of military conduct.

In a caustic vein, Kefauver wrote to Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson terming the code "a fine patriotic set of principles which are excellent and beneficial for club conditions . . ."

"But," Kefauver continued, "I wonder how they would serve the man exhausted by battle, hungry, cold, facing hostile interrogators and the prospect of more suffering and unknown dangers any better than do the present articles of war . . ."

The Tennessee Senator, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, told Wilson he hopes "you will undertake a more thorough study of the treatment of returned prisoners of war and their needs for the future."

Kefauver made the letter public.

Stresses High Ideals.

President Eisenhower on Wednesday proclaimed the new military code which sets forth guideposts for the conduct of American fighting men, stressing the highest ideals of valor in an effort to strengthen them against severe tests in the front lines or in enemy prison camps.

The code was drawn up by a committee of high ranking retired military officers and civilian Pentagon officials.

Kefauver asked whether "as a nation (we) are playing square with some of the boys whose photographs I have seen in the papers upon returning home... boys who had but a few years of education, who now are labeled 'turncoats,' tried and given very little chance to resume the life of an American citizen."

Cites Circumstances.

The Senator said the United States "cannot condone a breakdown of military discipline in time of war but there are circumstances in these cases which a humane nation must take into consideration."

Kefauver suggested that "political criticism" of American participation in the Korean war may have caused some American servicemen to turn coat and sign "confessions."

He said this country's objectives in the Korean war "were confused by political propaganda," and added:

"These young boys before they left undoubtedly had heard some of the highly publicized and political criticism of the fight in which they were engaged—such phrases as 'useless war' and 'Truman's war'—many of them uttered right here on the floor of the Senate and by men who are now in highly important positions in the government from whence the new (code) emanates."

HARRIMAN 'UNHAPPY' OVER STAND ON CAPTIVE PEOPLES

The New York Herald-Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20—Gov. Averell Harriman said tonight that President Eisenhower should have taken the opportunity at Geneva "to insist that the Kremlin live up to its wartime agreements" of political freedom and free elections for eastern European nations.

"I am unhappy that President Eisenhower only mentioned the question of the captive peoples behind the Iron Curtain, and did not seize the occasion to insist that the Kremlin live up to its wartime agreements concerning these people." Harriman said.

Harriman spoke at the twentieth anniversary dinner of the Catholic War Veterans. James P. Mitchell, Secretary of Labor, also spoke.

UNESCO CLEARED OF RED CHARGES IN LEGION REPORT

Committee Says Agency Is Not Communistic and Opposes World Government.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Aug. 20 (INS)—A special committee of the American Legion issued a report today absolving the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization of charges that it is Communistic and seeks a world government.

The long report will be submitted to the national convention of the American Legion meeting in Miami, Fla., in October.

The report said:

"The special committee has reached conclusions at variance with opinions commonly held by adverse critics of UNESCO. Usually such critics charge that UNESCO is (a) atheistic, (b) communistic and—or—subversive (c) favorable and tending toward world government.

"The special committee specially finds:

"1. That UNESCO is not favorable toward world government; that the programs and functions of UNESCO are not such as to tend toward world government; that the United States National Commission for UNESCO, individually and as a group, are strongly opposed to world government.

"2. That UNESCO is not atheistic.

"3. That UNESCO in no sense or degree is communistic."

The report by the Legion's special committee was signed by Mrs. Harold S. Burdett, a past president of the Legion Auxiliary and present vice chairman of New York; Ray Murphy, past national commander and Legion chairman of Iowa; William G. McKinley, national executive committeeman of New Jersey; Jacob Ark, past department commander of New York; Paul M. Herbert, past department commander of Ohio; the Rev. Gordon L. Kidd, past department chaplain of New York.

Anticipating criticism of the conclusions drawn by the report on UNESCO, the committee said:

"The subject matter of our research has been involved in furious controversy, making even more difficult a major and perhaps thankless assignment—an assignment given to us a year and a half ago, an assignment which we did not seek but a task we would not shirk; a task we have refused to shirk despite pressures put upon us to abandon it."

ALEXANDRIA, VA., MAY RAID NORFOLK FOR LEE STAMPS

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Aug. 20 (UP)—Alexandria, where Robert E. Lee spent his boyhood, threatened today to raid the Norfolk, Va., post office Sept. 21 and capture the first issue of a stamp honoring the Civil War general.

Norfolk, complained Alexandria Councilman Frank E. Mann, was Gen. U. S. Grant's headquarters during the siege of Petersburg, Va.

Mann advanced this plan for capturing the Lee stamps: Alexandrians will put up money for as many stamps as possible, a representative will fly to Norfolk, buy out the first issue and bring the stamps back on a return flight.

Alexandrians can then collect the stamps, rush to the post office and get them canceled.

BRIDEGROOM FACES FORGERY CHARGE, RING IS EVIDENCE

VENTURA, Calif., Aug. 20 (AP)—When Lenwood Andrew Jeane walked out with his bride from a wedding chapel today he received the traditional shower of rice. Also a warrant from police Lt. Ray Rude.

Jeane was booked on suspicion of forgery. Rude said he had paid for the wedding ring with a forged check. Rude took the ring from the bride and held it as evidence.

Town Rallies to Aid of Oriental Barred From Purchasing Home

Citizens of Garden Grove, Calif., Invite Sammy Lee, Olympic Star, to Try Again.

GARDEN GROVE, Calif., Aug. 20 (AP)—Things will be different the next time Dr. Sammy Lee comes to Garden Grove.

Lee, an Army major, a physician and a two-time Olympic diving champion, was rebuffed twice—because of Korean ancestry—when he tried to find a home here.

But yesterday citizens of Garden Grove, aroused by the news, rallied to Lee's support.

Realtors, physicians and politicians urged Lee, now serving with the Army Medical Corps at Fort Carson, Colo., to come to Orange County to find a home.

Said Lee: "My belief in the American people is substantiated."

The Long Beach Press-Telegram said that the major had accepted its offer to fly him and his family here.

Lee said, however, that an imminent addition to his family and studies for a medical specialty board examination might delay his return until October. He is due to be separated from the Army this fall.

His parents came to California from Korea 50 years ago. Because of his Oriental ancestry, two deals for homes fell through in Garden Grove, Lee said.

Yesterday, Joe Furr, president of the West Orange County Real Estate Board, offered to find Lee a home of his choice in the community, a city of 33,000 some 30 miles south of Los Angeles.

Garden Grove doctors organized an unofficial committee to support Lee, and the Orange County Medical Association reported it knew no reason why Lee could not be admitted immediately to membership.

Willis Warner, chairman of the Orange County Board of Supervisors, said he was shocked to learn what had happened to Lee. "We didn't have anything to do with it," he said. "A subdivider can put restrictions in deeds, but whether he can enforce them is another thing."

WIVES ON INSTALLMENT PLAN, ONE TO CUSTOMER PROPOSED

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—The sales of wives on the time payment plan may return to eastern Nigeria.

A Government committee investigating current prices paid to parents for brides has recommended a price freeze of $84 to be paid in installments. The committee recommended rationing, too—one wife.

The marriage mart of this British colony has been inflated since World War II by soldiers loaded with mustering-out pay.

ICEBOX, EMPTIED OF FOOD, PROVES TO BE DEATH TRAP

STEPPVILLE, Ala., Aug. 20 (AP)—A large electric refrigerator from which the food had been removed was a death trap yesterday for a baby boy, but his two sisters were revived.

Coroner Grady Moss said Jerry O'Neal Burns, 19 months old, was dead on arrivel at a nearby clinic. Geraldine Burns, 10 years old, and Elaine, 6, revived when fresh air reached their lungs.

Moss said the children were left at their farm home while the parents worked in a field. He said Terry Odell Burns, twin of the dead boy, apparently closed the door on the three after they crawled inside.

The mother, Mrs. James O. Burns, found them when she noticed the food was out of the refrigerator.

FREIGHT TRAIN HITS THREE STANDING LOCOMOTIVES

CLINTON, Ill., Aug. 20 (UP)—An Illinois Central freight train went through a switch point into train yards east of here and crashed into three standing locomotives today, derailing four engines and four cars. No one was injured.

At Du Quoin authorities are investigating the derailment of an Illinois Central engine apparently caused by spikes placed on the track. The locomotive was pulling an 81-car freight train Friday night when it was derailed near the Du Quoin station. Railroad officers said two spikes had been placed on the track.

ST. LOUIS FLOOD PROTECTION PLAN IS NOT COMPLETE

Army Engineers Need 2 Years After Funds Are Voted Before Work Can Begin.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—At least two years will be required to complete planning the $130,987,000 flood protection program for St. Louis, an Army engineer told the Post-Dispatch today.

This means that even if Congress, in the new session convening next January, appropriates money to plan the project, construction probably cannot begin before 1957 or 1958. The Corps of Engineers has estimated that construction will take at least six years.

Col. Howard W. Penney, assistant chief of civil works for flood control, said pre-construction planning of the St. Louis program would "take at least two years and probably more" because of the size of the project.

Karsten Urges Action.

He made the estimate after Representative Frank M. Karsten (Dem.), St. Louis, urged Maj. Gen. Samuel D. Sturgis Jr., chief of Army Engineers, to submit a request to the Bureau of the Budget for planning funds, so that an appropriation bill covering planning can be introduced in January.

Karsten told the Post-Dispatch that when House and Senate committees held hearings on the project in the last session, he "got the impression" the Corps of Engineers would be ready to go ahead with construction when the program was authorized and when federal funds were appropriated.

Karsten said he thought other witnesses at the hearings "got the same impression, but apparently that wasn't the case—the planning has not been completed." He criticized the engineers for "not making this clear."

Normal Procedure.

Col. Penney, who was present at the hearings, acknowledged that the matter of additional required planning was not discussed before the House and Senate groups. He said normal procedure calls for detailed planning on any project to be begun only after the project is authorized.

An appropriation bill covering planning will be introduced at the next session of Congress if the engineers forward a request to the Budget Bureau in time, Karsten said.

Penney told the Post-Dispatch he had instructed the division engineer for the lower Mississippi river, at Vicksburg, Miss., and the district engineer at St. Louis to prepare estimates on how much it will cost to make detailed plans for the project.

Funds for step-by-step planning of actual construction will come from the federal contribution of $123,020,000 authorized by Congress, Penney explained.

In his letter to Gen. Sturgis, Karsten said it would be "most helpful if your office could submit a request to the Bureau of the Budget as promptly as possible, in order that funds can be made available for the planning work to get underway early next year."

This, he continued, would "provide reassurance to the people of St. Louis that everything possible is being done to expedite the flood control program which has been approved by the Congress."

Karsten said he was considering asking for some construction funds in January, as well as the planning appropriation. "It seems inconceivable that the Corps of Engineers is not ready to make some kind of start on construction, after all the time they have had for planning," he told the Post-Dispatch.

The flood project, consisting of a series of earthen embankments and concrete floodwalls on the west bank of the Mississippi river at St. Louis, would protect against a flood stage of up to 52 feet.

St. Louis voters have approved a $7,547,000 bond issue to defray the city's contribution to the project. The program was drawn up by the Corps of Engineers after a long study.

Two sections, or reaches, were included in the authorization bill approved by Congress and the President. They would extend from Maline creek to Chippewa street and would include protection for the Chain of Rocks waterworks.

SOCIAL SECURITY CREDITS FOR SERVICE MEN EXTENDED

Earning of Social Security wage credits for active service in any branch of the armed forces has been extended until April 1956 under a recent amendment to the social security law, T. L. Gaukel, social security administration manager here, announced today.

An earlier provision permitting $160-a-month social security wage credits while in active service expired July 1. At least 90 days of service are required for eligibility, except for those who die on duty or who are discharged because of service-connecteed disability.

Military wage credits count toward old-age and survivors insurance payments just as if they were credits from civilian jobs covered by social security for wages of $160 a month. The military credits are not added to social security records annually, but are put into the record at the time a claim is made for payments.

MISSOURI-ILLINOIS RESERVISTS PARADE

Annual Review of 102nd Infantry Division Held at Camp McCoy.

By THEODORE P. WAGNER
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CAMP McCOY, Wis., Aug. 20—A scene that never seems to grow old, the pomp and color of a military parade, was re-enacted here today when 2000 Army reservists from Missouri and Illinois held their annual review on a dusty parade ground.

The men, members of the 102nd Infantry Reserve Division are on summer maneuvers at this Fifth Army training center. With members of their families and other visitors looking on, they passed in review in solid ranks of khaki to the music of an Army band. A stiff breeze tempered the heat and whipped colors and guidons above the polished helmets of the marching men.

Reviewing the troops were Maj. Gen. L. J. Sverdrup, commander of the 102nd Division, and his guest, Maj. Gen. George Olmsted, commander of the 103rd Infantry Division.

The latter division from Iowa and Minnesota completed its training program here today.

St. Louis Represented.

St. Louis was represented in the parade by the 407th Infantry Regiment commanded by Col. W. L. Hunker Jr., 25 Heather Hill, Olivette, and the division artillery of Brig. Gen. William H. Harrison, 51 Kingsbury place. The artillery passed in review in jeeps and trucks with field pieces trailing from the trucks.

The Second Battalion of the 407th Infantry was led by Lt. Col. Arthur C. Biedenstein, 3937A Shaw boulevard, a veteran of Bataan who was a prisoner of the Japanese.

Lt. Col. Philip P. Corneli, of the 327th Engineer Battalion of St. Louis, led the engineers' rifle team to victory over the three infantry regiments in the annual division rifle matches yesterday. Corneli, who lives at Mehlville and was graduated last June from the Missouri School of Mines, scored 248 points of a possible 280. He will receive the individual rifle trophy at a parade ceremony next week.

Field Exercises Scheduled.

On Monday the 2000 members of the division will swing into a series of field exercises, overnight bivouacs, in the final week of summer training. Tuesday the three infantry regiments and supporting elements will carry out a division attack in a problem designed to train commanders in reaching decisions and subordinates in handling troops in the field.

The following day the 327th Engineers and the 327th Medical Battalion will conduct field exercises involving perimeter defense, security, sanitation and map reading. The medical battalion exercise will include evacuation of wounded by helicopter.

Master Sgt. Howard J. Cissell, 829 Lanvale drive, Webster Groves, was promoted to warrant officer yesterday. Cissell is attached to the division surgeon's office.

JAPS TO GIVE CHIANG BACK ART ITEMS TAKEN IN 1937

OSAKA, Japan, Aug. 20 (AP)—Sixty-one art objects taken by Japanese troops from the home of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in Nanking, China, 18 years ago will be returned soon.

They were placed in the custody of Kenzo Ueno, president of the Ueno Construction Co. of Maizuru City, Japan. Kyodo said he buried them in Japan during the United States occupation, but dug them up, still in good condition, last year.

The Nationalist Chinese Government was informed. The objects will be returned through the Nationalist embassy in Japan.

BRITAIN REPORTED BACKING U.S. ON RED CHINA IN U.N.

LONDON, Aug. 20 (UP)—Britain has agreed with the United States to delay until next year any consideration in the United Nations General Assembly of Communist China's admission to U.N., informed sources said today.

RESEARCH ROCKET FIRED VERTICALLY FROM JET FIGHTER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (UP)—The Navy has a new method for getting research rockets into the upper atmosphere. It launches them from jet fighter planes.

The Navy announced yesterday that a jet fighter fired a research rocket to an altitude of 90,000 feet at the Chincoteague (Va.) naval air station this week. The Banshee fighter climbed to 30,000 feet and vertically launched the rocket. This is termed "rockair" technique.

The Navy had previously launched rockets from high altitude balloons. It said the rock-air method's chief advantage over the balloon is that aircraft can control the direction of the rocket launchings.

The Navy said the system may be used during the forthcoming International Geophysical Year for upper atmosphere measurements over a broad geographical area.

RESERVISTS UNDERGO INTERROGATION TEST

None of Them Cracks—Drill Acquaints Them With Red Tactics.

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif., Aug. 20 (AP)—Marine air reservists from squadrons in the western two-thirds of the nation were put through the rigors of an interrogation as a climax of their summer training, but none of them cracked.

The drill came on the heels of the new code of conduct for American prisoners of war which President Eisenhower signed into effect Wednesday.

It was designed to acquaint reservists—pilots who would be called to duty in any future war—with the tactics of interrogation and abuse that faced prisoners of the Korean war.

Briefing officers called attention to the new code before the 30 pilots were put out in the rugged foothills of Camp Pendleton Thursday and told to head for a "safe" area across the hills six tortuous miles away.

Waiting for them in the hills were the "aggressors"—some 60 regular marines of the First Amphibious Reconnaissance company.

A review of the exercise, released today, showed 60 per cent of them were captured but that not one of these men gave information that would have proved militarily useful to an enemy.

The captured reservists were questioned and then made to exercise to the point of near exhaustion. Their clothing was removed and they were placed in hot cages or pits that were too shallow for standing and too cramped for sitting. They were denied food, water and tobacco.

The men were brought out periodically and offered certain rewards for co-operation. If they refused, they were subjected to more punishment.

An "informer" planted among them goaded the tired, blindfolded pilots to "talk and get it over with."

Lt. Col. Frank Walton, a reservist and member of the Los Angeles police department, acted as chief interrogator. He said that although the treatment lasted only a few hours, the captured pilots got a taste of techniques used by the Chinese Communists and North Koreans.

Pilots participating in the escape and evasion exercise, all volunteers, included men from St. Louis.

WORLD CONGRESS TO STUDY CAUSES OF DELINQUENCY

500 Experts From 59 Countries Open Meeting Tomorrow Under U.N. Auspices.

By ROBERT MUSEL

GENEVA, Aug. 20 (UP)—No one seems to be able to understand kids these days.

Take the United States. It has the highest standard of living in the world. Junior has a television set, good clothes, a nice home, plenty of sports equipment and maybe his own or use of the family car.

Hardly a finger is laid upon him—pschiatrists have convinced his parents he will grow up to hate them if they do.

So the United States has one of the highest—if not the highest—juvenile delinquency rate in the world.

Now take Britain. It was bombed heavily in the last war, which the United States was not. It is only now beginning to emerge into some reasonable form of prosperity. Its parents are pretty strict and in school the teacher can use stick on pupils if he thinks it necessary.

Yet England's juvenile delinquency rate keeps dropping while America's keeps soaring.

It is pretty much as baffling a problem in the rest of the world, too. Tomorrow approximately 500 experts from 59 countries are meeting under United Nations auspices here to study the causes, symptoms and possible cure of juvenile delinquency.

The meeting is officially the first United Nations World Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders. It will also discuss treatment of prisoners, training of prison officials and types of prisons.

So far neither Russia nor any of its satellites has said it will attend. But this is not because there is no such dilemma there—even though Communists often try to make it appear so. Many complaints have appeared in Russian newspapers of juvenile ruffians and loafers in long hair and zoot suits and the Russians, at least, might make a last minute decision to attend the congress.

The United Nations has gathered a library-full of reports on juvenile delinquency. Delegates will study a volume prepared by the secretariat of the United Nations which digests conclusions reached at regional and international conferences in recent years.

There are many other documents drafted by specialized agencies such as the World Health Organization, UNESCO and the International Labor Organization. A team of specialists has drawn up a survey of practical programs to combat juvenile delinquency, now in operation.

In countries with a very high standard of living such as the United States, prosperity itself tends to pull apart the family: Both parents may be working and the natural cohesion of the family has to compete with such attractions as television, the theater, films, the automobile and all the other forms of recreation available to children from the age of 14 up.

It is natural for parents to want their children to have as much as possible out of life, but at what point does indulgence begin to breed juvenile delinquency? The congress hopes it will produce some guidance for parents.

In countries such as Spain, France and Italy children do not have the advantages of the American child. This leads to increased dependence on the family. But is this the reason their delinquency rate is lower? Superficially that seems to be so but again the congress will try to reach some helpful conclusion.

One thing seems to be certain: A child who has a sense of belonging to the family, a sense that he is important to the welfare of the family is usually a better child.

Definitions of juvenile delinquency vary. In some countries a child who smokes without permission is branded as one.

The rate of increase of juvenile delinquency is "appalling," said Dr. Manuel Lopez Rey of the social and economic department of the United Nations. Dr. Rey, who organized the congress, said:

"Seventy per cent of adult offenders, according to our reports, started a life of crime between the ages of 14 and 22."

Seminole Going Modern.

CLEWISTON, Fla. (AP)—Most of the Seminole Indians in the Everglades live in primitive chickees — tiny open shelters consisting only of a thatched roof mounted on four poles. But 15 Indian families on the Big Cypress reservation have wired their chickees and are receiving electricity from a rural electrification administration line running 50 miles from here to their settlement.

3 JEWEL THIEVES TRACKED DOWN BY BLOODHOUNDS

Captured After Exchange of Fire—Stole $25,000 in Gems, Watches in Atlanta.

HAZLEHURST, Ga., Aug. 20 (UP)—Three California men who robbed an Atlanta jewelry shop of $25,000 worth of gems were chased to cover with bloodhounds and captured today after an exchange of fire in which one of the fugitives was wounded.

Before the capture, the three had disarmed three officers at a roadblock near this southeast Georgia town and rode up and down a waiting line of automobiles shooting out tires.

The robbers, who had the jewelry store loot of watches, rings and other valuables in a paper sack when they were caught, were identified as Frank Lore, 33 years old, Bob Herrera, 32, and Dewitt Talmadge Byrd, 40. Sheriff Elaz Hatton of Jeff Davis county said all have criminal records in California. Byrd was on parole from a California prison at the time.

Stopped at Check Point.

More than 50 officers including state troopers, Georgia Bureau of Investigation agents and local authorities converged on this area after the robbers' car was stopped at a check point between Hazlehurst and Uvalda, 200 miles from Atlanta, last night.

The driver of the car pulled his pistol and the three disarmed the road block officers. After shooting out the tires of police cars the, they made their getaway but abandoned their car about a mile from here this morning.

Pursuing officers turned bloodhounds on the trail of the men and brought them to cover in an area of woods and fields near Hazlehurst.

Robbers Open Fire.

In no mood to give up, the robbers opened fire, according to G.B.I. Lt. H. M. Spurlin and in the exchange Byrd was hit in the leg with a police bullet. No one else was wounded.

Spurlin said 10 or 12 shots were fired before the capture was completed.

The men were brought to jail here and were charged with shooting at the officers. They also faced armed robbery charges in Montgomery county where they disarmed the police last night in addition to the holdup in Atlanta.

Sheriff Hatton said the arrested men appeared to show no fear from their experience.

Inside Turn Fails.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—(UP—Daniel McCarthy was captured by police when he tried to make a right turn in his automobile. The car had already smashed through a plate glass display window in a vacant store, and McCarthy tried to make a turn inside the store and leave via another window. The car stalled.

NONSTRIKER WINS $18,450 AWARD IN SUIT AGAINST UAW

DECATUR, Ala., Aug. 20 (AP)—N. A. Palmer, an employe of the Wolverine Tube Division, has been awarded $18,450 damages against the CIO United Automobile Workers.

Palmer is one of 30 Wolverine workers suing the union as a result of a 1951 strike. The award by a Morgan county circuit court jury Thursday was the largest of four judgements against the union. The others still are in litigation.

All the suits were for $50,000. They charged that the union was responsible for the loss in wages and "mental anguish." Suing employes said they were prevented from working by violence and threats of violence.

American Economy in High Gear--- Washington Applies Brakes Gently

Administration Seeking to Stretch Out Present Prosperity at Least to 1956 Election Time.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.

WITH employment at a record 64,995,000 persons last month and the gross national product reaching a record annual rate of 385 billion dollars during the second quarter of this year, the Eisenhower Administration is trying to slow down economic expansion to stretch out prosperity—at least until the presidential and congressional elections next year.

So far, the brakes have been pushed down gently by the Treasury Department, the Federal Reserve Board, the Federal Housing and Veterans' administrations. What these officials fear is credit inflation which induces business men to build up excessive inventories and consumers to over-obligate their current incomes for purchases of homes, durable goods and securities.

Credit inflation, which is based on "easy money," differs from ordinary inflation, which we had immediately after World War II and at the start of the Korean hostilities, when there was more money than goods available. At present, there is adequate production capacity in the United States to meet the gradually increasing demands for more goods and services. A "tight money" policy, which the Eisenhower Administration tried in early 1953, can cause a recession. The 1929 crash was started primarily by credit inflation, especially in the stock markets.

THE PRESENT RESTRICTIONS, based mainly on monetary controls such as higher interest rates, more stringent credit terms for home mortgages, higher marginal requirements for common stock purchases, have been in effect several weeks and the most evident effect has been to cause a small decline in the security markets.

Business, nevertheless, continues to boom; employment and corporate profits continue to climb. All are inter-related, of course, and the Republicans, as could be expected, are claiming the credit and jeering at those Democrats who early last year were warning of "gloom and doom" unless the Government took a hand in stimulating business.

The Democrats, if their man were in the White House running the executive departments, would undoubtedly have claimed the credit for prosperity and the Republicans would be the critics.

Actually, the boom is worldwide except for the satellite countries of Soviet Russia. England is definitely threatened by inflation because there is more money than goods in that kingdom and the same is true in Communist Russia to a less measurable extent.

West Germany is expanding its economy faster than any country in Europe. France, Italy, Switzerland, Belgium, Holland and the Scandinavian countries are enjoying solid prosperity. Even little Finland, now that she has paid her heavy reparations to Russia, is busier than ever. Latin America, which produces foods and raw materials, is cashing in on world prosperity.

On the other hand, the Soviet satellites are being drained of many of their industrial and agricultural products to build up the Russian economy.

Historically, the world is in one of the postwar booms that usually follow major conflicts. England's great industrial expansion occurred during and after the Napoleonic wars, because it, like the United States in World Wars I and II, had not been invaded by a destructive enemy. At that time, England was the greatest industrial nation in the world, just as the United States is today.

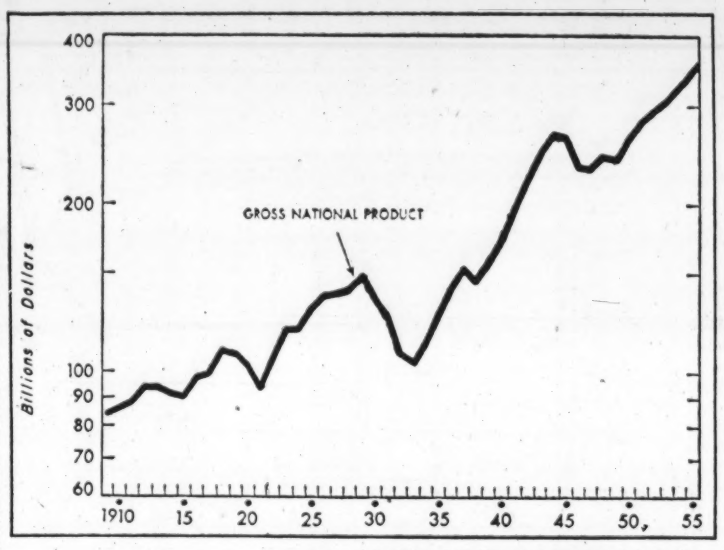
The United States, beginning with the Truman Administration's loan to Great Britain, the Marshall Plan and the mutual economic and military aid programs, has been the stimulant and support for world prosperity. In addition to the direct help with goods and money to the free world, American purchases abroad have given the other nations the dollars they must have for many of their international transactions. The need for direct stimulation and support is declining but an American depression, even a recession, would have serious reverberations abroad.

Even today the 36 billion dollars the United States is spending on its own and collective defenses is a major factor in our own and the world's prosperity, but the last three years have demonstrated that these expenditures can be gradually reduced without seriously affecting the domestic economy.

One reason for this is that while 36 billion dollars would have been a determining factor in the prewar years, it is now less than 10 per cent of our gross national product, the term used to cover the value of all goods and services produced during the year, whether actually paid for in dollars or not.

Gross national product, for many years below 100 billion dollars, has gone up from last year's 360.5 billion dollars to an annual rate, based on the second quarter of 1955, of 385 billion dollars.

More understandable terms are "national income" which, in oversimplified terms, covers total money actually received by persons and corporations, and "personal incomes," the compensation, rent, interest, dividends and benefits paid to individuals.



—From the United States Department of Commerce.

THE GROSS NATIONAL PRODUCT has increased an average of 3 per cent a year since 1910.

Figures for these two items are also at record highs. For the second quarter of this year, national income was at the annual rate of 320 billion dollars in comparison with 300 billion for 1954 and 73 billion for 1939.

Personal income for the second quarter was at the annual rate of 300.5 billion dollars compared with 288 billion last year, 178 billion dollars in 1946 and 73 billion dollars in 1939.

The figures with the most forceful bearing on the domestic economy are contained in "disposal personal income," which covers the money left to individuals after they have paid their personal taxes.

Last year the amount of personal money available for spending was 255 billion dollars. In the second quarter of this year it was at the annual rate of 267 billion dollars, an increase of 12 billion. In 1954 individuals saved a total of 18.3 billion dollars, or 7.2 per cent of the total; in the quarter just ended, they saved 16.6 billion dollars, or 6.2 per cent of the total.

Personal consumption expenditures in 1954 amounted to 236.5 billion dollars, of which 29.3 billion was for durable goods, 120.9 billion for non-durables and 86.4 billion for services, which includes rents, medical expenses and the like.

In the second quarter of this year, expenditures for durables went up to an annual rate of 35.1 billion—an increase of 5.8 billion; non-durables to 125.3 billion—increase of 5.4 billion, and services to 90.2 billion—increase of 3.8 billion over last year.

The foregoing figures are officially reported in dollars current at the time and thus do not reflect the inflation that has occurred since 1939 and 1946. The 1954 and 1955 figures are more realistic because the price index has fluctuated downward a little.

THE MOST EASILY UNDERSTOOD figures in Government reporting are the per capita disposal income statistics, which have been adjusted to what are called "constant dollars." In this category the standard is 1954 prices.

Official figures made public this week show that the per capita—not per family—annual income, based on a population of 165,000,000, was at the annual rate of $1620 during the second quarter this year. This compared with $1569 in 1954, an increase of $51. In 1954 dollars, however, the present estimated personal income was worth $1627, an increase of $58 in buying power.

These figures show what inflation has done to current dollars. In 1939 the per capita disposal income was $538 in then current dollars as compared with $1620 projected for this year.

If both are translated into 1954 dollars, however, the $538 becomes $1041 and the $1620 becomes $1627. Therefore, he is about 56 per cent better off than in 1939.

Measured by current or constant dollars, almost every American is better off this year than ever before, with the grand exception of the farmers, whose gross and net incomes have been declining since 1951; and the coal miners.

Gross farm income has decreased from 36.9 billion dollars in 1951 to an estimate annual rate of 33.3 billion as of the second quarter this year. Farm production expenses during this period have remained almost constant around 22.4 billion. The net income per farm, even when the number of farms has declined from 5,596,000 to 5,364,000, has decreased from $2877 to $2050, calculated in 1954 dollars. The parity price index, which measures the prices of what the farmers buy against prices they receive, was at a low of 84 on July 15 as compared with 115 in 1947.

CORPORATE PROFITS are running at a record annual level, but have not reached the peak attained in the fourth quarter of 1950, when the price inflation during the first six months of the Korean war shot profits to what would have been an annual rate of more than 49 billion dollars.

Actually, there had been a minor slump in the first half of 1950 and the actual rate for that year was 40 billion dollars. This year, corporate profits ran at an annual rate of 40.9 billion dollars for the first quarter and at 42.5 billion dollars for the second quarter, with no slackening in sight. There is every indication that corporate profits this year will go about the previous record of 41.2 billion set in 1951. Last year they were 34 billion and in 1953, usually considered the soundest business year, they were 38.3 billion. Dividend payments, as estimated by Government statisticians, will go above 10 billion dollars, the record amount paid last year.

The underlying foundation of the present prosperity is virtually full employment at gradually increasing wages. The total civilian labor force is estimated at 67,465,000 persons, with 64,995,000 employed, 157,000 on temporary lay-offs and 2,471,000 unemployed during the second quarter. Unemployment is put at 3.7 per cent, the lowest figure since 1950 to 1952 inclusive when it fluctuated between 2.5 and 3 per cent.

Unemployment usually increases during June and July because of the influx of high school and college students seeking temporary jobs and graduates seeking permanent jobs. Agricultural employment increased from 7,486,000 in July last year to 7,704,000 in July this year and non-agricultural employment increased from 54,661,000 in July last year to 57,291,000 this year. Officials said that unusually brisk hiring of students, mostly in trade and service industries, accounted for most of the job rise. In manufacturing industries, however, employment increased from 15,835,000 in July 1954 to 16,557,000 in July this year, an increase of 722,000 persons.

Officials say that while automation and other labor savings devices have caused unemployment in some localities and some plants there is as yet no evidence they will cause permanent and widespread loss of jobs.

So far the wage increases have not yet increased the general cost of living although prices have gone up on specific products such as lumber, rubber, metals, machinery and motor vehicles. The June cost of living index—the latest—was 114.4, as compared with 115.1 in June last year. Wage costs per unit of output, with 1947-49 as 100, were 108.9 in 1951, 111.2 in 1954 and are now at 110.2.

The sharp rise this year in the gross national product, which combines and reflects all the other economic factors of the country, recalls predictions by Presidents Truman and Eisenhower.

In his final economic message to Congress in January 1953, Truman asserted that if intelligent economic policies, governmental and private, were followed, the country by 1963 could attain consumer production equal to $2000 for every man, woman and child. He said that by that time a labor force of 76,000,000 to 80,000,000 workers, with more effective tools and a shorter work week, could create a gross national product of between 475 and 500 billion dollars.

President Eisenhower in his economic message last January said that a gross national product of 500 billion dollars could be reached by 1965. Like President Truman, he spoke of dollars with constant buying power and conditioned his prediction on the following of sound economic policies.

These predictions were based on an increase of output at 3 per cent annually, compounded. Historically, this percentage rate fluctuates. It is based on population growth, increased efficiency by workers using more power and machinery and on exploitation by management of the latest inventions and discoveries. It spurts up after a war to fill the backlog of civilian demands and to rehabilitate devastated areas. It can be stimulated or slowed down by governmental action. It was stimulated last year by tax reductions which made more money available for consumer and business spending. It is being slowed down by mild clamps on business and consumer credit.

The rate of increase in the gross national product has political significance because other things being equal the voters usually vote for the administration which promises peace and prosperity, already the Republican slogan for next year.

A mild recession next year would hurt Republican chances of winning. By applying the credit and other restrictions during the next few months, the Administration could release them next year and maybe give a tax reduction to boot.

Mayor vs. Aldermen Fight Over New City Charter--- St. Louis Future at Stake

Tucker's Administration Plans to Introduce a Bill in October, Calling for Election of Freeholders to Revise Municipal Charter—Aldermen Seek to Keep 'County Offices' Political Patronage.

By ROBERT A. DUNLAP
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

A GOOD hot fight promises to enliven the St. Louis political scene this fall and the stakes are nothing less than the kind of municipal government that will serve the city for the next 20 to 30 years. In one corner will be Mayor Raymond R. Tucker who wants a board of freeholders elected to review the present city charter and submit a new one if that seems the best way to meet the present needs of the city. In the other corner will be a majority of the Board of Aldermen who realize the need of bringing the city government up to date but who are fearful a new charter may bring the so-called county offices under civil service and thus deprive them of their last area of political patronage.

One of the first acts of Mayor Tucker's administration, after the Board of Aldermen resumes its session in October, will be the introduction of a bill for election of a board of freeholders, the Mayor said yesterday.

"Then the fight will be on," he said grimly. "Then the people of St. Louis will be presented with a clear cut issue. That issue is whether the charter is to be revised by a group of citizens, elected for that purpose, or whether the Board of Aldermen, whose members have a vested interest in the present form of government, are to do the job."

The issue is posed by the current efforts of the aldermanic legislation committee to draft a series of charter amendments to be presented to the people for a "Yes" or "No" vote at some, as yet undetermined, date. The legislation committee allowed a previous ordinance for a board of charter freeholders to die but later approved a bill for an election last June 21. That bill passed the board but was vetoed by the Mayor because the date fell too close to the bond issue election of May 26, when voters approved a $110,639,000 program of civic improvements.

MAYOR TUCKER

The aldermanic effort is regarded as a move to head off the election of a board of freeholders who might go farther than their predecessors in 1950 toward placing the county offices under the city's personnel system and thus remove the last remaining field of political spoils.

THE LEGISLATION COMMITTEE has produced thus far nine amendments. They appear to be a redrafting of a number of provisions of the proposed city charter which Mayor Tucker, as chairman of a board of freeholders, helped to frame. The charter was defeated in the primary election of August, 1950, largely through the efforts of the professional politicians.

Means by which it was defeated included, among others, a carefully instilled fear of the earnings tax authorization which that charter proposal contained. That weapon is no longer available since the earnings tax amendment to the present charter was adopted by the voters at an election last Oct. 1. It is now a permanent source of municipal taxation.

Alderman Anton Niemeyer, Eighth Ward Democrat, chairman of the legislation committee, has announced that with the nine amendments so far drafted, the committee has concluded the non-controversial aspects of its task. He listed civil service as one of the more controversial amendments the committee would tackle.

One provision of the proposed 1950 charter the committee is not likely to copy is that which would have given the city budgetary control over the county offices. These offices include the circuit attorney, clerk of the circuit court, clerk of the circuit court for criminal causes, clerk of the court of criminal correction, constables, coroner, prosecuting attorney, public administrator, recorder of deeds and sheriff. The salaries and number of employes are fixed by state law but are paid by the city. The Legislature permits the city to levy a tax of 35 cents on the $100 of valuation to finance these state-controlled offices. The tax yields about $4,000,000 annually but the cost of operating these offices and other state-controlled courts and commissions is about $14,000,000 annually.

While there would be little aldermanic enthusiasm for giving the city home rule over its county offices, thus losing a source of patronage, there is likely to be even less eagerness to tinker with the Board of Aldermen itself. Yet, recent legislative history of that body, two of whose members are now serving time in the Workhouse for dereliction in office, has left many thoughtful citizens with the conviction that a better and more responsible type of alderman is badly needed. The widespread practice of aldermanic courtesy, whereby a particular alderman is given life and death power over any measure that he declares affects only his ward, reinforces this conviction.

It has been suggested that instead of 28 aldermen elected in the wards, the legislative body might well be elected at large and reduced to a size that would permit each member to get a larger picture of his city's needs instead of the narrow requirements of his own constituents.

The fact that thoughtful consideration of such possibilities should certainly be undertaken by any group entrusted with reform of the city government brings into sharp focus the Mayor's complaint against the present efforts of the legislation committee.

IT IS THE MAYOR'S BELIEF that determination of the kind of municipal government the citizens want is strictly a citizen responsibility that should not be left to city officials with a large stake in the status quo.

"It is inconceivable to me that the framers of our present charter ever envisioned that it might be rewritten by the Board of Aldermen," he said recently.

He has another cogent objection to the amendment procedure. It is likely that the voter will find as many proposed amendments on his ballot as the 26 items which he faced in the recent bond issue election. Many of these will be interdependent. It is possible that some of these proposals will be passed and others defeated, with the result that the city could be placed in a highly embarrassing position.

The Mayor cited a recent election in an Indiana town where voters approved an amendment that eliminated the mayor as head of the government but defeated another amendment that would have established a city manager in his place. The result was that the city was left without a chief executive.

Mayor Tucker makes the point that neither he nor the Board of Aldermen has the right to dictate the propositions that will ultimately be presented to the voters, either by the aldermen or a board of freeholders. While he prefers a new charter, he is perfectly aware that a board of freeholders might decide to submit a few amendments, a new charter or submit nothing at all in the belief that the present charter is adequate to the city's needs. He does believe strongly that such a de-

Italian Communists Hope to Cash In on 'Peace' Theme

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ROME, Aug. 20.

THE Italian Communist party which is the largest and most shrewdly directed of any in the West, has not been slow in the aftermath of the summit conference to exploit the new theme of "peace, it's wonderful." Because of the power of the party and the resourcefulness of the men who direct it, Italy promises to become a testing ground to determine whether it is possible for a western democracy to remain comparatively strong and prepared in a new era of relaxing tensions.

There are knowledgeable observers here who believe that the test is at hand. The new President, Giovanni Gronchi, has talked confidently in the past of "the opening to the left" and it is a phrase widely repeated today.

A left-wing member of the Christian Democratic party, Gronchi has believed that a program of far-reaching social reform would win away many of the adherents of Communism and more particularly the followers of Pietro Nenni, who led most of the Socialists into the Communist camp and has kept them there. This is the opening or opportunity which Gronchi foresaw before he came to power, thanks to a weird combination of the votes of right-wing Christian Democrats and Communists.

Whether he would today encourage the government of Premier Antonio Segni to try this maneuver is questionable. Those close to him say that he realizes the risks involved—the danger of a popular-front government, in which the Communists in the new era of relaxed tensions would be given respectability. In other words, instead of the left-wing of the Christian Democratic party and the center government absorbing Nenni, the crafty Nenni would in effect absorb the center. While he is away taking a cure for his liver, and before Parliament meets again, Gronchi will have ample time to reflect on the difficult choices that confront the government of which he is the constitutional head.

RED BOSS TOGLIATTI

Clearly, it is Communist strategy on this ancient battleground to translate the distension — relaxing of tensions — at Geneva into terms of domestic politics. The Communist newspapers have carried large pictures of President Eisenhower and Bulganin shaking hands at Geneva. The left-wing press has been almost fulsome in its praise of Mr. Eisenhower for the achievements of Geneva. They have kept Dulles as the villain in the plot, suggesting that if only the Secretary of State can be prevented from interfering, a long and lasting peace can come out of the beginning that has been made.

If Mr. Eisenhower can get along with Bulganin then why cannot Gronchi and Segni sit down with the Communist boss Palmiro Togliatti, and Nenni, and work things out peaceably here in Italy? That is the powerful logic implicit in the new Communist line. It illustrates one of the risks which some American policymakers, Dulles among them, clearly foresaw in a heads-of-government conference.

Because of the vitality, the exuberance, the emotional volatility of the Italian people, this country has long been a kind of Coney Island distorting mirror for the political currents of the world. If these people begin to enjoy the relaxation of tension, then, despite all assurances of officialdom to the contrary, they will do it with a great big bang.

If the "Communist danger" appears to have evaporated, the Italian politicians of the right and center can revert to politics as usual, and the game of politics in Italy is fast and furious, with no holds barred. In a sense, Gronchi owes his job as the second President of the Republic formed at the war's end, to politics as usual. The right-wing of the Christian Democratic party voted for him because they thought they could make him their captive and be sure that he would never be able to initiate the social reforms he believes are essential for Italy. But the Communists and the Nenni Socialists quickly caught onto this game and it was their votes which put Gronchi over.

In actual fact the choices of the Segni Government domestically are very limited. Any effort to put over the kind of New Deal talked about by Gronchi and others in the left of the badly divided Christian Democratic party would probably bring enough defections on the right to pull the Government down. So the chances are for survival into next year by maintaining things as they are. In 1956 there are nation-wide elections to the Administrative Councils, and that may be an opportunity to elect at the same time a new Parliament, even though the present one is not due to expire until 1958.

The first anniversary has just been observed of the death of a man who understood supremely well how to balance the divided forces of right and center and slightly left of center to achieve stability. Alcide de Gasperi was a master of the game and it was in his Government that Mario Scelba, as Minister of Interior, began the difficult and dangerous task of driving the Communists from positions of power. Not only could De Gasperi balance off the separate parties, but he understood how to control the factions in his own Christian Democratic party. Segni has the respect of everyone, some going so far as to say he is too fine a man for the rough and tumble of Italian politics. But he has nothing like the skill of the late master, and if it is now no longer possible to unite against the Communist threat, he will find himself at the head of his shaky coalition Government with almost no power at all.

Where Business Has a Stake

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Because of rapidly rising costs, private education is particularly hard pressed.

The national average of privately supported liberal arts colleges in faculty salaries is $4054. In state and municipal liberal arts colleges, the average of faculty salaries is $5692. This discrepancy is forcing more mature and more thoroughly trained college teachers out of education and is leading younger men and women of top teaching potential to discount the profession.

Because the amount of tuition that can be charged by any college is limited and the source of funds from foundations is restricted, and because private colleges do not wish to obtain federal or state aid with the possibility of control, private education is turning more and more to corporations. Evidence of this is the fact that industry contributed $232,815 to the Associated Colleges of Illinois in 1954.

Private higher education has a definite place in American life along with the municipal and state university. Many young people prefer to go to a small college where education is more like Mark Hopkin's idea of a "student on one end of a log and a teacher on the other end."

All business firms, large and small alike, have a crucial stake in seeing that this job is done.

A.M.A. Drops Services

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The public should be very appreciative of an American Medical Association that would do all of the things listed in The Louisville Courier-Journal article you recently reprinted. In the interests of accuracy, however, it should be pointed out that several of these useful functions have been terminated by the A.M.A. I refer in particular to the statement in that article to the effect that the A.M.A. Council on Physical Medicine rates as acceptable hearing aids and other mechanical devices. This program, which used to protect not only the consumer but also the doctor in his purchase of diagnostic instruments, is no longer carried out.

Prosecutor vs. Judge

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

For the past few months your paper has been publishing remarks Circuit Attorney Dowd makes about Circuit Judge Nangle. I have never seen one attack against Mr. Dowd in your paper made by Judge Nangle.

Certainly there must be another side to the differences that exist between these two gentlemen. Could it be that Judge Nangle cannot make statements against Mr. Dowd because he respects his position as Circuit Judge too much?

I know Judge Nangle from having tried cases before him and I believe him to be a humanitarian and not a man who believes we should put as many people behind bars as possible so that we could then say we are ridding ourselves of crime.

Mr. Dowd has no right to make public remarks about a member of the bench, regardless of his personal feelings toward such a member.

Lurid Crimes on TV

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The best that Catholic, Protestant and Jewish churches and homes have always stood for is put in jeopardy by the high proportion of lurid crime subjects in TV.

If the United States Senate sees this clearly enough to have its own official investigation under way, then the least we, who have homes, can do is to make our protest from the bottom upward while our national lawmakers work from the top downward.

The Rural Doctor Need

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

John Keasler's article, "Doctors for Rural Missouri," performs a social service. It is a fact that there are fewer medical doctors practicing in Missouri today than at any other time in 40 years. In 1912 there were 6037 physicians listed in A.M.A. directories; there is a 4 per cent decline to 5074 for the 1940-50 decade.

There has been a gain in the number of doctors in the cities, of course—the loss has been in the rural and small-town areas: from 3172 to 1387 medical practitioners since 1912. In the old days, population per doctor was 550, and now it is almost 800.

In one county that is 50 miles from a medical and hospital center of any consequence there are only five physicians where there were 10 just five years ago. There is now one doctor to 1812 persons in a block of 20 rural counties.

The Seventh Day Adventist medical college is to be commended for interesting its students in the need for rural medical practitioners. Similarly the College of Osteopathy at Kirksville is sending ever more of its graduates into the rural field.

Contempt for 65 Million

It would be difficult to say what is most wrong with the Federal Power Commission's decision to turn the great water power resources of Hell's Canyon over to the so-called Idaho Power Co. It would be difficult to say because so many things are wrong—from the standpoint of conservation of power potential, of irrigation, of integrated use of irreplaceable resources.

Then as if this "giveaway" decision were not bad enough in itself, the FPC pulled a sneak play by waiting until two days after the end of the congressional session in order to reduce the full effect of the opposition. To make it still worse only the release of the news was held up; the decision was reached before Congress closed.

There is another wrong done by the decision. This is the wrong that Chairman Kuykendall and his fellow commissioners did in working this trick against 30 Senators who introduced a bill in the present Congress for federal multiple-purpose development of the Hell's Canyon site. These 30 Senators represent 20 states with a total population of more than 65,000,000. The sponsoring Senators, their states and the populations are as follows:

Alabama (Hill, Sparkman) — —	3,061,743
Arkansas (McClellan, Fulbright)	1,909,511
Illinois (Douglas) — — — — —	8,712,176
Kentucky (Clements) — — — —	2,944,806
Michigan (McNamara) — — —	6,371,766
Minnesota (Humphrey) — — —	2,982,483
Missouri (Hennings, Symington)	3,954,653
Montana (Murray, Mansfield) —	591,024
New Mexico (Chavez, Anderson)	681,187
New York (Lehman) — — — —	14,830,192
North Carolina (Scott) — — —	4,061,929
North Dakota (Langer, Young) —	619,636
Oklahoma (Kerr) — — — — —	2,233,351
Oregon (Morse, Neuberger) — —	1,521,341
Rhode Island (Green) — — —	791,896
South Carolina (Johnston) — —	2,117,027
Tennessee (Kefauver, Gore) — —	3,291,718
Washington (Magnuson, Jackson)	2,378,963
West Virginia (Neely, Kilgore) —	2,005,552
Wyoming (O'Mahoney) — — —	290,529
	65,351,483

We do not mean to suggest even remotely that a bill is truly good just because these 30 Senators from the above listed 20 states introduced it. They conceivably might all join in sponsoring a bill that would be thoroughly bad for the country. Neither do we mean to suggest that the Federal Power Commission had no right to act until the bill introduced by these Senators was disposed of. The FPC is an independent regulatory agency and it has its work to do regardless of legislation pending in Congress.

But when this is agreed, the fact remains that the FPC acted to give away a highly valuable part of the national domain at a time when these 30 Senators were working hard to keep the site as a possession of all the people. That fact in itself should have told the FPC that if it erred it should err on the side of being sure that it was doing what informed opinion in the country believed was best for the United States.

President Eisenhower's responsibility in this matter is to appoint the most qualified men he can find to the FPC and then to leave them free to do their duty. But it is plain that his advisers have been serving special interests in making recommendations for these important regulatory agencies. It is also plain that these advisers do not tell him all he should know as the record of the now completely discredited Dixon-Yates deal shows. Surely that sorry experience is not going to be needlessly repeated at Hell's Canyon.

Nov. 8 It Is

The determination of St. Louis county officials to hold a major county bond election on Nov. 8 recognizes that there has been too much delay.

Both County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews and Frank L. Martini, County Council chairman, believe the council will hold to the Nov. 8 date. Moreover, Mr. Matthews promises to name a 15-member committee to direct the campaign.

The Supervisor does not believe new tax bills will affect the outcome of the bond election. The County Council has just cut the county tax rate from $1.01 down to 66 cents on $100 assessed valuation. That means taxes will not be increased much by the recent rise in property valuations.

If the voters are going to be tax conscious when they consider bonds, they are going to be tax conscious in spring, winter or fall. The ideal time for a bond election is when the county knows its needs and can explain them to the voters, and that time is now.

St. Louis county surely knows it needs expressways and other major improvements. Officials should be able to pare down the $55,000,000 bond total proposed by the screening committee and establish a definite voting list soon. Then there will be two months before the scheduled election. That is time enough to explain why the county needs to catch up with years of neglect.

Show at the Illinois Fair

What with cows made of butter, gleaming farm machinery, pickle displays and fine trotting horses, the Illinois State Fair is always a show. This year one of the finer performances was put on by the team of Stratton and Dirksen, beating drums for a "draft Eisenhower" boom in '56.

It was a good show, and one to be expected, since the Illinois fair is almost always a political platform for somebody, Republican or Democrat.

Moreover, Gov. William G. Stratton's part in the performance was politically important, and not simply because the Governor rode into office in the Eisenhower landslide in 1952, and thus might have a strictly personal interest in coat-tail riding.

Here was the Governor of a major state, the titular head of the Republican party and national convention delegation of 27 votes, opening the inevitable draft boom—and the audience knew it. The crowd applauded lustily as Gov. Stratton said President Eisenhower should be "drafted unanimously" as the G.O.P. candidate next year.

But a good show needs more than serious moments. It needs flowing lines and comedy relief, and in Senator Everett McKinley Dirksen the state fair had a little of both.

At his oratorical best, Senator Dirksen appealed for the forward march, cursed socialism, praised peace and wound up by saying that the "challenge of '56" would be to follow the "good work so ably started under the leadership of President Eisenhower."

What makes this performance so imposing is that Senator Dirksen himself has not followed President Eisenhower too devotedly.

While his voting record has shown more support for the Administration as election time draws nearer, this year Senator Dirksen still voted for Administration foreign policy less often than his Democratic colleague, Senator Paul Douglas. And of course the Administration will not forget that Dirksen soft-soaped Senator McCarthy's campaign against it.

Last year's State Fair produced a slight measure of the relations between Mr. Dirksen and the Administration. The President himself spoke at the fairgrounds, but the Senator was not there, and Mr. Eisenhower refrained from mentioning Dirksen's candidate for Senator, Joseph T. Meek. This year, again, the performance in Springfield is indicative of politics to come. Mr. Eisenhower, of course, will be subjected to increasingly heavy pressure from now on to lead the Republican parade in 1956. And that parade will include some followers who follow the President mostly in hopes of getting to the bandstand.

Money Is Not Enough

A new demonstration that it takes more than money alone to meet the nation's educational needs is found in the announcement of Philip J. Hickey that the planned expansion of the St. Louis program for mentally retarded children will have to be curtailed. The money is available, says Superintendent Hickey, but it has been impossible so far to find enough competent teachers.

Unhappily, there are not nearly enough competent teachers to take charge of all of the nation's regular classrooms. In them, the inadequacy may be masked as it could not be in a special program such as the one about which Mr. Hickey is concerned, but it is there just the same. All too many youngsters soon will return to teachers with so-called temporary certificates. These do not measure up to the standards of the teachers' colleges which, as many of their administrators admit, have been lowered because of the demand for instructors.

Some school systems are trying a plan sponsored by the Ford Foundation. Under this, college graduates who did not take courses in educational methods are being persuaded to try teaching while taking some professional courses after hours and during vacations. Some of these are doing good work since no matter how short they may be on teaching theory, they know their subjects. Perhaps this experiment can be developed into something more than a stop-gap.

The continuing difficulty, however, is that in many communities teachers' salaries are too low to attract the right people. Teaching may not be regarded as a road to wealth, but there are limits to the sacrifices a community can expect from those to whom it would entrust its most important function, the education of the young.

If teachers' pay were made a little more attractive, the other compensations of the profession could be counted on to fill its ranks. The teachers' colleges again could be more selective and they could insist on higher standards of accomplishment. The results, of course, soon would be felt in the classroom.

In a period of advanced scientific competition, schooling assumes a special importance. The forthcoming White House Conference on Education may well ask whether we can afford to let our pupils lag so far behind those of Europe. There is no real answer in more buildings without more and better teachers. The United States can afford both.

Strike Up an Ozark Tune

It could be about Brother Smithers, the Fighting Parson. Or the Headless Man who comes around on dark, drizzly nights but has never been known to utter a sound. Or Joe Miller the Hermit of the Backhills. Or Jesse James or Job, the Bible fellow with the boils, though there would be two ways of thinking about whether they were true Ozarkians. But whoever the heroes and heroines to whose memories the string is strummed and the singer's voice is raised in plaintive recollection, we hope there will be a rich outpouring to the invitation for folks to write new Ozark ballads.

The Missouri Writers' Guild, Drury College, and the Springfield chapter of the Guild, will make the selections, and $250 in prize money for the six best contestants has been supplied by W. R. Draper, a retired Ozark writer. A fictional character may be introduced if there is some basis in Ozark history, according to the contest rules; and Ozark history being as fictional as it is, we guess that is right fortunate.

We looked up Otto Ernest Rayburn's "Ozark Country" for hints, and Mr. Rayburn says the story that some of the escapades of Jesse James and his gang took place in the Ozarks "is merely popular opinion and has never been proved in court." Some contemporary balladeer may still want to write one about Jesse, but it will be hard to beat the opening lines of the ballad:

Jesse James he was a man
That was knowed through all the land.

Mr. Rayburn doesn't take kindly, either, to the legend that Grand Gulf, in Oregon county, whose waters disappear into a subterranean cavern, is in reality the Biblical Land of Uz, where Job and his herdsmen pitched their tents and fattened their herds somewhere near a lost river. But still there may be those who will want to strike up a tune proclaiming that

Oregon county,
Missouri, wuz
The campsite of Job
In the Land of Uz.

Or perhaps the balladeer will tell how

Coming with the drizzle
Coming with the dark,
The Headless Man
Is out on a lark,
Without a head,
And without a doubt
Without a sound
He's a roundabout.

Or relate as how

Brother Smithers the Fitin' Parson
He whetted his knife on his shoe,
And he asked the Lord to be merciful toward
What he was a-fixin' to do.

And if anyone wants any more suggestions, May Kennedy McCord and Sarah Gertrude Knott ought to be able to supply them by the dozen. There are as many subjects for balladry in the Ozarks as there are pieces of sloping ground.

Security by Inheritance

Is there no end to this business of judging the records of young men by the alleged political records of their parents? The latest case involves Norton P. Gaston, eighth-ranking graduate of the Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn. He has been denied a reserve commission because of his mother's past political affiliations.

Only two weeks ago Secretary of the Navy Thomas intervened to promise a review of the case of Midshipman Eugene William Landy of the Merchant Marine Academy. He was denied a naval reserve commission because his mother once was a Communist.

In 1953 the Air Force finally thought twice about discharging a young lieutenant with a good service record whose father was said to have read Communist propaganda.

In the Gaston affair, there is not even that much of a case against the young man. Apparently the charge against him is only that his mother was said to have belonged to groups now on the Attorney General's list. She is not accused of having been a Communist. She is not proved to have done anything subversive. And there is nothing against young Gaston at all.

The United States has not been a nation which visited suspicions against fathers on the sons, but the present security trend may provoke loyalty reviews for grandparents and third cousins.

In the Glades of the Sangamon

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Former Chicagoan gave 1500-acre estate in Sangamon valley to University of Illinois; little known Allerton Park offers much to public; in it are formal gardens, pools, statuary; from prairie platform, Carl Milles's 'Sun Singer' surprises visitors.

Erma Espy in Ford Times, Publication of the Ford Motor Co.

A little more than 50 years ago a young man named Robert Allerton set out to demonstrate, on his land in the Sangamon river valley, that art and nature could not only be married, but live happily ever after. Sculpture, architecture and landscape design were his media, and the result was an estate—now Allerton Park—which gives the visitor a sense of stepping into another world.

The park is near Monticello, Ill., and is accessible from State Highways 47 or 105. Most of its statue-studded gardens reflect other times and other peoples, but even the most foreign of them, seen against a backdrop of native trees and shrubs, seems quite at home on the Illinois prairie.

Sun Singer

One approach to the Garden of Fu Dogs, for example, is along a trail lined with wisteria and honeysuckle. The Fu Dog is actually a highly stylized lion commonly found on home altars of the Buddhist faithful. There are 22 of them here, each a shiny bright blue and mounted on a tall stone pedestal, against a background of symmetrical white firs.

The Maze Garden, too, is Chinese. Its precise geometric patterns, made of over 3000 feet of tidily clipped privet hedge, are best seen by climbing a flight of concealed steps and walking along the wide top of the surrounding wall. The two large stone fish that decorate the designs were once fountain ornaments in a prince's garden in Peiping.

In the pavilion of Lost Garden there is a fine copy of a Venus done in 1812 by the Italian sculptor, Antonio Canova. The Sunken Garden is a great amphitheater of concrete with a floor of superlativity smooth green grass, showing a Balinese influence. The impressive goldfish atop its pillars were once roof ornaments on a palace in Nagoya.

Throughout the park, sculpture both well known and obscure is displayed in appropriate gardens or natural settings. The north entrance is guarded by limestone copies of the well known "Charioteer of Delphi" done originally in bronze about 470 B.C. by an unknown sculptor. The concrete "Girl With the Scarf" in the center of the Brick Garden is an example of contemporary work by Lili Auer of Chicago.

A stone copy of Rodin's "Adam" rests in a setting of clipped arbor vitae. The "Death of the Last Centaur," an astonishing and imposing figure by Bourdelle symbolizing the death of paganism, is in a glade surrounded by giant oaks, whose falling leaves each autumn become part of the allegory.

On a high platform, in the blazing prairie sunlight, stands a replica of Carl Milles's "Sun Singer."

Robert Allerton, who now lives in Hawaii, gave these 1500 acres of his homestead to the University of Illinois in 1946, to be used as an educational and research center, a wildlife and plant-life reserve, an example of landscape architecture, and a public park. The income from farms lying north of the Sangamon provides for maintenance and further development.

There are three houses within the park, including the brick mansion which Allerton built in 1900 for his own use, and which is now known as Allerton House. All three are used constantly by the university for conferences and seminars, and are available to other educational groups. The park is not a playground or sports area, but picnic tables are provided. Luncheons and dinners are usually obtainable in Allerton House by reservation.

How to Tell a Sergeant

From the Greenville (Miss.) Delta Democrat Times

Sometimes we wonder if insignia manufacturers don't inspire some of the changes that are made in the armed services with regard to rank and rating. Whoever it is is keeping things confused and changes expensive.

Remember back during World War II—at first it was simple. Privates had no stripes; privates first class had one; corporals two; buck sergeants three; staff and tech sergeants, with one and two rockers under the three and finally the topkick with three below and three above, the master sergeant with a diamond in the middle. Simple.

Then someone decided the field infantry non-coms should be distinguished from the clerks and mechanics. So the indoor men got "technicians" ratings, with a corporal becoming a "T-4" and a sergeant, a "T-3." They were still called corporals and sergeants and they got the same pay—but the chevron was changed. The "technicians" had a "T" embroidered under the stripes. The insignia folks must have gotten a big boost. There were an awful lot of men in the army by then.

Between World War II and the Korean conflict, the chevron-makers must have had a real field day. First the Air Force split from the Army and picked out some upside down stripes. Off came the old and on were sewed the new. Then someone inspired the Army that their stripes were too big and gauche. So they changed the stripes to a sort of miniature neon-yellow chevron. You could hardly tell a sergeant from a private first class from 10 paces. And the technicians disappeared.

As if that were not enough, all ranks were "reorganized," with everyone from buck sergeant on down losing a stripe. Bidding farewell to the buck sergeant, former backbone of the corps, the Army now had sergeants reduced to corporals, corporals to privates first class and privates first class to privates. A new rank was invented—the recruit. All this produced more frantic tearing off of insignia and sewing on the new.

Now we are informed, in order to preserve the dignity and prestige of the infantry non-com in the field, there will now be "a separate category of enlisted personnel, called specialists," who will include "those who have technical and administrative skills," but not those "holding leadership positions."

That means that thousands of noncoms will become, instead of corporal, sergeant, sergeant first class and master sergeant: specialist third, second and first class, and master specialists. With —you guessed it—a whole new set of chevrons.

We don't know why they don't go back to "technicians." We bet the Army has as many old "technicians'" stripes in in the warehouses as the Navy has hamburgers. But then we couldn't use any old stripes, could we?

A friend of mine came across an interesting advertisement buried among the "Learn Fingerprinting at Home in Your Spare Time" displays of a magazine: "Men! Cruising in August

When the northwest wind is blowing hard,
And blue and white is the sky,
And the sharp-cut waves are streaked and scarred
Where the darting squalls race by;
When the leeward shrouds are whelmed in green
And the leeward deck's afoam,
And a dancing wake all white is seen
Back toward the shores of home—
Oh, that is the day my heart would choose
For setting sail on an August cruise!

When the salt southwester comes in its strength
Till the ripples that marked its way
Grow and grow to the ground swells' length,
And our faces drip with spray;
When the water is gleaming in burnished belts
Of purple and bronze and blue,
As the hazy veil above us melts
And the burning sun breaks through—
Oh, that is the day I would not lose
From the treasure-days of an August cruise!

When the sun smiles down on a morning swim
At an anchorage unvexed,
And nobody knows what the weather's whim
Will yield for a harbor next;
When into some port we creep at last,
As the breeze with the daylight ends;
And the stars shine over the fading mast,
And a long, still sleep descends—
Ah, such are the days the blest ones use
Who quit all else for an August cruise!

The Bore

Why did I find him the full-blown flower
On boredom's bounteous vine?
He talked of his ills and his bills for an hour
When I wanted to talk of mine!

The Passenger

I sit alone in a way station
On a long railroad,
Waiting for the train that will pick me up.
Nobody can tell me
Precisely when it will arrive,
Or precisely where it will put me down.
The print on my one-way ticket should help,
But it is a little blurred,
And, even if I could read
The name of my destination—
Never visited before—
It would not tell what may be found there.

Fond as I have always been of travel,
The thought of this as my last journey—
For such I somehow know it to be—
Brings little comfort.
Yet let me not forget that all my journeys
Have won a crown of happiness
Through coming home.
How will it be this time?
I hear a nearing bell and whistle—
The train will soon be here,
And I shall join its passengers,
Cumbered, myself, with little luggage,
But bearing in one hand
A parcel packed with thankfulness,
And in the other a parcel of surmise
Not unmixed with hope.

Terror of Nuclear Weapons May Cause Abolition, Peace For a Time, Gen. Phillips Says

If War Comes, Exchange of Blows Could Quickly Kill Half of Population of Russia, Europe, Southern Canada, U.S., He Tells Public Affairs Conference.

By BRIG. GEN. THOMAS R. PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)
Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

MILITARY POWER has never insured a permanent peace. Mankind has always been at war and always has had military power. Nevertheless, a reasonable balance of military power has insured peace during long periods. There were 44 years of peace in Europe between the war of 1870 and 1914.

During much of the past, wars were not so destructive but that they could be contemplated as profitable to the winner. This was true for a good many centuries in Europe. Even the loser could console himself, as one prince did, saying: "I have lost a battle, I pay for it with a province."

A nuclear war today has possibilities of destruction that make the ravages of the Mongols seem petty. Where the Mongols killed 18,000,000 Chinese in 10 years of war, a major nuclear attack on the United States and Canada could kill 18,000,000 in a day. An equal number could be burned and injured and still greater numbers could be poisoned by radioactive fallout.

The thermonuclear (hydrogen) bomb exploded by the United States in the Pacific March 1, 1954, vaporized an area of 48 square miles, according to Senator Stuart Symington.

This means that the heat of from 200,000,000 to 400,000,000 degrees centigrade vaporized and drew up into the stem and fireball of the explosion the entire surface of the earth within a diameter of seven miles and to a varying depth reaching perhaps to 400 feet. The radioactive fallout lethally poisoned an area of 7000 square miles. Part of this area still is too radioactive for the native populations to be allowed to return.

Not Most Powerful Bomb.

This bomb was far from the most powerful that can be built. Its explosive force, or yield, was about twice as great as had been anticipated. Many of the electronic measuring instruments were destroyed. It is estimated that its energy release was equivalent to the explosion of between 15,000,000 and 22,000,000 tons of TNT. In the new jargon of atomic energy this would be called a yield of between 15 and 22 megatons.

It is possible to make and carry in the larger bombers a thermonuclear bomb with a yield of between 40 and 60 megatons. The diameter of vaporization would be 10 or 12 miles and the radius of destruction up to 30 miles. The fallout would cover from 10,000 to 20,000 square miles.

Such bombs can totally destroy any city on earth.

With such weapons warfare has invaded a new dimension of destruction, a new dimension of death and a new dimension of terror.

It is now so obvious that a major nuclear war would not pay that many believe that the existence of nuclear weapons in the hands of major powers will prevent a major war.

Fear Not Real Deterrent.

Historically, regardless of weapons and their destructiveness, fear of death and destruction has held back war only for short periods of time. In contrast, for long periods it has been possible to limit wars and to control weapons.

Although I believe that it is impossible to secure peace permanently while mankind continues to have its present social attitudes, it should be possible to control weapons. This requires a much smaller surrender of national sovereignty. In effect I am saying that mankind will insist in the future, as it has in the past, on playing at war, but that it may be willing to forego destroying itself at the game.

Later I shall discuss the arguments in favor of abolishing war as opposed to abolishing atomic weapons. I first want to show that if we have atomic weapons, if our armed forces are organized around them, we shall certainly use them in any future major war and probably shall in a minor war.

Atomic or fission weapons can now be made in various sizes from "fizzle" bombs, with a yield equal to the explosion of less than a thousand tons of TNT, to an energy release equivalent to the explosion of half a million tons of TNT. Thermonuclear fusion, or hydrogen weapons, start where the fission weapons leave off, and can be made in any size to an energy release equivalent to the explosion of 60,000,000 tons of TNT.

Suitcase-Size Bomb.

The smallest nuclear explosive can be compressed into a tube five inches in diameter with caps separate that can be screwed on. It can be smuggled into the United States or Canada in suitcases. The largest thermonuclear bomb requires the entire capacity of the heaviest bomber.

This means that for almost every purpose that conventional explosives have been used, nuclear explosives can be substituted and will do the same job much more effectively and more cheaply. Instead of millions of conventional artillery shells or bombs the Army or Air Force can substitute a few thousand atomic weapons. The argument applies to mines, to anti-aircraft guided missiles, and to torpedoes.

You can see why military men welcome atomic weapons. Every task is easier to accomplish and can be done more cheaply. Pursuing this idea, both the United States Army and Navy and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization are planning to substitute atomic weapons of all kinds for conventional ones. United States planners and Gen. Gruenther in Europe have been authorized to plan to use atomic weapons and to build their forces around them.

Once this has taken place, when millions of conventional shells have given way to hundreds of atomic shells, when atomic mines have replaced the conventional mines used against submarines, when anti-aircraft missiles are atomic—once this has taken place we shall have reached the point of no return—the point when any war, large or small, will be atomic, the point when the consequences of any war will become incalculable.

The interchange of nuclear blows could leave the Soviet Union and Europe, Southern Canada and the United States with half its population killed, injured or poisoned by radioactive fallout, with ports destroyed, with much of the transportation facilities blocked and with large areas of land uninhabitable and unfit for raising food.

This is not the end of horrors. The IBM, the intercontinental ballistic missile, looms on the horizon and should be a reality within five years.

Before or After?

After a nuclear war, with the incredible destruction that can be visited by nuclear weapons, can anyone doubt that nations will find a way to exist together? Do we have to wait for the destruction of the slowly built works of man over hundreds of years? Do we have to wait until half the populations of the East and West have been killed, injured or poisoned, and much of the productive land has been destroyed for food production? Who can doubt that an accommodation between nations will be reached then?

The most critical question facing mankind today, and possibly the most critical question in the history of mankind, is whether the accommodation is to be reached before or after the catastrophe.

We, who can see it coming, are setting the stage for a new lost generation, that will have to dig itself out of the ashes of the failure of our generation, and slowly build back to the good life of today.

Situation Can't Last.

For the present I agree that neither the East nor the West will deliberately start a general war. But how long will such a state of mind last? Can anyone imagine two men with daggers at each other's breast standing that way indefinitely?

Neither can I imagine the two great nations standing ready instantly to destroy each other indefinitely without moving. One may believe he has achieved an effective means of defense. Or one may believe that a surprise blitz will end the stalemate with a minimum of harm to him. But surely such a situation as will exist shortly when the Soviet Union and the United States will have reached the point of saturation in nuclear weapons and in the means of delivery cannot last indefinitely. It must get better or it will get worse.

I agree with the approach that has been made at the recent disarmament conference in London and with President Eisenhower's proposal at Geneva. The disarmament proposals would reduce conventional armaments as a first step and abolish nuclear weapons as a second step.

The stumbling block on our side is to find a satisfactory system of inspection; on the Soviet side it is their determination to combine reduction of armaments with the German problem, American and British troops in Germany, American peripheral air bases and NATO and Western European Union.

As I remarked earlier, over long periods of history it has been possible to subject war to limits and rules. The regulation of armament approach to eliminate nuclear weapons thus has a successful parentage. The abolition of war has not. It has never succeeded at all. Even when there is a universal state such as Rome, revolutions—and revolutions are war—take place. In the United States the Civil War broke out, although the whole country had but 16,500 men in uniform, with most of them out fighting Indians.

Is military power insurance for peace? There can be no long-term insurance for peace. On the contrary, I say that so long as the world is armed with nuclear weapons, military power insures our destruction.

The best hope for peace for a time lies in creating a balance of military power with unlimited weapons and prescribed strengths.

Acute Water Shortage Behind Fight Over Developing Resources

Question Over Public or Private Operation—Some Areas Use Supplies Faster Than Nature Replenishes Them.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.

BEHIND the continuing fight over public versus private development of the country's water resources is an increasingly acute shortage of water which in recent years has become a major national problem.

Years of acrimony and partisanship have resulted from what is generally a political question—whether the Federal Government, the states or private interests should have primary responsibility for conserving water supplies and utilizing them to best advantage.

In the process, three serious conditions which cut across party lines and concern the nation as a whole have been somewhat obscured:

1. Severe shortages of water in some areas, particularly the western states and parts of the Pacific Coast, have hampered the full development of these areas, prevented arid lands from being made fertile and discouraged growth of industry. In some areas, water supplies literally are being used up faster than nature can replenish them.

2. In other regions, water is badly distributed and the supply so uncertain and spotty—sometimes too much, sometimes too little—that long-range planning for industrial and agricultural growth is made difficult.

3. In still other parts of the country, notably the industrialized East and some Midwestern areas, pollution has often sharply reduced available supplies of water suitable for domestic consumption and manufacturing. Ironically, one principal source of pollution is waste materials from some of the very industries which need water.

Cabinet Committee

President Eisenhower, in May 1954, appointed a cabinet on water resources policy. The committee is headed by Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay, an outspoken advocate of increased private and local responsibility for resources development and one of the architects of the Republican Administration's "partnership" policy.

At the same time, Mr. Eisenhower set up a committee representing federal agencies concerned with water resources to assist the Cabinet group and coordinate Government water programs.

In his State of the Union message last January, the President described a "great need" for a "nation-wide comprehensive water resources policy" and promised that the Administration would send recommendations for such a broad policy to Congress. However, the Cabinet committee has not yet made its report.

The Hoover commission on organization of the executive branch recommended that Congress formulate a national water policy and that the President's two study groups be "transformed into a water resources board to be located in the executive office of the President."

However, other recommendations of the Hoover commission, those dealing with public power projects, met with criticism from advocates of federal development of water resources. The commission made clear it wanted the Government to cut back its activities in the realm of water power.

New Sources Sought.

Meanwhile, the water resources division of the Bureau of Reclamation has gone ahead with an ambitious program to find, map and develop new sources of water in regions with scarcities. For the current fiscal year, a total of $7,150,000 was earmarked for "technical investigations" of water supplies. About half the appropriation was to be matched by state funds.

Those concerned with the problem of water shortages have some rather grim statistics to ponder. The Geological Survey has estimated that nearly one-third of the area of the United States has an average annual water run-off of less than one inch. This means that usable water is at a premium in almost one-third of the country, Government hydraulic engineers say.

The western states, with 60 per cent of the nation's land area, have about 30 per cent of its water supply, and in certain local areas the situation is described as "critical."

Commissioner of Reclamation Wilbur A. Dexheimer told the Post-Dispatch that water supplies are considered inadequate in Arizona, New Mexico, Nevada, Southern California and the western part of Texas.

Greatest Resource Problem.

In a recent speech, Under Secretary of the Interior Clarence A. Davis described water as the greatest single natural resource problem in the United States.

Davis said he believes the states must employ "much more intelligent regulation" of underground water resources. Generally, Government experts estimate there is a much greater supply of water below ground than on the surface. The amount underground is believed equivalent to 35 years' run-off from the surface.

Davis, a former attorney general of Nebraska who has had considerable experience in water resource problems, said he has no particular objection to unified federal development of one watershed—the kind of comprehensive planning that includes power, irrigation and other reclamation features, flood control and recreation—if the project is too big for local or private interests.

"But I do object to the fanatics who want to use power revenues from one dam to finance entirely unrelated irrigation projects many miles away and out of the watershed," he added.

The Other View.

Proponents of unified federal development of water resources contend, however, that the Eisenhower Administration's "partnership" concept is insufficient to provide unified development.

Private developers, it is contended, are concerned with making a profit and meeting taxes from power revenues and are less likely to include irrigation in their planning. Bureau of Reclamation officials are reported to be at odds with the Interior Department over this, with the bureau contending that the amount paid in taxes by private companies would not equal irrigation benefits from federal power revenues.

Two controversial projects in which water shortages are at least partly at the root of the issue were before Congress at the last session and in all likelihood will come up again in January.

In the dispute over federal versus private development of the Hell's Canyon dam site on the Snake river between Idaho and Oregon, power was the main issue, and water features were relegated to second place.

Even so, the original Reclamation Bureau plan for a single high federal dam in the deep Hell's Canyon reach gave a prominent place to irrigation. Supporters of the high dam said it was the only way to insure uniform development of the water-short region.

A rival plan advanced by Idaho Power Co., calling for private development with three small dams, was approved by the Federal Power Commission. The FPC said irrigation was not immediately involved in the two plans before it for consideration.

Upper Colorado Project.

In the controversy over the billion-dollar upper Colorado river basin storage project, contending the upper basin states—Wyoming, Utah, Colorado and New Mexico—were attempting to impound more than their share of the vital water supply provided by the Colorado river.

The multi-purpose project, approved by the Administration, called for flood control and irrigation benefits as well as power. It was passed by the Senate, then stalled in the House after protests from conservationists over one part of the plan, the proposed Echo Park dam.

California, which depends on water from the lower Colorado for the lush Imperial valley farm region, is embroiled in another controversy over water, this one with Arizona, also a lower basin state. The dispute over allocation of water from the lower stretch of the river, below Hoover Dam, is before the Supreme Court.

Charter Fight Important for City's Future

cision must be left to the citizens themselves, acting through a group of their fellow citizens specifically chosen for this task.

In a message to the legislation committee last Feb. 11, Mayor Tucker pointed out some of the needs for reorganizing the administrative departments, boards and offices in the interest of efficiency and economy.

"The Department of Public Welfare includes major functions which have little in common," he said. "For example, the kinds of personnel required and the problems which must be solved in administering the city's parks and recreational services are very different from those of the hospitals, health centers, jail and workhouse.

"Some of the city's welfare institutions are under the Department of Public Welfare, but others are under the Board of Children's Guardians. These institutions have many problems in common and there would be advantages in greater co-ordination. Specialists such as dietitians, psychiatrists, psychologists, nurses and welfare workers are needed at hospitals, health centers, workhouse and institutions for delinquent children.

Engineering Services.

"The Board of Public Service is responsible for supervising a conglomerate array of functions and agencies, embracing such widely different fields of specialized activity as engineering and construction, health, fire, welfare, corrections, operation of municipal utilities, building regulation, parks and recreation, street cleaning and legal aid services.

"The city government's professional engineering services are now scattered among at least four departments—Department of Streets and Sewers, Department of the President, Department of Utilities and Department of Public Safety. They should be brought together in one department."

In addition to too many boards and commissions and the presence on them of city officials as exofficio members, the present 1914 charter lacks strong financial controls, Tucker said.

"The Mayor now has no budget director or other financial officer through whom he can effectively control the budgets and expenditures of the various administrative departments and agencies. There is presently no thorough and independent audit of the agencies responsible for handling and spending the city's money and keeping the financial records. Such independent audit cannot be made by the officer who keeps the accounts and authorizes expenditures.

"Our city charter should be reviewed and audited by a group of independent citizens such as a board of freeholders," he concluded.

Aldermen and Freeholders.

In the view of competent observers, the aldermen are going about their objective the hard way. The easier method, it is suggested, would be to call for an election of freeholders and then attempt to obtain a board that would be sympathetic to the aldermanic point of view. It requires only 250 signatures to nominate members of the 13-man board and there is apt to be a relatively large number of names on the ballot, perhaps as many as 50 or 60. In such a case, a slate of candidates, hand picked by the politicians and backed by the ward organizations, would have a good chance of coming out on top of the welter of candidates.

It is thus possible that the fight will not materialize this fall, if the legislation committee capitulates and approves the bill for a freeholder election. In that case the fight will come in the campaign to elect the board.

U.S. Warned Reds May Seize Atomic Lead Within Few Years

As Geneva Sessions Close Americans Are Convinced Russians Are Gathering Momentum to Achieve End.

By WILLIAM H. STONEMAN
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright 1955.

GENEVA, Aug. 20.

A SHARP WARNING that Russia may outdistance us in the atomic field within the next few years was sounded by American scientists today as the world's first international conference on the peaceful uses of atomic energy closed here in Geneva.

While evidence produced here during the 12-day meeting has indicated that the Russians are now behind us in many branches of nuclear science—often as much as two or three years—it has also indicated that they are gathering momentum and are determined to lead the world, cost what it may.

The most sensational single piece of evidence to this effect was the announcement by Prof. V. I. Veksler, Russia's leading man in the field of accelerators, that the Soviet Union planned to construct a 10-billion-volt machine requiring the use of 36,000 tons of steel and costing some $40,000,000. The largest machine the United States has used was 6,500,000,000 volts.

A number of America's top men in the nuclear field, who spoke on the understanding that they would not be quoted by name, insisted that only an all-out effort by the United States, both in practical application of atomic energy and in theoretical and experimental nuclear physics, would keep us in the lead.

Where the Russians lack our technology and ability to do "nice work" they will more than compensate for their shortcomings by massive use of manpower and money, they believe.

Russians Disregard Cost.

American scientists whose products have to be "economic" have been astonished by the complete disregard shown by their Russian opposite numbers for such things as cost accounting.

"Half of them don't know what cost accounting is. The rest don't give a darn. Their motto is, 'Let's get ahead and don't spare the horses in the process,'" one American remarked.

One thing on which all of these scientists insist is that the United States must quickly declassify a vast quantity of information which is still secret despite recent declassification of a great quantity of material.

One of America's top men in the field of atomic power put it this way:

"We now have had ample evidence here at Geneva that development of reactors for production of power will go on at great speed whether we declassify our material or not. Other nations including Britain will publish the material anyway.

"In deciding whether or not we are going to declassify any material we have got to weigh the advantages of secrecy against the tremendous disadvantages to our scientists and to American industry of trying to keep the lid on.

"In general, the exchange of ideas both in America and between ourselves and other nations is healthy and beneficial to us and to the world. And we no longer are necessarily in the driver's seat."

Russians to Aid Satellites.

It is clear from what has been said here that Russia plans to infiltrate all the satellites and as many other countries as possible with gifts of atomic machinery and the services of skilled Soviet scientists.

Our answer to this, say American scientists, must be to "cut the paper work and get cracking to implement the agreements we have made to furnish nuclear reactors and fission materials to 27 other countries."

Our motto should be, "Win friends and influence people with atomic energy," the head of a great laboratory said. "Our product should be a sound economic proposition — in other words the power reactors which we distribute to other countries must be economically good as well as technically. That is one way in which we may be able to beat the Russians who don't know anything about economics."

American scientists think that the conference has been a magnificent success. They feel we have won many friends and dispelled the previous distrust which many foreign scientists felt toward us by our generosity in producing information at this conference. It has justified the effort, they feel, by giving us our first real insight into the actual state of Russian progress in the nuclear field.

They join to a man in expressing professional respect for their Russian colleagues and they have all been surprised to find that the Russians are as far along as they appear to be.

Russian Lag About Two Years.

This doesn't mean that the Russians are level with us. As a general thing they are not and in many specific cases they seem to be about where we were two years ago But they have obviously been working along practically all of the lines pursued by ourselves, both in theory and in practical application of nuclear energy.

In the field of reactors it now appears that they have probably had a reactor working for about nine years. Walter Zinn and Harold Lichtenberger, both of the Argonne laboratory, who have been attending this conference, ran their first chain reaction in 1942.

Yet we have discovered to our amazement during this conference that we started up our high flux experimental reactor known as MTR (materials testing reactor) in April 1952 on practically the same day the Russians opened up their RPT which does more or less the same thing.

American scientists have been impressed by both the caliber and behavior of their Russian opposites. They have no praise too high for men like Prof. D. V. Blokhintsev, Soviet theoretical physicist and reactor specialist, Prof. A. P. Vinogradov, their top chemist, Prof. Veksler, the accelerator man, and Dr. V. V. Vladimirsky who runs one of their heavy water reactors and one of their accelerators as well.

Two of the Americans we questioned said they had spoken to at least a dozen Russian scientists apiece, both in small groups and alone, and had found them at ease and forthcoming with their information.

"Obviously they are acting under certain restrictive instructions which I would probably find familiar myself," said one top-flight American. "But I should say that when they do talk about something they talk decently and answer questions with a fair degree of candor."

All agree that the conference has been a landmark in history and that it has been a suitable and successful opening ceremony for the "age of miracles."

Dreyfus Case Has Lasting Moral Import

CAPTAIN DREYFUS: THE STORY OF A MASS HYSTERIA, by Nicholas Halasz. (Simon & Schuster, 274 pgs., $3.50.)

Reviewed by

A. MERVYN DAVIES

THE hysteria which swept over France when a short-sighted, insignificant-looking man named Capt. Alfred Dreyfus was arrested, charged with treason, is now a matter of history, for it happened as long ago as 1894. Yet it is one of those events of history which are peculiarly, and perennially, important to the present. No generation, least of all this one, dare forget the significance of that prolonged agony of a nation—not at least if it cherishes its freedom. The Dreyfus Affair has a definite significance for a country which has just emerged from an hysteria of its own—called McCarthyism—and it is this that makes a detailed re-telling of it at this time welcome, particularly when it is as well done as Hungarian-born Nicholas Halasz has done it in "Captain Dreyfus."

Tremendous issues were bound up with this Affair. Judging by the account here given—and it appears to be historically accurate—the fate of France herself was poised on the fate of this one individual—on the simple question, could he, or could he not, obtain justice, in the shape of a fair trial, from his own countrymen, at a time when all the most powerful forces in the land — Army, Church, virulent anti-Semitism, chauvinistic nationalism — were arrayed against him?

One set of patriots cried, Shall one man—and he a Jew—be allowed to disrupt our country, plunge it into civil war? Is one man's life, one man's claim to justice, worth that much?

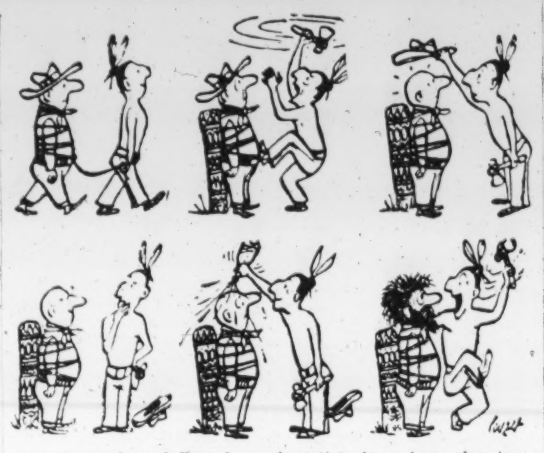
BUT another set of patriots—just a handful of them—wondered how their beloved France, the France of the Great Revolution, could survive if its foundation of equal justice for all were shattered.

The Affair is well described in this account as "a morality play of sinister grandeur." No playwright has ever brought together a more striking and contrasting set of characters as in this drama of French history: the despicable Esterhazy, the real traitor; Henry, the officer who committed perjury and forgery for the sake of France and the honor of the army; Picquart, a shining figure of noble heroism if ever there was one, who was willing to sacrifice all for the cause of truth and justice, even though he personally disliked Dreyfus; Emile Zola, who wrote "J'Accuse" in order to uncover the truth, and Clemenceau the Tiger, who dared to publish it.

The only pleasant aspects of the Affair were this superb courage of a few men and the final outcome, for justice at the last triumphed. But it was too close a thing to bring comfort to any believer in democracy.

The account is worth everyone's reading if only because it brings home, as perhaps no other story can, the fundamental truth that no nation's freedom is secure which does not secure justice for the least of its citizens. If the even pace of the narrative has the reader's interest flagging before the end it is only fitting that it should. The French people too were unutterably weary of their twelve-year-long agony before it was over, as well they might be.



A number of French comic artists have been drawing their funny pictures with such clarity that they need neither words nor captions. First published in Paris with the title, "Sans Paroles," a collection of the work of 16 of these comic sketchers is now published in the United States, as "Frankly, I Don't Get It" (Hanover House, 120 pgs., $1.50.) Above is a six-scene Wild West scenario without words by Pouzet.

Other drawings portray a gardener spraying a fig leaf on the statue, the obliging bull posing with bull fighters for a picture and a musical composer who uses a pistol to shoot his notes onto the music paper plastered on the wall. Other artists represented are Sine, Gad, Jean Dejoux, Michel, Douay, Chaval, Bernard Aldebert, Motson, Piem, Guy Valls, Bose, Mose, Maurice Henry, Gabriel Edme, Coq and Tez.

A House Divided

THE RAIDERS, by William E. Wilson. (Rinehart, 245 pgs., $3.)

Reviewed by

HARNETT T. KANE

IN the ever-growing literature of the Civil War this well-plotted, swiftly executed novel deserves a place among the more successful fictional recreations of the mood and tension of America's "favorite conflict."

Mr. Wilson, well known for his "Crescent City" and his "Abe Lincoln of Pigeon Creek," is a professor, magazine contributor and journalist. He is above all a professional, a craftsman who has learned the rules of skilled writing, who adheres to them in the development of a sharp and eventful narrative. He is no member of the advance guard; as a story-teller he may take a high rank.

This time Mr. Wilson has himself a fine subject, a vivid hour in the American drama, a setting of civil clash, of conflicting interests on the home scene. It was in the summer of '63 that Gen. John Hunt Jackson conducted a celebrated Southern raid across the Ohio into Indiana.

"The Raiders" is the story of 24 hours in a tense community. It is a divided place and the author's central character, Mayor Clayburn, has a divided household. Part of the town remains strongly Union, another part, secretly or openly, is Southern in sympathy. The Mayor's wife has ties in Dixie; his son has died behind Southern lines at Vicksburg.

The writer has built a neat plot about the city and its people, the Mayor, his friends and enemies. For a long time the bitterness, the uncertainty of neighbor set against neighbor, has grown up in the Ohio river community; and now, all at once, the men in gray strike across the stream.

Once the reader has settled himself into "The Raiders" he will find it difficult to set aside this well-timed yarn, which grows steadily in suspense toward a high climax.

READING AND WRITING

Amusing English Novel Launches New Venture

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN

Book Editor of the Post-Dispatch

THE PICNIC AT SAKKARA, by P. H. Newby. (Alfred A. Knopf, 239 pgs., $1.25.)

"THE Picnic at Sakkara," by P. H. Newby, marks the beginning of an experiment by the Alfred A. Knopf publishing company which, if successful, will have important results for authors, publishers and readers. Although this is a first printing for the United States it is being brought out in a format which can be sold for $1.25, about one-third the cost of an ordinary book of the same length bound in hard covers. The quality of the paper and binding makes it more durable than the standard paperback volume. It should last quite a long time, longer, in fact, than most contemporary novels are retained by their original purchasers.

The chief purpose of this venture is to reach larger audiences with new or little known authors. Book prices are not really out of line with commodity costs in general, but evidently the price is high enough to provoke a marked resistance in the public to works by authors whose reputations are not established.

Alfred Knopf hopes that the lower price will make the buyer a little more adventurous. If it does—if no more than a few thousand buy the cheaper edition—subsequent editions will be printed and bound in the conventional way and sold at the customary figure.

P. H. NEWBY may be described as a "little known" author in the United States, but he is highly regarded in England for his adroitness of style and allusive humor. "The Picnic at Sakkara" offers these qualities in abundance, although it is notably free from gags.

It tells of a young Englishman named Edgar Perry who is teaching English literature at the University of Cairo and serving, also, as a kind of tutor to a highly connected Egyptian pasha. Because of a whim, rather than motives of humanity, Perry undertakes to investigate the living conditions of the university students. His inquiries lead to numerous complications, involve him in student riots, cause his summary arrest and bring him close to death by assassination.

One of his literature students, an adult Egyptian patriot named Muawiya, is revealed as both a nemesis and an ever-present friend in time of trouble to Perry. It is Muawiya who tries to kill Perry, but he doesn't try very hard. Obligations to his secret society force him to make the attempt; the claims of friendship—he likes Perry and respects his intellectual equipment—compel him to bungle the job.

THE divided allegiance of Muawiya and his mercurial temperament may be regarded as typical of the Egyptian people as a whole during this period of nationalistic resurgence.

The author's ironic treatment of the general scene extends to all his characters, including the pasha's wife, who at 70 is still a beauty and a charmer, and his own wife, who confesses, falsely, to having a lover because that seems the least harmful reason for seeking a divorce.

"The Picnic at Sakkara" may have validity as a social document, but that is not its chief quality. It is primarily entertainment which moves easily from one amusing episode to another without benefit of a strong plot line and without suggesting any serious conclusions.

It will yield its greatest profit, therefore, to those who savor its humor of dialogue and situation without searching for a deeper-lying design.

DEATH OF AN ANGEL, by Frances and Richard Lockridge. (Lippincott, 192 pgs., $2.50.)

PAM AND JERRY NORTH are highly elated when a Broadway play in which they have invested a little money is a success. To celebrate the hundredth performance, Bradley Fitch gives a party and announces that he is going to marry the star, Naomi Shaw, and take her to Europe. This means that the play will most likely close as its success depends solely on Naomi's personality. This is bad news to several persons and one of them does something about it. The next morning Fitch is murdered in his Park avenue duplex. Pam and Jerry are in the case from the very beginning to when Pam shadows the killer on a quiet Sunday in Park avenue. Scintillating dialogue, a clever plot and of course (knowing the Norths) a great deal about cats.

THE CELLAR AT NO. 5, by Shelley Smith. (Harper, 184 pgs., $2.50.)

NO. 5 IS A tall old house crammed with objects d'art and is the home of Mrs. Rampage, a widow, who lives there alone. The daughter is in Malaya and her only other relative is a niece who has little time for the old lady. Mrs. Rampage is persuaded to take as a companion a Mrs. Roach, also a widow, a deeply religious gentlewoman. While Mrs. Rampage seems unnecessarily cruel to Mrs. Roach most of the time, one realizes that Mrs. Roach is cunningly planning Mrs. Rampage's destruction. The story alternates in mood from humor to horror to build up to a painfully moving climax. One of the best of the current thrillers.

MURDER AT THE POE SHRINE, by Nedra Tyre. (Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine, 35 cents.)

ELLERY QUEEN'S MYSTERY MAGAZINE, the top publication of short detective stories, is celebrating its fifteenth anniversary with the September edition. As part of the celebration a story concerning Edgar Allan Poe, the father of the modern detective story, is featured. "Murder at the Poe Shrine," by Nedra Tyre, takes place in the Edgar Allan Poe Shrine in Richmond, Va., with tired little Miss Wilson, the Shrine's lecturer, guide and curator, easily finding the murderer—but with the spirit of Poe to inspire her. The anniversary edition also contains stories by such noted writers as Mary Roberts Rinehart, Frederic Brown, Roy Vickers and others.

Art Is as Cooking!

PORTRAIT PAINTING FOR BEGINNERS, by John W. Pratten. (Watson Guptill Publications, $4.95.)

MR. PRATTEN'S avowed purpose in producing this book is, "to reduce the subject of portrait painting to its lowest terms" for the benefit of beginner painters.

The contents . . . if we would but substitute salt, pepper, flour, etc., for brushes, paints, canvasses, etc. . . . would make a very excellent cook book.

Mr. Pratten says: brush this way, mix colors that way, place on canvas the other way, stew for from three to six hours, and we will have a well-done or maybe medium-rare portrait. He breaks portrait painting down to two stages of drawing and five stages of painting, with three separate recipes (he calls them color keys) for painting the man, the woman, and the child.

The reader, continues Mr. Pratten, should not only be gratified by the portraits he will cook up but should soon be able to sell unsuspecting neighbors, friends and relatives their likenesses, and maybe earn more than the corner baker. When this selling for profit stage is reached we are again to refer to Mr. Pratten's book for advice on how to handle the sitter's family in case they don't like the way we have painted Johnny's nose, or colored his hair.

The book, I am afraid, is not for painting. Ask any well seasoned painter—he will tell you to avoid any such stereotyped approach. JOHN T. LONE.

U.S. TREASURY ISSUES CONTINUE ON SLIDE

Rails, Utilities and High-Quality Investments at Yearly Lows.

By WARREN BENNETT

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 (AP)—U.S. Treasury obligations continued thier slide this week while the corporate bond market churned ineffectually to wind up on the downside. Three components in the Associated Press average of 60 bonds closed at yearly lows. They were rails, utilities and high quality investment liens. And industrials, as measured by the A.P. index, hit a low Tuesday. The biggest drop was in the high quality investment field where 10 basic low-yield bonds dropped 4 percentage points.

The foreign dollar bonds registered the only advance in the A.P. average, closing out the week 1 percentage point ahead of last week's figure. Japanese and South American dollar bonds were in demand in generally quiet trading while German and Polish national issues eased.

Volume Is Sluggish.

Volume in the corporate bond market was sluggish, hovering around the $2,500,000 par value mark except for Friday. Then trading on a "when issued" basis started in American Telephone & Telegraph Co.'s new debentures. Volume on Friday shot up to $6,551,000 par value, more than 250 per cent ahead of Thursday.

U.S. Treasury bonds rallied briefly on Tuesday, then continued their slump of the past several months. Intermediate and long range issues were at new lows for the year. The 2½s of 1963 lost 14-32 during the week to close at 96 28-32 bid. The Victory 2½s of December, 1967-72, were off 12-32 at 94 20-32 bid. The 30-year 3¼s were down 14-32 at 104 4-32 bid while the 40-year 3s lost 18-32 at 98 18-32 bid.

State, Municipal Financing.

The week's otherwise slim corporate financing activity was featured by quick investor purchase Wednesday of $200,000,000 in General Motors Acceptance Corp. 20-year 3⅝ debentures. The issue, offered at 98¼ to yield 3¾ per cent interest, was oversubscribed and underwriters, headed by Morgan Stanley & Co., closed the books at noon. Institutional investors got the bulk of the offering.

The tax-exempt state and municipal financing field is in the midsummer doldrums. In addition to seasonal inactivity, the rejection of all bids on the $40,000,000 Cook County (Ill.) expressway bonds shook traders Tuesday. Cook County authorities said the bids were "too low."

Week's Review Of Business And Finance

KEEN COMPETITION

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 (AP).

BUSINESS got set this week for what may be the hottest battle of all time for your spending dollar. The battle was expected to be in full swing by fall, reaching its climactic stage during the Christmas shopping season. But its beginnings were already apparent as the economy, half way through its busiest August yet, hummed along at close to record levels.

Indications were that the biggest sales push, all around, would come from the auto makers. Chief weapons in their arsenal would be: New engineering and style refinements and more powerful engines for 1956 cars; fatter sales bonuses for dealers. First to enter the fray was Ford's Lincoln division which this week started production of its 1956 line. Completely restyled, the 1956 Lincoln—and later Chrysler's and Packard's top luxury cars—will try for a slice of the Cadillac market.

Preparations for all-out sales drives in the fall were accompanied by some of the busiest summer activity on record. Steel production for the week was scheduled at 92.3 per cent of capacity—a rate calculated to produce 2,228,000 tons, or 51 per cent more than in the same week last year. Users were pulling steel off trucks and railroad cars as soon as it arrived and putting it immediately into the production line. Iron ore shipments in the week ended Aug. 15 climbed to a 1955 high of 3,152,000 tons, up 44 per cent from a year earlier. Freight carloadings at latest count were 13 per cent higher than a year ago; department store sales, hampered in the east by hurricanes and floods, were 3 per cent higher.

Other signs of record-smashing summer business: The Federal Reserve Board reported that industrial production in July, on a seasonally adjusted basis, climbed to a new high for the third month straight, at 140 per cent of the 1947-49 average. Gross national product—the sum total of goods and services produced and sold—continued its upward curve in July after hitting a record annual rate of 335 billion dollars in the second quarter.

The only decline of any significance was in the number of housing starts, which fell off a little more sharply than usual for this time of year. A five per cent dip in output reflected the changeover to 1956.

With borrowing costs up, manufacturers of consumer goods were faced also with a new round of price increases on raw materials. Copper was advanced from 36 to 40 cents a pound; prices were hiked on antimony, tin plate, fibre conduit and pipe, and cotton textiles. Farm machinery prices moved up, but bumper crops pointed to a weakening price structure for wheat and cotton.

Briefly over the business scene:

Anaconda Aluminum Co. dedicated a new $65,000,000 primary aluminum plant at Columbia Falls, Mont. . . . Union Carbide & Carbon Corp. announced plans for $40,000,000 skyscraper headquarters at 270 Park avenue, New York. . . . Montgomery Ward mailed out the largest fall "clearance sale" catalogue in its history with price cuts averaging 10 per cent.

Bank Dividend.

State Bank & Trust Co. of Wellston declared a dividend of 50 cents per share payable Oct. 1, to shareholders of record Sept. 15.

THE V8 THAT GOES LIKE A V2!

Here's a word of caution for the first time you drive a V8 Corvette: Don't wear your heavy shoes!

When you feather that accelerator open a quarter of an inch you'll know why! Because there is, literally, no American production car that can equal or even approach the takeoff of this 195-horsepower "guided missile"!

This V8 goes like a V2, with a stunning surge of acceleration, a seemingly limitless jet-stream of silken power. For most driving you can forget the bottom half of the accelerator: that's labeled "for emergency use only." But when you need it, mister, you've got it!

You've got the greatest sprinter on the road, a chunky 2850 pounds of steel-muscled power that can flick you out of tight spots as fast as your toe can tap.

More than that you've got a solid sports car chassis under you—not a cut-down convertible—with road grip, taut suspension, massive brakes and razor-sharp steering to match its blazing performance. You've got the safest combination of handling, control and balance that internationally famous engineers can design into a car—and the result is more pure driving pleasure than you have ever known before. But put it through its paces yourself—we'll be delighted to let you sample the V8 that goes like a V2.

Glass-fiber-reinforced plastic body • 195-h.p. valve-in-head V8 engine or 155-h.p. 6 with triple carburetors • Powerglide automatic transmission • Center-Point steering, 16 to 1 ratio • Form-fitting individual seats • Full instrumentation, with tachometer, oil gauge, and ammeter.

STOCK MARKET'S 4TH WEEK OF REACTION PONDEROUS

Price Movement for Most Part Sluggish and Sometimes Even Confusing.

By RADER WINGET

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 (AP)—The stock market went through its fourth week of reaction in a ponderous manner. Price movements this week for the most part were sluggish and sometimes confusing when an attempt was made to relate them to a coherent pattern.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down 60 cents on the week and closed at $171.30.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed the week 3.44 points under the previous period at 453.57. The 20 rails, however, gained .90 af a point at $154.99. The 15 utilities dropped .06 to 65.34.)

It was early in July that the average at $177.00 signaled a record peak in market prices. Right after that the present reaction started. For the past two weeks it has been a slow motion affair.

As to the Future.

This has led some Wall Street analysts to conclude that the market quite possibly is getting ready for a rally. They feel that a rally could start from present levels if the market continues quietly to consolidate its position. However, others think that the market will have to sell off in a test of its previous low point before it will be ready for a rally of any consequence.

In the past, such rallies or tests of the lows preceding a rally have been accompanied by heavy volume. Business this week came to a daily average of 1,454,000 shares, lowest since early in January of 1954. The daily average so far this year is around 2,700,000 shares. In view of this condition, Wall Street is watching volume indications with a wary eye.

The week's total volume of trade was 7,273,870 shares, compared with 8,694,470 a week ago. The number of issues traded dropped, 1403, against 1411. Of the total, 687 closed lower, 535 higher and 181 unchanged.

Coppers Are Strong.

Coppers were strong during the week in anticipation of a price increase for the metal. When the increase came—to 40 cents from 36 cents a pound—most coppers sold off on the news. Neither the higher swing nor the lower dip was violent.

Du Pont fell sharply at the start of the week under the weight of disappointed selling that followed declaration of a dividend of $1.50 as compared with $1.25 in previous quarters. Traders evidently had expected something better. The stock fell 6½ points at 218½, and then recovered, but at the end of the week it was down again at 218½.

There was one indication of basic market strength during the week when railroads rallied briskly. That raised the hopes of the bulls who pointed out that the rails many times before have provided the inspiration for a substantial forward movement with a quick rally.

The market on Monday was slightly lower on the smallest volume since early in 1954. Tuesday's market was much lower on increased volume, but strength in the coppers bolstered the sagging list.

Mid-Week Market.

Wednesday the market ran in cross currents of buying and selling that left prices up on average but there were more individual issues down than up. Improvement in the list came from a late rally in steels, motors and railroads. Thursday's market was also thoroughly mixed with prices down on average but with more gainers than losers in the list. The final day of the week had a slightly higher market with trading quiet.

SENSATIONAL NEW WAY TO GET COLUMBIA (LP) RECORDS

How is it possible to offer such valuable Columbia (LP) records free of cost? The answer is: another innovation by Columbia Records. Yes, the same famous recording company that originated the (LP) record and pioneered high fidelity recording now launches the Columbia (LP) Record Club, with a sensational new plan for the benefit of record buyers and record dealers. This plan provides the surest, easiest, most convenient way ever devised to obtain the records you want – in your own home – and at tremendous savings. These savings, effected by the large-scale economies of club operation, are passed on to you by Columbia Records and your established Columbia Records dealer in the form of extra, free Bonus records.

THE RECORDS YOU WANT DELIVERED TO YOUR DOOR

Each month, the Club's musical experts make their selections of the top records in four major fields of music. As a member, you may choose the Club Division which offers the kind of music you like best, the finest performances of world-famous orchestras, conductors, singers and instrumentalists. The Columbia (LP) Record Club makes available to members the very cream of Columbia (LP) records in these four musical Divisions:

1. Classical
2. Listening and Dancing
3. Broadway, Movies, Television and Musical Comedies
4. Jazz

As a member, you receive advance information about all of these selections. You are free to accept or reject any of them. You decide at leisure, in easy-chair comfort at home. The records you want are delivered to your door by mail, direct from the Columbia factory – factory-sealed in protective plastic envelopes and never before played. AND for every two records you buy, you receive a special 12" Columbia (LP) Bonus record FREE!

A FREE BONUS RECORD FOR EVERY TWO YOU BUY

Yes, you receive a free 12" Columbia (LP) Bonus record for every two regular Club Selections you accept. All Bonus records will be of the same superlative quality – 12" Columbia (LP) records! What's more, they will be special records made exclusively for Club members, in limited editions not available to the general public. They will be records of such unusual interest and importance as to make them collectors' items. Every type of music will be selected for Bonus records. You make your own choice from a wide selection.

FREE! COLUMBIA (LP) RECORD CLUB MAGAZINE
EXPERT GUIDANCE IN CHOOSING RECORDS

As a member, you receive every month, free, the attractive Columbia (LP) Record Club Magazine which lists and describes the Club's current Selections in each musical Division, with alternate recommendations. The Magazine also provides helpful interpretive notes and interesting information about the composers and recording artists represented.

HOW THE CLUB OPERATES

You enroll in the Division of your choice. However, regardless of the Division you join, you will be free to choose records from any other Division. The monthly Magazine brings you complete, advance information about all Club Selections. It lists the monthly Selection and an alternate choice in each of the four Divisions.

Naturally, you will be most interested in the record Selection for your Division. If you decide you'd like to have it, you simply let it come to you, automatically, by mail. If you do not want it, you so notify the Club by returning the convenient mailing form always provided. You may, if you wish, order the alternate record for your Division, or records from any other Division. Or you may take no record at all that month. It is entirely for you to say which records you want or do not want.

Your only obligation as a member is to accept at least four records a year from among all the Club's monthly Selections and alternates. This gives you a yearly total of almost 100 outstanding records from which to choose four. You may cancel your membership any time after purchasing four records.

CHOOSE THE RECORDS YOU WANT PAY FOR THEM LATER

All records are mailed to you without your sending any money in advance. There is nothing to pay on delivery. Records are billed to you at the regular list price, usually $3.95, but occasionally $4.98 when the list price requires. A small charge is added for mailing. Of course, free Bonus records are given for every two records purchased regardless of price.

HOW TO JOIN

You may enroll at any established Columbia Records dealer's shop. Your dealer will be happy to help you choose your free gift record, which the Club will send you, and he will send your membership application direct to Club Headquarters. Or, if more convenient, you have only to mail the handy coupon. In either case, you get your gift record free.

ACT NOW! DON'T MISS THIS GREAT FREE OFFER!

IMPORTANT DISTRIBUTORSHIPS AVAILABLE

Requires $10,000 — $40,000

Depending on Territory and Contracts

A well rated New York Manufacturer of Hospital Equipment will release a product for home use in September. This is the most important and sensational product ever offered in the consumer field. Nothing like it has ever been offered or manufactured before. This brand new product has been evaluated in large hospitals.

A large research program has been in progress for three years. Medical papers are being released in August giving actual results of its use. A top publicity firm will handle news releases—top consumer periodicals will carry advertising announcing its release starting September 30. These include Saturday Evening Post, Colliers, American Weekly, American Magazine, House Beautiful, Vogue, Esquire, Fortune, Harvard Review, and a long list of Health magazines. Distributors will be given exclusive territory. Must have excellent, successful business background, be strong financially and have ability to hire top sales managers and field personnel.

Market tested in several cities shows very high sales potential—in a one million population territory should net $40,000 yearly. This product will be sold direct to the home. Television, newspaper advertising for leads proved great consumer desire. Write giving complete background to: Publicity Corporation of America, Dept. N, 1150 Avenue of The Americas, New York 36, N.Y.

More Than 200 Hardware Men Join Mutually-Owned Buying Agency Here; Buy Warehouse

More than 200 independent hardware dealers, in St. Louis, on the East Side, and scattered across Missouri, have organized a new mutually-owned wholesale corporation, with headquarters here, and the concern last week bought a huge six-story brick office and warehouse structure close to downtown St. Louis.

The new company is called the Associated Hardware Company. William H. Bryan, who resigned as president of the Witte Hardware Corporation of St. Louis, has been named president and general manager of the new company, which expects to have its new St. Louis warehouse functioning in 60 to 90 days.

The company last week bought from the Warner-Lambert Pharmaceutical Co. (formerly Warner-Hudnut, Inc.) the property number 404 South Fourth street, which is a big, solid six-story brick building covering a whole city block and containing 308,905 square feet of floor space, from Third to Fourth street, from Valentine to Spruce. It is understood consideration was in excess of $250,000. The Carl G. Stifel Realty Co. was agent in the deal.

With some cleaning and the installation of what they believe to be the most efficient merchandise handling equipment, the new company will be ready to begin operations in the building.

Bryan said the new association of dealers has established relationship with Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co., Evanston, Ill., an old-line distributor which maintains a 30,000-item, $6,000,000 hardware inventory in a 15-acre warehouse property and which does a $30,000,000 annual volume of business, and will be able to buy and distribute to its dealer-owners more efficiently through formation of the new company and through the association with Hibbard.

O. W. Ahl of Hibbard's will serve as treasurer of the new St. Louis organization and an advisory board has been set up consisting of the following dealers: Henry Wachtel, Saeger-Wachtel Hardware, East St. Louis; E. L. Dunlop, E. L. Dunlop Hardware, Bowling Green, Mo.; Earl A. Kahle, Kahle & Son Hardware Co., Granite City; Carl Hanneke, Hanneke Hardware, St. Louis; Wesley C. Johnson, St. John's Hardware, St. John's, Mo.; Virgil Lefholz, Lefholz Hardware, St. Louis; Percy D. Haydon, Haydon Hardware, Houston, Mo.; A. M. Jackson, A. M. Jackson Hardware, Sikeston, Mo.; Erwin Nieman, Erwin J. Nieman Lumber Co., Mount Olive, Ill.; Lewis Gross, A. F. Gross & Sons, Carlyle, Ill.; William Hartel, Hartel Hardware, Steelville; Al Miller, Gorelock Hardware, Webster Groves; David M. Jones, Bordeaux Hardware, Jefferson City.

These advisory council members were elected to serve one year.

Bryan said member-ownership in the new company has not been closed and that dealers will be added on a selective basis as appears warranted. Membership in the new company will not prohibit dealers buying from other sources, but the company will seek to do a more efficient buying and distribution job among members than they could do individually, or through other sources.

$5000 AN ACRE PAID FOR TRACT ON HIGHWAY 66

In a sale conducted in connection with payment of taxes on an estate and the settlement of the estate, $5000 an acre was paid last week for an eight-acre tract on Highway 66, southwest of Kirkwood in St. Louis county. The deal was closed Wednesday.

The property, west of the Branson (Meramec) Airport, was sold for the estate of Lillian Horan by Anthony Canzoneri, lawyer, who is executor of the estate. Total consideration, Canzoneri said, was $40,000, with title going to the Lindbergh Realy & Investment Co.

The property fronts 800 feet on Highway 66 and runs 423 feet deep to a street at the rear.

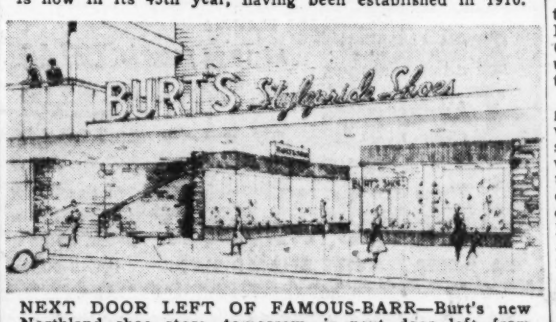
The Lindbergh corporation is an investment agency which holds title to considerable acreage in the county, Canzoneri said.

Warson Village Shopping Center Being Extended Westward With Two New Buildings, More Stores

MANCHESTER ROAD DEVELOPMENT—Work of wrecking old buildings on the site to the west of the present Warson Village Shopping Center has begun, to make way for Units No. 4 and No. 5 in expansion of the center westward along Manchester road, increasing the development to 13 acres, with 161,000 square feet of space under roof, parking for 1200 cars, housing for some 35 stores and service shops.

Satellite Stores at Northland

ON UPPER LEVEL—New branch store of the Weil Clothing Co. opened last Friday in Northland Shopping Center with Henry Brock as manager. Located on the upper level of the northeast shopping mall, the new Weil store occupies 6300 square feet, all on one floor, making it one of the larger stores in the shopping center. Air-conditioned and modernly equipped, the store will carry a full line of clothing and furnishings for men and boys. Many self-service fixtures have been installed. The St. Louis owned and operated firm is now in its 45th year, having been established in 1910.



NEXT DOOR LEFT OF FAMOUS-BARR—Burt's new Northland shoe store, tomorrow, is next door left from Famous-Barr in the new shopping center. Facade is of mottled ivory terra cotta, with large plate glass show windows in extruded aluminum sash. Floor is terrazzo, extending through store to wrapping counter where charcoal tweed carpeting begins. Contempoary harlequin desgin wallpaper in beige and off-pink contrasts, inwall decor, with display panel of black corded plastic. This is Burt's second St. Louis store. First was opened downtown 20 years ago.

STRIKING EXTERIOR—Stone construction combined with expansive plate glass area making up entire south wall, and glass at front and side entrances mark Baker's new Northland Shoe store, opening next Thursday. Interior wall decor is glass cloth, with a scenic mural on one side. This, second Baker shoe store in St. Louis, soon is to be followed by opening of third, at Westroads Center, Clayton and Forsyth, and still another on Forsyth in Clayton.

BAKER'S OPENING THREE NEW SHOE STORES IN FALL

"There will be three more Baker's Shoe Stores in St. Louis this fall," Harry Edison, president of Edison Brothers Stores, Inc., reports.

The new Baker's Shoe store in Northland Center, Jennings, to be opened next Thursday, will be followed by another unit in the Forsyth Shopping Center, opposite Famous-Barr in Clayton. The third store will be in the Stix, Baer and Fuller Company's new Westroads development. These are in addition to the original Baker's Shoe Store in downtown St. Louis.

"We are following our customers to the suburbs with large modern stores," said Edison. "Each of these new units will have complete lines. It is our belief that downtown business will continue to be good and that the new families settling in the suburban areas will keep these new stores busy, also."

Edison Brothers Stores, Inc., of St. Louis is the nation's largest exclusive retailer of women's shoes.

SECOND BURT'S SHOE STORE TO OPEN THURSDAY

"Burt's, one of America's large retailers of women's shoes, will open its second St. Louis shoe store, and its forty-seventh in the nation Thursday in the Northland Shopping Center," reports William George, Burt's manager. "Burt's specializes in bringing fashion-minded customers expensive looking creations at pin-money prices."

The other St. Louis Burt's Shoe Store, at 413 North Sixth street, opened March 1, 1935.

The new, modern store will handle a complete line of hosiery and handbags, many of which are fashion-co-ordinated with the store's line of shoes.

Opening Today Of Subdivision In Florissant

Formal opening has been planned for today of a new subdivision in Florissant, called "Fernbrook." It is a project of the Marion S. Miller Co., with the J. Ben Miller Realty Co., a promotion agent.

The subdivision is a tract of 25 acres in which five new streets are being developed. Streets are to be named Fernbrook lane, Fenmore drive, Tyson drive, Tyson court and Mark Twain drive.

Separate storm and sanitary sewer lines have been installed and work on the streets is in progress. They will be concrete surfaced with integral saucer-lip curbs.

Homes to be erected are three-bedroom factory-fabricated designed from National Homes Corporation, designed by Architect Charles M. Goodman and color-styled for the subdivision by Beatrice West.

The ground in the subdivision rolls slightly and streets have been laid out in curving patterns in a land planning job done by the Kropp Engineering Co.

Gas heat is to be installed in as many of the homes as can be prepared under the deadline set for gas heating by Laclede Gas Co. in this year's crop of homes, or gas and oil combinations, where foundations are laid down later.

AGENCY MOVES OFFICE

The Korte Realty & Loan Co., which has had offices in the Arcade building in downtown St. Louis for many years, reports moving to 6204 West Florissant avenue, in the northwestern section of the city. Operations there are scheduled to begin tomorrow, according to John F. Hoene, president of Korte. Hilda M. Straub is secretary of the company.

Builders Name A St. Louisan New Executive

Milford T. Schick, 4616 Lindell boulevard, has been employed by the Home Builders' Association of Greater St. Louis as exeuctive secretary, succeeding L. E. Neville, who's death occurred recently.

Although Schick has been around the country and, in military duty, into some of World War Two's hot spots, he is practically native to St. Louis, having lived a great part of his life here. Born in Davenport, Ia., in 1905, he was brought to St. Louis when very young, went to grade schools here and was graduated from Washington University in 1926 with a bachelor of science degree.

He will officially take over the builders on Sept. 1, but, with National Home Week coming up (Sept. 10-18) he actually will be unofficially into the work before that time.

Schick has a considerable background as an organizer and developer of trade associations and similar groups. In 1948-49 he was executive vice-president of the St. Paul (Minn.) Chamber of Commerce and while in that capacity organized the Home Builders Association of St. Paul and served as its executive secretary for a time. He left there in the early 1950's to do the same kind of job in Evansville, Ind., both for the Chamber of Commerce and builders, and came to St. Louis about a year ago on a special assignment as vice-president of the mineral division of the Algonquin (Mo.) Chemical Corporation.

Schick got into Chamber of Commerce work when he was graduated at Washington and the late George C. Smith hired him to do the research that led to establishment of the Industrial Bureau of St. Louis, now an

DEALERS IN IRON MOVE

The S.J. Scrap Iron & Salvage Co., which has been at 2108 North Broadway, has moved its operation to a newly acquired property at 515 East De Soto street. The new yard location gives the firm 75,000 square feet of space and a Terminal Railroad spur. The firm, in business for 10 years, is operated by Richard Fein and Max Olevitch, both veterans of World War II. They deal in ferrous and nonferrous metals at wholesale and in used steel products and shapes.

GENE L. VESCOVO

The Home Builders' Association of Greater St. Louis last week elected Gene L. Vescovo, 33 Fox Meadows, to be the association's president in 1956. He will succeed Richard C. Higginbotham, when installed Oct. 15 at a traditional dinner-dance ceremonial.

Vescovo is a subdivider and builder of homes.

The Association elected four vice presidents, each of whom gets distinctive duties to perform. Jerry Borgschulte of the Borgschulte Building and Realty Co. was named first vice president; John B. Herdlein, engineer and builder, second vice president; Charles J. (Bud) Sweeney,

Expansion Gets Under Way at Warson Village

The White Development Co. has begun demolition of old buildings to the west of the Warson Village Shopping Center, between Berry and Sappington roads, on the north side of Manchester road at the western edge of Rock Hill, for the beginning of a considerable expansion program. Just east of Kirkwood, the center is said to serve an area with 100,000 population within five-minute driving range.

Two new buildings are to be erected, units No. 4 and No. 5 of the center, and the area of the development will be increased to 13 acres, with a total of 161,000 square feet under roof, parking area for 1200 cars, some 35 stores. The two new buildings will have a total of 90,000 square feet.

Warson Village already houses a National Food Center store, a Kroger Food Market, a Ben Franklin variety store, a Ozark Paint Store, a Rexall drug store and nine other sales and service establishments, together with a 10,000 square-foot area of medical and dental offices, all in operation.

Expansion is predicated upon commitment of the W. T. Grant Co. for a 30,000 square-foot area for establishment of a junior department store with some 33 departments; Carifiol's leasing, for a furniture store, Barr H. Crawford, who has been on assignment for International Harvester Co. at Pittsburgh, has been named motor truck district manager for the company in the St. Louis area. He will succeed C. A. Samuelson, who's had the job here the last 10 years, and will retire in the fall.

Crawford already has come to St. Louis and will tour the St. Louis area with Samuelson in the next few weeks learning to know dealers and customers here. An introductory and farewell luncheon for the two men was held at the Sheraton Hotel last week with International employes in this district.

Crawford has a 21-year background with International, formerly has been in Kansas City and Los Angeles. Samuelson joined International in 1912 at Minneapolis, had been here since the fall of 1944.

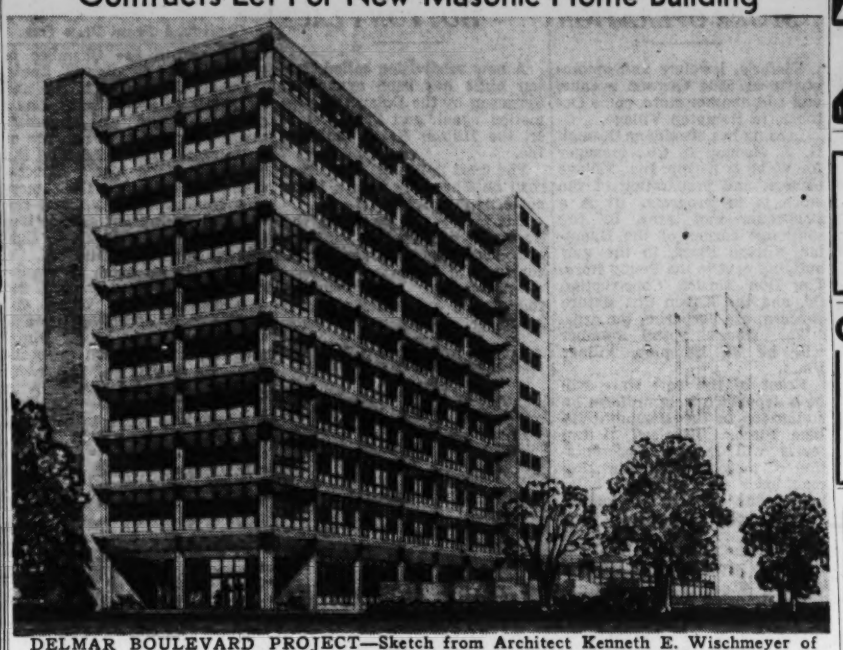
Contracts Let For New Masonic Home Building



DELMAR BOULEVARD PROJECT—Sketch from Architect Kenneth E. Wischmeyer of 10-story residence and infirmary building, for which the Masonic Home of Missouri has let contracts, to be erected attached to present buildings of the home in the 5300 block of Delmar boulevard.

Masonic Home Contracts Let By Directors

Directors of the Masonic Home of Missouri here approved plans and contracts have been let for construction of a new residence and infirmary building at the Masonic Home, 5351 Delmar boulevard.

The structure will be 10 stories tall and will be attached to present buildings. It will replace the existing infirmary and men's residence buildings which are old and inadequate.

Contracts were awarded to the Moeller Construction Co. for the general work; Westinghouse Elevator Co. for the elevators, Phil I. Miller Co. for the plumbing; Peters-Eichler Heating Co. for heating, ventilating, refrigeration and gas piping; Gamp Electric Co. for electrical work, and Walton-Viking Co., Inc., for the fire protection and sprinkler system. The Moeller Co. will assume obligations of the whole operation in one contract with the Masonic Home.

The $2,500,000 addition will increase facilities for elderly Freemasons at the Home. Second to fifth floors inclusive will provide 17 patient rooms per floor with related infirmary facilities, creating a total of 68 patients' rooms for a maximum occupancy of 131 infirm patients, with five single and 63 double room accommodations.

The sixth to tenth floors will contain 20 residential bedrooms per floor with a total of 100 rooms and maximum capacity of 200 persons.

In addition to these facilities there will be 11 double rooms for elderly couples.

The building will include lounge, reading rooms, library, meditation chapel, elevator lobby for three elevators, medical suite for ambulatory residents, X-ray room, treatment rooms, recreation rooms, sun decks and a new laundry.

The structure will be of structural steel, fireproofed, with brick masonry curtain walls, aluminum windows and doors, terrazzo floors in all public spaces; vinyl plastic floors in hospital and residential rooms; plastered interiors, steel door frames and wood doors. Heating will be by steam from the present central plant; lighting will be a combination of fluorescent and incandescent, and plumbing will be a currently modern design.

Orestes Mitchell Jr., St. Joseph lawyer, is grand master of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Missouri and president of the board of directors of the home. Lewis C. Robertson is superintendent of the home. Kenneth E. Wischmeyer of St. Louis is the architect; Leslie J. Bergmeier the structural engineer and George Horch the mechanical engineer.

of a building at the extreme west end of the area (which formerly housed a food store and other tenants, burned out last summer and is being rebuilt); and negotiations for a considerable number of other leases.

White said a ladies' ready-to-wear chain, a women's department store operation, and others are among those with whom negotiations are in progress. A 3000 square-foot area is to be prepared for a quality restaurant. Some present tenants will expand into larger units.

Carifiol is expected to be able to open the new furniture store in September.

Site planning for the expansion has been done by landscape architects Layton, Layton and Rodes, and the buildings have been designed and detailed by the architectural firm of Bernoudy and Mutrux, White said.

The buildings will be contemporary styled, with wide, covered walkways, brick facades, and with many shops fronting on a landscaped parkway leading to a rear parking area. Major stores will have two fronts, opening to both front and rear parking areas, and some secondary stores will be arranged to front on the rear area only. Larger apparel stores will be arranged with mezzanine areas.

Demolition of old buildings on the site includes one which has been occupied by the Gardner-Denver Co., manufacturers of air-reduction equipment and other machinery. This firm has taken space in a building near the St. Louis Municipal Airport, White said.

JEWELER ADDING HAMPTON VILLAGE STORE OPERATION

Kiefer's, jewelers and optometrists at 5204 Gravois avenue, will add another store, come October, in Hampton Village.

Leasing has been done through G. J. Nooney & Co., manager for Webb & Knapp, Inc., Village owners, and preparation of the store is in progress. It is a 3000-square-foot area in the southeast corner of the Hampton Village Plaza, in the new building next to the Penny store. The Don Musick Construction Co. and the Koken Co., fixture concern, are preparing the area.

The store's postal number will be 38 Hampton Village Plaza.

Front of the new store will be a departure from uniform installations in the Hampton Village Plaza. Displays at two levels will facilitate presentation of merchandise. Pink Roman brick will form the bulkheads with terrazzo of complimentary color in the entry way. Varying glass areas and accents of aluminum trim have been designed to provide a full view of the interior.

The interior will be lighted by direct and indirect rays with alternate use of incandescent and flourescent units, and with a decorative chandelier in the center of the store. Most modern equipment will be installed in the optical department and waiting room.

A "diamond room" will be arranged for private consultation and showing of gems.

Repair and service shops will occupy rear and basement areas of the store. General decor will be blonde and walnut woods in the fixtures with muted colors in the walls.

Founded in 1919 by Eugene W. and the late Emma C. Kiefer, the firm now is operated by the senior Kiefer and two sons, Eugent M. and William F.

210-ACRE FARM NEAR TROY SOLD AT AN AUCTION

John Sigillito, 2491 St. Cyr road, St. Louis county, purchased at auction a 210-acre farm on Highway 61, six miles north of Troy, Lincoln county, Missouri, George Wilson of the Wilson Realty Co. of Washington, Mo., reports. Wilson was the agent in the transaction and set up the auction for the seller, Carl Ederle.

Consideration in the deal was $32,760, Wilson said. Walter Botkin, Wilson's representative and an auctioneer, auctioned the farm and, later, the equipment on it. Equipment was sold separately, to other persons, Wilson said, since Sigillito does not expect to develop his own use of the farm until next spring.

The agent said the land was of highly productive quality, with some 48 acres in corn this year; with a good stand of clover, and having a good wheat crop. There also is a good set of buildings.

Wilson said the selling of farm and other rural properties at auction is beginning to be a trend in some Missouri areas, that there was a sizable group of St. Louis area bidders at the sale of the Ederle place.

entity within the Chamber of Commerce of Greater St. Louis.

During the early Thirties and later, Schick served in St. Louis as management and organizational officer for a number of trade associations, including the St. Louis Hotel Men's Association; regionally for the American Hotel Association and the National Restaurant Association, and later for the Chefs de Cuisine of New York City.

When the oil boom hit Southern Illinois, he organized his own concern, the "Viking Oil Co.," a field operation through which he brought in the Olney pool for the Pure Oil Corporation. He disposed of this interest upon entering the navy in September, 1942, saw duty as an operations office in conjunction with campaigns in Africa, Sicily and Italy.

In December, 1945, he began a two-year assignment in Washington for Under Secretary of Commerce Alfred Schindler reorganizing the field offices of the United States Department of Commerce, with the title of "Deputy Director of Field Service." It was from this that he went to St. Paul.

Schick said when the builders' secretarial job became available and it was recommended to him he became interested because he believes the association has been soundly established and ably developed by Neville and has a high potential of growth, and that from long association with persons and procedures in St. Louis is confident of what the future holds here for the construction industries.

Moot Question of The Baseball Bonus.

ONE of baseball's most controversial subjects, the wisdom of paying a big bonus to an untested recruit, is brought front and center again by the Cardinals' signing of an Oklahoma pitcher, whose experience has been limited to high school, American Legion and semi-pro diamonds.

The Cardinals didn't state exactly what they paid 19-year-old Lyndall McDaniel, of Hollis, Okla., but they did say they gave him more than they had given Dick Schofield and the press conference guess was that the bonus amounted to $40,000.

Baseball recognizes that the bonus is a grave problem and has a rule that penalizes any club that pays more than $6000 to an untried player. Such a player may not be sent to a minor league for the normally necessary period of development and training until he has been on the major league roster for two full seasons.

McDaniel is the second bonus player signed during the Busch regime. Schofield, given $35,000 when he signed, spent two full seasons with the Redbirds. Now he's playing at Omaha, getting the daily work that he should have been getting while he was spending most of his afternoons and evenings on the Cardinal bench.

Thus there are advantages and disadvantages for the bonus player. It is good economy to be able to bank the bonus money nest egg. McDaniel, without going into the tax problem, is able to bank in a lump sum more money than many fairly good ballplayers, in the majors, are able to accumulate in a career of eight or ten years.

On the other hand, the two years after a young man signs a baseball contract are most important to his development. During those years he should be playing every day, learning the trade. On the bench an athlete can learn baseball theory, but to acquire manual skill, he should be playing competitive baseball every day. During two years on a major league bench a young man could lose much of his natural talent. Certainly, in most cases, the two years on the bench delay his arrival as a major leaguer, worthy of a major league salary.

Young Pitchers Seem To Have an Advantage.

PITCHERS seem to have an edge over infielders or outfielders in the bonus picture, although even in their case regular work in a minor league would be preferred by major league officials to observation from a big league bench.

Johnny Antonelli, now with the Giants, and Frank Baumann, St. Louis product now with the Red Sox, took different roads to the majors. Antonelli, signed when the bonus rule was in effect, had to sit on the Boston Braves' bench for two years. That not only slowed Johnny's advancement as a pitcher, but created a bad situation on the Boston club. The Braves had a fine staff of veterans then and there was virtually an indignation strike because the untried kid had been paid $65,000. Lou Perini had to get out the check book to appease some of his skilled pitching veterans.

Baumann, on the other hand, was signed during a period when the bonus rule had been relaxed. The Red Sox were able to send him to Louisville, where he was able to learn about pitching away from the shadow of major league sluggers' bats.

One of the big complaints against big bonus payments is raised by the minor leagues, whose economic condition has been becoming more precarious with the passing years. Their argument, a sound one, is that the money being paid to bonus babies could contribute to the saving of the minor leagues. The $40,000 paid to McDaniel, for instance, would keep four good minor league clubs in business for a full season, the minors contend. And the four minor league clubs could be developing scores of major league prospects. Folding minor league clubs—and there are too many of them—frequently mention lack of financial support from the majors as the big cause of their trouble.

Bonus Rule, at Best, Is a Necessary Evil.

THEORETICALLY the bonus rule is designed to prevent the wealthier major league clubs from hogging all the young baseball talent. Actually the wealthier clubs still get most of the prize rookies because only the wealthy clubs can afford to gamble that much money on untried rookies.

Opponents of the bonus practice, rather than the rule cite many objections to paying large sums to youngsters. They will tell you about the effect a bonus paid to one athlete has on his high school or sandlot playing companions.

Joe Doque, for instance, may get $50,000 for signing a contract. The shortstop, second baseman and leftfielder on Joe's high school or sandlot team believe they're pretty good ball players, too. And so if they don't get a similar bonus, they get huffy and spurn baseball as a career. In the old days, before the bonus, the shortstop, second baseman and leftfielder would have gone along with Joe Doque to a trial camp and so there would have been four big league prospects in the hopper, instead of one.

There is no certainty that any bonus player will make the big league grade. It's still a big, expensive gamble. Take the case of Paul Pettit, the California high school boy who was given $100,000 by the Pittsburgh Pirates way back in unhappy Chandler days. He hasn't pitched a big league ball yet.

In the case of the Cardinals we must say that we believe the gamble by Gussie Busch is very much worth while. So many members of the Cardinal staff have looked like high school pitchers that it isn't unreasonable to hope that a high school boy may look like a big leaguer.

Fast Close By Traffic Judge Nets The Place

CHICAGO, Aug. 20 (UP) — Swaps won easily over five challengers today in the mile and three-sixteenths American Derby on grass at Washington Park and added $89,600 to his earnings.

It was Swaps's eighth victory in as many three-year-old starts and he tied the American record for the distance with a time of 1:54 3-5. The time was a new track record, surpassing the old mark of 1:54 4-5 set by Volcanic on Aug. 25, 1951.

There was never much doubt that Swaps, backed down by the crowd of 25,178 to 1-5 favorite in the six-horse field, was going to win.

Though it was his first appear on a grass course, Jockey Willie Shoemaker had him in front by a length when the field went by the finish line for the first time after running three-sixteenths of a mile. Shoemaker held him tightly in control and let the rest of the field try to keep up.

Even in the home stretch, when Clifford Mooer's Traffic Judge came fast to finish second, Shoemaker had Swaps pulled back and was looking over his shoulder for potential challengers.

As Traffic Judge came up, Shoemaker let Swaps go briefly and he lengthened his stride immediately to hold his one-length margin.

Swaps, owned by Rex Ellsworth, paid $2.40 and $2.20 while Traffic Judge returned $3.40. There was no show betting.

The California Comet packed 126 pounds and conceded from 7 to 13 to his five rivals. The breakdown in Swaps's clocking was :23 3-5 for the first quarter, :47 2-5 for the half, 1:11 4-5 at three-quarters, and 1:35 4-5 at the mile.

Swaps' victory increased his total earnings for two years to $439,500 and his three-year-old earnings to $418,550.

Traffic Judge, who picked up $30,000 second money, increased his 1955 earnings to $143,289.

Show money of $15,500 went to Mrs. Harvey C. Fruehauf's Parador, who was four lengths behind Traffic Judge, while Hasty House Farms' Summer Solstice finished fourth for $10,000, a length and a half ahead of W. L. Ranch's Honeys Alibi. Mrs. Harry L. Nathenson's Ambiguous trailed the field.

The crowd bet two thirds of its money on Swaps. The win pool totaled $120,866 with $80,627 on Swaps, while of the place pool of $95,065, a total of $65,878 was on the Ellsworth colt. The heavy place backing created a minus pool for which the track had to contribute $1933.10 to pay off the Swaps's supporters at the legal minimum.

The win apparently proved that Swaps was ready for his match race against Nashua, expected to settle the three-year-old championship. The match is scheduled for Aug. 31 at Washington Park for a $100,000 winner-take-all purse.

Near Strikeout Mark.

WICHITA, Kas., Aug. 20 (INS)—Cecil Davis struck out 18 men tonight as he hurled his Grand Junction, Colo., teammates to an 8 to 0 win over Fort Smith, Ark., in the first round of the National Amateur Baseball tournament at Wichita.

Davis' 18 strikeouts was two short of the tourney record set by former St. Louis Browns' pitcher Al Lamacchia in 1943.

Just a Breeze for Shoemaker---in Record Time

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

It looks close but it really wasn't that close, turf observers agreed, as Swaps, with Jockey WILLIE SHOEMAKER belatedly urging him on, crosses the finish line first in the $146,425 American Derby at Chicago. The margin over the fast-closing Traffic Judge was one length, with Parador (at right) third. The time of 1:54 3-5 for the mile and three-sixteenths equalled the American turf record recently set by Platan in the Arlington Handicap.

'Swaps Needed The Competition,' His Owner Says

CHICAGO, Aug. 20 (UP).

REX ELLSWORTH, whose three-year-old Swaps won today's American Derby, said that in his opinion the race was not "one of his toughest races."

"I feel he'll be even tougher against Nashua on Aug. 31," Ellsworth said. "He needed this tougher competition after his more-than-a-month layoff."

Trainer Meshach Tenney said he thought Swaps won easily and that "The race was all over at the eighth pole as far as our outfit was concerned."

Swap's jockey, Willie Shoemaker, said he thought the horse was "a little tired toward the end," but said he wasn't worried at any time.

DeAndreis Girl, 16, Casts to Fourth Title

Imelda Ann Gavin, 16-year-old junior at DeAndreis High School, who scored a double victory in the national skish competition Friday, came through with a repeat performance in the National Casting Championships yesterday on the Post-Dispatch Lake in Forest Park.

Miss Gavin, winner of several titles this season in the Missouri Valley and city casting tournaments, won the women's dry fly distance championship with 96 points to start yesterday's action. The St. Louis Fly and Bait Club's young star then tied two other casters, Mrs. Mollie Schneider of Clarksville, Ind., and Mrs. Zelma Stevenson of Kansas City, for the 3⅛-ounce accuracy top position, each with a 94.

In the castoff for the 3⅛ honors Miss Gavin scored a 96 to take the title, Mrs. Schneider had an 88 and Mrs. Stevenson an 85. In the skish tourney Miss Gavin won the women's accuracy bait event and took the women's all-accuracy, a combined title, with 181 points.

Chicagoan Tops Men.

Frank Nulty, a Chicago real estate broker, scored 98 points to capture the men's dry fly accuracy championship. Nulty had won the 1951 national all-bait title. Henry Fujita of Cleveland, a veteran caster in the nationals, won the second place castoff between four casters with a 98.

An 18-year-old Fort Worth, Tex., caster, Bobby Spear, surprised a field of 230 anglers to tally 99 points to gain the men's 3⅛-ounce accuracy championship. This score tied the national record held by five casters. Spear, who plans to attend Texas Christian University, has won the 5⅛ and 3⅛ accuracy events in Dallas tournaments previously. This is his first national tourney.

Roland Williams of Baytown, Tex., winner of the skish accuracy fly event, beat Leonard Sexauer of St. Louis in the castoff for second place. Marion Garber of Toledo, winner of the 3⅛-ounce event last year at Long Beach, Cal., nosed out a field of five casters for fourth place. They had tied with 97 each.

Recheck Helps Tarantino.

L. S. Williams, executive secretary of the NAACC, named Jon Tarantino of San Francisco as the national skish all-'round champion after all skish figures were rechecked. It is the third straight year the 18-year-old future California U. student has won this honor. Garber had given Tarantino a close run for the title.

Today's tournament-closing program will present the wet fly accuracy at 8 a.m., the 5⅛-ounce accuracy bait at 11 a.m., and the five-man team accuracy bait competition at 2 o'clock.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 20

HARVEY (10-11) Haddix, who has won five of seven games since his surprise selection to the All-Star team, and Don (1-2) Gross, Cincinnati lefthander recently obtained from Nashville, probably will be the opposing pitchers Sunday afternoon in the Cardinals' final 1955 appearance at Crosley Field.

Haddix and Tom Poholsky are the only two pitchers still remaining from the staff that began the 1954 season under Eddie Stanky. In less than two seasons the Cards have employed a shuttle system of 35 pitchers, using 29 hurlers in an unsuccessful effort to find 10 men tried and true on the mound. And the totals include neither Lyndall McDaniel, 19-year-old bonus pitcher signed Friday, nor 37-year-old Allen Gettel, obtained today from Oakland of the Pacific Coast League for cash and the use on option of Brooks Lawrence.

Manager Harry Walker explained that in bringing up Johnny Mackinson and Gettel now, the Cardinals' command hoped to get a better line on prospects for 1956 as well, if possible, help the club at the moment. "As Bing Devine said," Walker observed, "why guess all winter what a name on the roster can do next spring when it's still possible to find out this season."

The powerful Redlegs went into tonight's game with four regulars and one utility player hitting over .300 and another frontline athlete, Second Baseman Johnny Temple, close by at .298. In order in the batting order, Smokey Burgess was hitting .309, Ted Kluszewski .320, Wally Post .309 and Gus Bell .306. In addition, the quartet owned 111 home runs. Rocky Bridges, reserve infielder now playing third, had a .329 average.

Andy Varipapa, veteran trick bowler, performed on a collapsible alley as part of pre-game entertainment.

SCORE 7 TO 4; JOE GETS ALL 27 OUTS AFTER BLACK FAILS

By Bob Broeg
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 20 — Joe Nuxhall, who can finish better than he starts, and the Cardinals, who start better than they finish, demonstrated their respective long-staying and short-order skills tonight as the irrepressible Cincinnati Redlegs again trimmed the reluctant Bedbirds, 7 to 4.

Squaring the season's series between the two clubs at 10 games each, Birdie Tebbetts's strong-hitting team handed Harry Walker's athletes their fourth straight defeat by overcoming a three-run first-inning deficit for the second consecutive contest.

On Cincy's hottest night of the year—the temperature was well up in the 90s—the Cardinals again showed early foot and no staying power while Nuxhall, big Redleg southpaw, once more demonstrated how to win the hard way.

A week ago last night the Redlegs staked Big Joe to a four-run first-inning lead, but he was batted out in the third frame at Busch Stadium and the Cardinals finally won in the ninth, 8 to 7. However, the following evening Nuxhall took over after the Redbirds had routed Jackie Collum with three runs in the opening round. He shut 'em out the final eight-plus innings on five hits and gained a 5-4 victory.

Fourth Win Over Birds.

Opening this final St. Louis series at Zinzinnati, Nuxall failed to survive an inning last night, giving up three runs, but his broad-backed teammates took him off the hook by persevering to score a 7-5 triumph. And so tonight it was Big Joe's turn to show appreciation. Relieving righthanded Joe Black in the first frame after the Cardinals had tallied three times before a man was out, Nuxhall proceeded to pitch the equivalent of a complete game, retiring 27 men while yielding only one run. He gave up seven hits and walked five, but the slow starter was a fast finisher as he gained his fourteenth victory, his fourth at the expense of the Redbirds.

The loser in a game that excited a Ladies' Night crowd of 25,030, including 16,856 cash customers, was rookie retread Johnny Mackinson, who was rushed to the mound behind St. Louis starter Luis Arroyo in a heckuva hurry in the fourth inning and then removed only tardily himself in the decisive seventh frame.

Cincinnati, though held to eight blows, hit timely and took advantage of inning-opening walks. Gus Bell led the Redleg attack with a single and his twenty-third homer. For the Cardinals, again wasteful while collecting 10 safeties, Wally Moon featured the inconsistent offense with three singles and Bill Virdon thumped a two-run triple.

Fail With Men On.

Virdon's three-base blow proved to have climaxed the opening inning, thanks only to Nuxhall's effectiveness and the Cardinals' annoying habit of failure with men on, when it appeared happily that the inning would never end.

After game-opening singles by Solly Hemus and Moon, Stan Musial grounded sharply to Rocky Bridges at third base and all hands were safe, a run scoring, when Bridges threw too quickly to an uncovered second base in an effort to start a double play.

Following Virdon's triple, Nuxhall replaced Black and walked Red Schoendienst. But Rip Repulski, whose slump has become alarming, popped out, Bill Sarni hit a short outfield fly on which Schoendienst did manage to reach second after the catch. Alex Grammas then drew an intentional pass before Arroyo, ninth up in the inning, struck out.

Schoendienst led off the third with a single and Hemus the fourth with a double, but the Cardinals failed to increase their 3-0 lead. Arroyo, meanwhile, trying to finish for the first time in his last seven tries, also worked out of trouble as manfully as Nuxhall, but when he walked Wally Post to open the home fourth and Bell and Chuck Harmon singled successively for

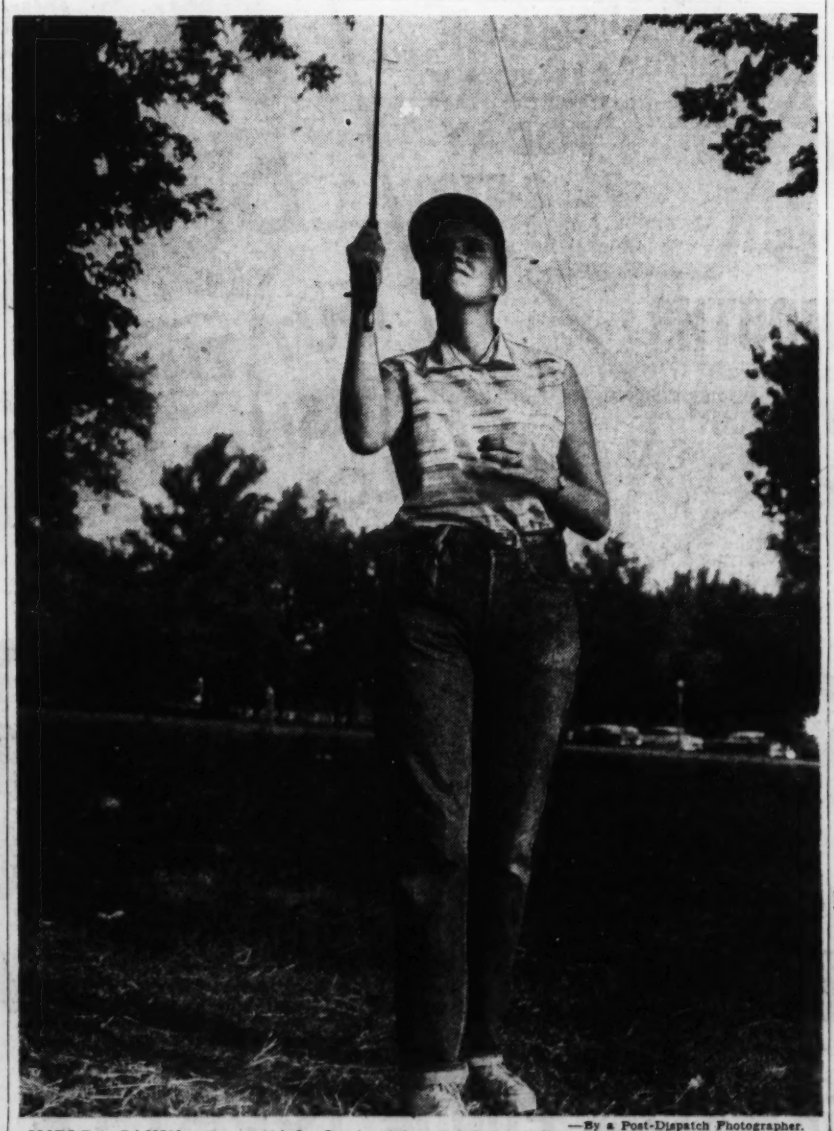
St. Louis Girl Four-Time Winner



—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

IMELDA GAVIN, 16-year-old St. Louis girl, stole the spotlight in the national fly and bait casting championship tournament here by winning four titles. She took the women's skish accuracy bait title and the all-accuracy skish crown on Friday, then came back to win the women's dry fly and ⅜-ounce accuracy championships yesterday. Her home is at 4311 Shreve avenue.

Yanks Beat Orioles 17th Time in 19 Meetings; White Sox Also Win

Brooklyn Felled by Phils, 3-2

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 (AP)—Whacking their Baltimore "cousins", 3-2, for their seventeenth victory in 19 meetings with the Orioles, the New York Yankees maintained their one-game lead in the sizzling American League race today.

Elston Howard doubled home the all-important two runs in the fourth inning to cross up Baltimore Manager Paul Richards's switch-pitching strategy and gave the Yanks a come-from-behind win.

Chicago's White Sox stayed within one length of the leaders by nipping the Detroit Tigers 8-7 as George Kell drove in five runs, including the winning one in the eighth inning at Chicago.

Wertz Helps Indians

Doubles by Gene Woodling and Vic Wertz in the seventh inning broke up a tie ball game at Cleveland and gave the Indians a 7-5 victory over the Kansas City Athletics. By winning, the Indians moved to within four percentage points of the White Sox.

Washington bumped the Boston Red Sox 4½ games of the league lead with a 6-2 victory behind the seven-hit pitching of 20-year-old Pedro Ramos. Ted Williams crashed his 22nd homer with none aboard in the fourth inning.

Ramos, rookie Cuban right-hander, notched his third win and his second at the expense of the Red Sox in snapping Washington's five-game losing streak.

In the National League, the second-place Milwaukee Braves stayed three games ahead of third-place New York by whipping Chicago, 6-1, on Ray Crone's four-hitter in Milwaukee. The Giants scored five in the twelfth inning to beat the Pirates at Pittsburgh, 14-9.

Glenn Gorbous tapped out a single to right in the eighth inning tonight, scoring Andy Seminick from second and giving the Philadelphia Phillies a 3-2 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Pitcher Moved to First.

With the Orioles leading, 2-1, runners at second and third, one out and Howard, a righthanded batter up, Richards moved Starting Lefthander Bill Wight to first base and called on Right-hander Bill Zuverink to pitch.

Howard promptly lashed a double to left-center to score what proved to be the tying and winning tallies. Wight, who yielded only five hits, returned to the mound in the fifth inning and went the rest of the way. Wight was charged with his fifth loss.

Lefty Tommy Byrne pitched five-hit ball for seven innings to gain his twelfth win against three losses. He retired after the seventh because of the 90-degree plus heat and Bob Grim and Gary (Rip) Coleman finished.

The White Sox also came from behind. Trailing 7-4, they scored two in the seventh and two more in the eighth to nose out the Tigers. Singles by Nellie Fox, Jim Rivera and Kell in the eighth produced the winning run. Kell sent his five runs in with two doubles, a single and a sacrifice fly. Fox and Rivera each collected four hits in the 18-hit assault on four Tiger hurlers.

Aaron Bats in 5 Runs.

Crone and Outfielder Henry Aaron were the big guns in Milwaukee's fourth straight victory. The 24-year-old righthander set down the Cubs in order from the third through the seventh inning to record his eighth win against seven losses. Aaron drove in five runs with a single, double and a bases-loaded triple.

Dick Littlefield's wildness opened the gates for the Giants in the third extra inning of a see-saw contest. A single, sacrifice and a wild pitch put Giants on second and third. After intentionally walking Sid Gordon to fill the bases, Littlefield forced in two runs with successive walks to Don Mueller and Hank Thompson. Vernon Law then was rapped for three more runs on singles by Wayne Terwilleger and Bobby Hofman.

Gorbous's bingle was the climax og an eighth inning flurry of activity which was the whole game for the Phillies.

Stan Lopata, the Phillies catcher who acts as a part-time first baseman, set off the three-run rally when he clouted a homer with Del Ennis aboard to tie the score, and Seminick followed with a double.

The Phillies' batting flurry also made an eigth-time loser out of Johnny Podres, Brooklyn lefthander who hasn't completed a game since June 14th. He departed in disoredr in the eighth.

Frick Rejects Braves' Plea In Conley Case

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 20 (UP) — Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick today rejected the Milwaukee Braves' request to summon a pitcher from the minor leagues as a replacement for the ailing Gene Conley.

Frick informed the Milwaukee club that he denied the request on grounds Conley's injury was not of an emergency nature, "but more of a chronic case."

The big righthander was placed on the Braves' disabled list and club officials decided to seek permission to replace him with a minor league pitcher under the emergency provisions of baseball law.

Dr. Bruce Brewer, a bone specialist, warned the Braves not to use Conley for the duration of the season because of a serious injury to the ligaments in his shoulder.

Frick's refusal also noted that Conley had been receiving treatment for the injury "on and off all season." Frick said that if Conley had been struck by a batted ball, for instance, the club would qualify for emergency replacement. The commissioner added that he had denied other clubs permission to replace sore-armed pitchers under similar circumstances.

Optioned players can not be recalled from the minors after July 31 except on special permission from Frick.

Segura Beats McGregor.

OSTEND, Belgium, Aug. 20 (AP)—Pancho Segura of Forest Hills, N.Y., defeated Ken McGregor of Australia, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3, in the opening round of a professional tennis tournament. Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles, former United States Amateur champion, stopped Fred Perry of Great Britain, 6-3, 6-4. Segura and McGregor combined to defeat Perry and Gonzales in the doubles, 8-6, 6-3.

FARMER-FATHER OF CARDS' BONUS BABY RAISING THREE SONS TO BE PITCHERS

By Jack Rice

"I've got two more pitchers," said Newell McDaniel, an Oklahoma farmer accustomed to spring estimates of fall harvests. "One's 16, and the other's 11, and this little baby, the 11-year one, has pitched a no-hitter himself this year, Little League."

McDaniel stood in the office of the Cardinal president, a sort of parlor opened for special occasions. Signing his son to a contract for an estimated $40,000 bonus was an occasion. The son, 19-year Lyndall, sat where the photographers had left him, in a large swivel chair that goes with a flatcar of a desk and is much prized by photographers as a picture prop. Young McDaniel seemed at ease, as if he had been told the chair's owner wouldn't need it right now.

He sat, smiling occasionally as people talked about him, and responded pleasantly but briefly when they talked to him. "Ever met Dizzy Dean?" a man asked, lumping the implications of both being righthanders, and pitchers, and something of a size, if you take it as Dean used to be. "You don't talk as much," he added, kindly.

"He don't talk much," said the senior McDaniel. "You won't get much outa him." The father was standing against the paneled wall, his large hand exploring the texture of the molding on a built-in television set.

Dad Vetoed Football

BONUS rookie Lyndall McDaniel was a 6-3, 195-pound freshman at Oklahoma University, but the Sooners had no chance to use him on a gridiron.

"I wouldn't let one of my boys put a football suit on," said his father, Newell McDaniel. "You know Darrell Royal? About one of the best quarterbacks Oklahoma ever had. He's one of my cousins. He knows better'n to come down here talking football to us."

"He concentrates on training. He's one of those boys just born that way, not interested in girls or anything. Exercises every night before retiring. He's a fanatic.

90-Mile Drive for Workout.

"Baseball's all these boys think about. We drive 45 miles to Altus, just for Lindy to work out, and that's 90 miles a round trip. They played 68 games; you can figure it out. My wife drives Von, he's the 16-year-old, 40 miles to play ball.

"We got some criticism on that from some of the neighbors, when they'd see me going off to drive 90 miles with the kid to play ball, after working all day, farming 320 acres, but when they hear about this bonus they'll realize it's worth it. Give a kid a car, and pretty soon you've lost both the car and the kid.

"This man's wore out two, three cars chasing me around," said McDaniel. He looked at Cardinal Scout Fred Hawn. The scout said, "That's no exaggeration, at least two. We had lots of fun, though, didn't we?"

McDaniel nodded. How many other major league automobiles did the chase claim? "About all of them, I guess," he said. "Four of them, for sure, are gonna die when they hear about this. White Sox, Tigers, Phillies—I don't know whether I can ever get the Phillies calmed down or not. Two clubs said they'd raise the Cards' offer, regardless, but this boy just wanted to play with the Cards.

"Yankees? Don't think we've got a boy in the family likes the Yankees. Tigers, White Sox, they're pretty good people in that league, Red Sox too.

Planning to Finish School.

"He's planning to finish school, going after basebal season's over. That's pretty tough, you know. Couple of boys on the Cardinals are doing it? Yes, they mentioned that when we were talking."

The father had been glancing across the room, and his son left the presidential prop chair, to sit in a lesser model, near his father. The formal interviewing had been completed some time.

Where was the money going, Cardinals to McDaniel to—? A farm, maybe? Lyndall said, "I'm thinking of it. Have two or three in mind." Cotton and alfalfa farming? He smiled, and said, "That's the only kind I know."

His father said, "Wilcey Moore—the old Yankee relief pitcher, you know?—he lives right near us, there on the Texas line. That's what Wilcey Moore did, come home every year and buy a little more land."

"I'll bet he won't run out and buy a big car, like some of these kids do," said the Cardinals' Bing Devine. Newell McDaniel and Lyndall McDaniel looked at him, as if he had taken the words right out of their mouth.

Patty Berg, Betsy Rawls First Entries in Women's Open Here

By Robert Morrison

Patty Berg, riding another crest in her 20-year career in championship golf, and Betsy Rawls, title defender, are the first definite entries for the second St. Louis Women's Open Tournament, to be played at Norwood Hills Sept. 8-11.

The 37-year-old Patricia, who has been spreading the golfing gospel professionally since 1940, is the current leading money winner following her double triumph at Tam O'Shanter recently.

She said she was lucky, but her five tournament victories this season outnumber the efforts of other circuit-traveling women players, none of whom has more than three. Patty's list of wins now includes the St. Petersburg, the Titleholders and Western Open crowns in addition to the All-American and "World."

It is one of her best winning seasons, exceeding the three victory campaign of 1954 when she was the top money winner. In 1953 she captured seven events but finished second to Louise Suggs's record money total of $19,816.

The $5000 first prize in the "World" tournament boosted Patty's 1955 total to $14,990, according to an unofficial tabulation of current earnings. Louise Suggs stands second at approximately $12,500.

In the first women's open sponsored here a year ago by the local men's P.G.A., Patty finished in a tie for fifth at 229. She was 18 strokes back of Miss Rawls, who won at Glen Echo with an impressive 211.

This year, the tournament's total purse has been increased from $3500 to $5000 and the route will be 72, instead of 54 holes.

The 27-year-old Miss Rawls, top money winner in 1952 and twice a women's national open champion, has won only once on the tour this season. The national open title of 1955 went to Fay Crocker, who is a strong third in the money winning race.

Auto Race Winner.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Jimmy Bryan, of Phoenix, Ariz., easily won the 100 mile American Automobile Association race at the Illinois State Fair today with a time of 1 hour, 6 minutes, 16 and 84-100ths seconds. His average speed was around 91 m.p.h.

Palmer's 265 Takes Canadian Open; His First Big Pro Win

SPORT GAMEDS by RED SMITH

Museum Piece.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.

A PHOTOGRAPH in the papers showed Gov. Averell Harriman viewing exhibits in the new racing museum in Saratoga in the company of Eddie Arcaro and Ted Atkinson. From a sportswriter's point of view this was good to see, for it is the impression here that New York has had no other governor since Al Smith who took cognizance of racing as an entertainment. It was time one did.

It would be good to see the President of the United States at the Kentucky Derby some year. It would be good to see him at ringside for a heavyweight championship. On the broad canvas of history, these are not important events. They are only as important as the opening of the baseball season in Washington or a golf tournament in Augusta, Ga., or a battle with a trout in Colorado.

If a president—any president—would rather play golf than throw out the opening pitch in Griffith Stadium, he ought to have that right. If he prefer taking his exercise in a trout stream to riding an electric hobby horse in the White House, God bless him.

If he isn't interested in racing or fighting, then nobody should expect him to attend. But if he is interested and remains away for fear of criticism, because some voters consider horse-playing a sinful occupation and some deem prizefighting a brutal business, then that is wrong, because he is knuckling under to narrow prejudice.

Eddie and Friend.

SO MUCH for the sermon, or whatever it is. Gov. Harriman, who used to own a stable, made a little speech in Saratoga to the effect that "racing must remain a sport, not a commercial enterprise." This was fine. Governors have not recently recognized racing as a sport, though all of them have been aware of it as a source of state revenue.

Apparently everybody was too polite to reply, "look, Governor, racing would have a lot better chance of surviving as a sport if it didn't have politicians latched onto it like lamprey eels on the belly of a whitefish. Instead of making speeches here, how about going back to Albany and talking to those guys who think that racing's only excuse for existence is to pour money into the state treasury?"

Nobody said anything like that. Indeed, one is entitled to wonder what anybody did say, for it was noted that after visiting the museum with Arcaro, Mr. Harriman went to the track and was given a tip on Dream Dancer in the first race. Dream Dancer ran second, beaten three-quarters of a length by Boot Trouble, which was ridden by G. Edward Arcaro.

What do you suppose they talked about in the museum? Troye's paintings, for heaven's sake? So all right, so Gimbel doesn't tell Macy. Doesn't Eddie tell Averill?

Mr. Fitz's Business.

NASHUA has been training at Saratoga for the match with Swaps in Chicago, and naturally there has been a good deal of talk about him. Some of it has been disconcerting; some of the comments have seemed to imply that Nashua's trainer doesn't know how to get a horse ready for a big race.

The trainer they're talking about is Jim Fitzsimmons, the dean of American horsemen, who was handling Classic winners and knocking off Triple Crowns when the guys who are second-guessing him now had pablum in their ears. It fair makes a fellow cry.

There has been, it seems here, a good deal of heat on Mr. Fitz all year, and temperatures got especially high around the time of the Arlington Classic, which Nashua won by a half-length from Traffic Judge. In some quarters that was called a dull performance, and it was implied that Nashua had been overworked before the race and had, so to speak, left his fight in the dressing room.

Well, John Fitzsimmons had a little notebook in which he keeps a record of all Nashua's performances. John is Mr. Fitz's son; he saddles the horse when his father isn't there. There was an opportunity to glance at his notebook recently.

Of Time and the Jockey.

ACCORDING to the best recollection here, Nashua's work before the classic was five-eighths of a mile in :56 3-5, which is world record time. Still depending on memory, the notion is that he went five furlongs in :57 in the classic, and finished out the mile in 1:35 1-5, which is only four-fifths of a second slower than the Arlington track record established by Equipoise in 1932, when it was also a world record.

If that's a dull race, then our adjectives need redefinition. If Mr. Fitz overworks his horses before a race, then so does Meshach Tenney, the trainer of Swaps, whose colt knocked two seconds off the American grass course record the other day when he worked five furlongs in :57 2-5.

"Funny thing," John Fitz said: "When Eddie finished that work before the Classic he said to one of our stablemen, 'The boss is going to be sore at me, because he wanted to throw a good work into this horse, but I just couldn't make him run.' He said pretty much the same thing after winning the Classic. Apparently the horse went so smoothly Eddie didn't realize what speed they were making."

Short of Record by 2 Strokes

TORONTO, Aug. 20 (AP) — Arnold Palmer, who deserted the simon-pure ranks a year ago after winning the 1954 United States Amateur title, had his first big pay day as a professional today as he won the Canadian Open Golf title with a near record 265—the second lowest score in the 46-year history of the tournament.

The 25-year-old ex-Coast Guardsman from Latrobe, Pa., toured the final 18 holes of the Weston Golf Club course in two-under par 70 to smash par for the 72 holes by 23 strokes. He took the lead at the halfway mark and steadily pulled away with sub-par performances.

The 5-11 170-pound son of a Latrobe pro beat back the closing challenge of Fred Hawkins of St. Andrews, Ill., and Jackie Burke Jr., of Kiamesha Lake, N. Y., to win by four strokes. The only better score ever turned in by a winner of the Canadian Open was 263 by Johnny Palmer of Baden, N. C. (no relation), who carded a 263 at Winnipeg in 1952.

Burke shot a 69 today for a four-round total of 269.

Hawkins, who had a 68 today, wound up in third place with a 270, two strokes less than Stan Leonard of Vancouver, whose brilliant seven-under-par 65 today landed him in fourth place. Doug Ford of Kiamesha Lake, N. Y., was fifth with 273 and Tommy Bolt of Chattanooga, Tenn., sixth with 274.

The victory was worth $2400. Palmer's best previous showing as a pro was a third-place tie in the St. Paul Open.

Palmer started out today with a five-stroke lead on his three-round total of 195 to Burke's 200 and Hawkins' 202. For a while it appeared that Hawkins, not Burke, might be the man who could catch the young Pennsylvanian.

The new champion's lead shrank to two strokes on the first nine when Hawkins started off hot. Palmer blew to a six on the fifth when he drove into the bush and took two to get out.

But that was the only time he showed signs of a possible blowup. He steadied immediately, getting birdies at the seventh and ninth to make the final turn for home with 35. Hawkins was out in 33.

Ed Furgol of St. Louis finished in a tie for 27th place, shooting a final round of 70 for 282.

Redbirds Blow Early Lead and Lose Again To Nuxhall and Reds

one run, Manager Walker abruptly lifted him.

Mackinson was unable to prevent Cincy from tying the score, a development that resulted from Bridges's sacrifice fly, Roy McMillian's bloop hit and Nuxhall's run-scoring fly ball.

Another Lear Wiped Out.

So it stayed 3-3 until the sixth, when Grammas doubled and came home on Moon's two-out single. Quickly, however, the Redlegs tied again in the home half as Bell homered over the center field fence. And Cincinnati won the game in the seventh.

Temple, leading off, walked and moved up on Smoky Burgess's bunt, a play on which Mackinson appeared to have a shot for a force-out at second. Ted Kluszewski was passed intentionally. Wally Post fouled out, but Bell walked to load the bases.

Harmon, next up, grounded through the middle behind second base, where Grammas made a diving stop, holding it to an infield hit, but when Alex came to his feet merely lobbing the ball to Schoendienst, Kluszewski thundered around third and followed Temple across the plate. Bridges's sharp single past Grammas scored Bell with the seventh Redleg run.

Mackinson finally had enough and so did Nuxhall, enough to win as a slow starter and strong finisher against the Cardinals, who start strong and are finished before they finish.

Wal-Dot-O Is First by Head In Cahokia Race

Wal-Dot-O, after finishing second twice and third twice in four previous races at Cahokia Track, won the feature there last night by beating Nymph's Pride by a head. Bobby White rode Wal-Dot-O, the odds-on favorite, whose time over six and one-half furlongs was 1:18 1-5.

Harry Lou was third. Wal-Dot-O paid $3.60 for a $2 bet.

The daily double of Tiger Tom in the first and Lady Ridgewell in the second paid $186.40.

Johnny Clemens scored a double when he rode Make to victory in the third race and followed up with Friendly Man in the fourth. Attendance was 8445.

Valley Coaches Huddle Over Rule Changes

Missouri Valley Conference football coaches had no trouble resuming the uneasy rhythm of their calling yesterday when they met here for their annual reading of the rule book. They found it confusing, in part.

Major rule changes this year include new liberties for the ostensible holder of a ball on a place kick. He can, if inspiration or the signal strikes him, run with it, pass it or kick it himself. Enter the joker in the rules: Still standing is the commandment against roughing a kicker or the holder of a place kick.

"Potentially, the holder of the ball is an offensive player, but you've got to keep your hands off him, I guess," said Detroit Coach Wally Fromhart. "I kept looking for a correction or a revision to come through, but none has."

Houston Coach Bill Meek went into the possibilities for counterfeiting it will offer. If the "ostensible ball holder" leaps up from his knee upon the snap from center, and is smeared, it will be "a bad pass from center." If he leaps and is left unmolested, it will turn out to be a play, and a pass. "They could make the defense gun-shy, and keep you from loading up the line against the real kicks," said Meek.

"It's like saying, 'Our left-half is the ball-carrier, but don't you dare touch him,'" said Fromhart. It was a good beginning for the rules interpretation meeting. Some abashed rulesmaker probably will take it away before the season ends, but for the moment the holder of the football occupies a pedestal bigger than all of them.

The meeting will conclude today. Other Valley coaches attending it are Cliff Speegle of Oklahoma A. and M., Bobby Dobbs of Tulsa, and Pete Tillman of Wichita. Artie Eilers, the conference commissioner who has offices here, assembled them. "You know one another," said Eilers at one point, and there was cause for question in the standard drawing-room phase. Fromhart is the only man still coaching at the same place he did last year.

How many of the 42 Muny senior baseball champions can you name?

Santee Wins Mile in 4:11.2

TORONTO, Aug. 20 (AP)—Wes Santee, the ex-Kansas University miler who has come close to breaking the four-minute mile barrier on several previous tries, ran the distance today in 4:11.2.

Fred Wwyer, United States Army runner, and Gordon Pirie, one of Britain's top runners, finished almost in a dead heat behind Santee. Dwyer was given second place and Pirie third. Both were timed in 4:13.2.

Pitcher Shannon Has A Big Day---Almost

Mike Shannon had what appeared to be a big victory just about wrapped up for Epiphany in the C.Y.C. juvenile baseball final playoffs yesterday at Busch Stadium. Then things went wrong.

Getting a key triple and a single himself, Shannon went into the seventh—the last inning—with a 3-2 lead. He fanned the first two St. Agnes batters to run his strikeout total to 10. Next came a double, an infield hit, an error and a wild pitch. Presto—two runs and a 4-3 St. Agnes victory.

McNeary vs. Kimack, Borbein vs. Hoffmeister in Muny Playoffs

2 Losses And Out, New Plan

By Neal Russo

After a 13-year wait—since he and Yogi Berra sparked the Edmonds to the city intermediate title—Roy Fleddermann finally is on another championship team. And the only playing-manager in the Muny senior baseball play-offs opening today figures his McNearys have more than a darkhorse hope in their first shot at the eliminations.

The McNearys, Heine Meine champions for the first time in three seasons under Fleddermann, will oppose the Kimacks, runners-up in the South Side League, in the 1 o'clock opener at Heine Meine Field in Lemay.

At 3:30 the powerful Borbein-Youngs, who finished second in the North Side League but picked up steam to win the state non-pro tournament at Cape Girardeau, will meet the Hoffmeisters, second-place team in the Meine loop.

The tournament was changed to two-losses-and-out this season. Kutis North, 1954 champion and winner of the 1955 North Side pennant, next Sunday will face today's first-game winner and Carondelet Sunday Morning Club will meet today's second-game victor. All play-offs after today will be at Fairground Park No. 1 diamond.

Kimacks to Miss Mumm.

Because the McNearys had such a tough time winning out in the Meine League (they lost five out of six games after winning seven of their first eight contests), Manager Herb Mueller's Kimacks are given a good chance to spring a surprise.

However, Don Mumm, the Kimacks' ace left-hander, will be unable to come in from Camp Chaffee, Ark., where he is stationed. So Mueller plans to start Mel Anderson, right-hander drafted from Kutis South. The Kimacks also will be without their star second baseman, Roger Placke, whose shoulder was injured when a diver fell on him in a pool.

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.
ROY FLEDDERMANN

Fleddermann, an outfielder who is one of the most dangerous hitters in the league, will open with his ace right-hander, Dave Lauck, a Rockhurst College student.

Better off than the Kimacks on the mound, McNearys also have Rich Schweigler and Duke Wodraska, who was drafted from the Carondelet Advertisers. Strong-armed Wodraska will start at shortstop.

McNeary Standouts.

Standouts for McNearys include Tony Meglio, catcher from the St. Louis U. team; Art Slocum, speedy center fielder; Bobby Faucett, a good clutch hitter who will be in right field and can play third base, and Al Heinz, a seven-year veteran with Manchester of the County League.

The Borbein-Hoffmeister game matches teams loaded with veterans. Manager Lou Boggiano, seeking his third Muny title, took over most of the disbanded Kelly Shamrock team which gained the Muny title in 1952 and lost it to the same Hoffmeisters the following year.

Dick Loeser, who pitched Kutis North to the Muny crown last season, is likely to start for Borbein, but Boggiano may give big Elmer Sexauer the assignment. The Borbeins' bench was strengthened with the drafting of Leo Blandina, infielder-outfielder, from Union Printers.

Manager Chip Rathmann of Hoffmeisters has two stars on the sidelines, slugging First Baseman Bob Horneyer and Center Fielder Roland Stuckmeyer. But he still has his old reliable righthander, Bob Boehlow, who had a 7-1 record in the team's 8-7 league season. Lefty Stan Turek, a loser by one run four times, and Joe Becker Jr., son of the Brooklyn Dodgers' coach, will back up Boehlow.

Gil Georger, slick-fielding shortstop who hit .370 and walks frequently in his leadoff role, was Hoffmeisters' No. 1 addition this season. Hank Raymonds is batting .360 and filling in adequately in center. Others whacking the ball well are Russ Zingrich, .365; Gene Moore, .340; Mel Steinkiste, .300, and Frank Ortmann, the former catcher who switched to the outfield and now has taken over at first base, .310.

Jimmy Doerr, drafted from Luigis, may start at second base in place of Steinkiste, who has been ailing.

Heine Meine Field is at 153 Lemay Ferry Road in Lemay. Dimensions of the field manicured early every Sunday morning by Heine Meine, the former Pittsburgh Pirate pitcher are: 337 feet down the left field line, 360 in center and 371 in right. Admission will be 25 cents.

Thou Shalt Not Steal---Unless It's Home

JOHN HIRBE steals home for St. Philip Neri at Busch Stadium in the opener of a best-of-three series for the C.Y.C. midget baseball title. Hirbe had three hits but Epiphany won, 4-3, with the help of five errors. Catcher DICK SWIFT tries to make the tag with Umpire LOU VON OEHSEN on the play. The midget division age limit is 15.

It's a Long, Long Trail for Johnson, Duffy

COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 20—Phil Rodgers, a sandy-haired 16-year-old from San Diego, Calif., today captured the 10th annual Jaycee junior golf championship.

Rodgers, who packs 170 pounds on his medium frame, put together rounds of 66-70-76-75—287 to break the former tourney record of 292 made by Tommy Jacobs of Monticello, Calif., in 1952. Rodgers was runnerup in last year's championship.

The San Diego golfer's one-under-par effort for the 72-hole distance just nosed out Jack Rule of Waterloo, Iowa, who had a 288.

Third place was grabbed by medalist Dick Foote, Santa Anna, Calif., who posted rounds of 67-75-75-72—289.

St. Louis's Bill Jonnson, firing a closing 78 for 318, was a weary lad as he finished and prepared to head home where he will defend his title in the St. Louis caddie tournament opening Monday.

Johnson was seven strokes better than fellow St. Louisan Joe Duffy, who had 83 today. Both youngsters said they were "tired out" after 13 days of competitive golf with only travel time in between.

Johnson had to scramble on nearly every hole and was unable to pick up a birdie.

"I hit two fairways out of 14 and two of the four par 3 greens," he said. "I was within four feet of the cup for a bird on No. 5 and about five feet away on No. 9, and missed both putts."

His best shot was a 30-yard wedge he holed out on No. 7 for his par.

Duffy, who also will compete in the St. Louis caddie event, birdied No. 1, where he was on in two and down in two, but was fading his tee shots badly. "I was too tired to get the club head through," he said.

Steady Fellow.

Lou Creekmur, Detroit Lions tackle, hasn't missed a game—league, championship or exhibition—since he joined the team in 1950.

C.Y.C. Surprise Teams Meet at Busch Stadium

Last spring neither St. Josephs of Clayton nor Holy Rosary figured to make much noise in the C.Y.C. senior baseball race. But today at 3:30 p.m. at Busch Stadium the two surprise teams from the field of 16 will meet in the final round of the two-losses-and-out playoffs.

A victory for St. Joseph would give that team the title to go with the junior honors which virtually the same team gained last season. If Holy Rosary wins, another game will be played between the finalists next Sunday at Cherokee Park No. 2.

St. Joseph had a 10-1 record in league play, then defeated Epiphany, 9-0, and St. Pius, 5-4, in the playoffs. Holy Rosary, forced to win a playoff game from St. Philip Neri after tying for the league crown with 8-4 records, lost to St. Pius, 7-1, in the first round of the playoffs but rebounded to nip Epiphany, 3-2, and upset St. Pius, 4-2, in 12 innings.

In the playoffs the following have four hits: St. Joseph's—Jack Fischer, Bill Barnes and Jim Wetzel; Holy Rosary—Paul Wilson, John Fuchs and Harold Roberson.

In the 1 o'clock prelimoinary at Busch Stadium, St. Agatha and Sacred Heart will open a best-of-three series to determine the successor to St. Joseph as Junior champion.

Admission is 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for children under 16 years of age.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 20 (AP)—Clyde Hippenstiel, San Bernardino, Calif., star representing Southern California, advanced to the finals today in the men's singles competition in the twenty-ninth annual National Public Parks Tennis Championships.

Hippenstiel won a berth in the finals by winning a semi-final match from Ken Boyum, fourth-seeded Minneapolis, Minn., entry, 6-0, 6-3, 6-4.

Hippenstiel's devastating serves and net game, supported by excellent forcing shots off the ground, overpowered the steady play of Boyum.

Meanwhile, dark horse Ben Sobieraj, No. 1 man of the United States Navy Leech Cup squad, upset second-seeded Linn Rockwood, Salt Lake City entrant, in a spectacular all-court battle, 6-4, 7-5, 6-3.

In the women's singles, the defending champ, Mrs. Mary Arnold Prentiss of Blue Jay, Calif., reached the finals in quest of her ninth title by whipping unseeded Mrs. Jean Zacny of St. Louis, 6-2, 6-1. Mrs. Zacny is a sister to Sobieraj.

June Stack, 18-year-old from Detroit, came through with a terrific base line performance to blast veteran Merceina Parker, the No. 2 favorite from St. Louis, 6-1, 6-3.

Pro Rookies May Get Chance in Exhibition Here

First-year men are expected to have an opportunity to show their stuff when the Detroit Lions and Chicago Cardinals meet in a pre-season National Football League exhibition game for charity at Public Schools Stadium next Sunday night.

Several rookies have moved into a tentative starting lineup for the Cardinals and similar opportunities with the Lions appeared to be improved after the Detroit club lost its first exhibition Friday night at Dallas.

The Lions were beaten by the Philadelphia Eagles, 14 to 8. Detroit will continue its exhibition tour at Mobile Wednesday in a game with the Washington Redskins and then will come into St. Louis Friday.

Four of the Lions played their last game as collegians in the recent All-Star game at Chicago. They are Halfback Dave Middleton of Auburn, Guards Bud Brooks of Arkansas and Jim Salsbury of UCLA, and Tackle Darris McCord of Tennessee.

Middleton is being listed as No. 2 right halfback on offense; Salsbury is No. 1 middle guard on defense; McCord is No. 2 at right tackle on offense; Brooks is No. 3 linebacker on the right side.

For the Cardinals three new men have moved up. They are Max Boydston, great end from Oklahoma; Mel Hammack, fullback from Florida, and Dave Mann, halfback from Oregon State and Fort Ord.

Social Outcast Wins Saratoga By 3 Lengths

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y., Aug. 20 (UP)—Social Outcast, Alfred G. Vanderbilt's chief oat winner now that Native Dancer has been retired, scored his fifth major tirumph of the season today when he won the $55,700 Saratoga Handicap by three lengths.

Red Hannigan was second and Parlo, coupled with Chevation as the odds-on choice of the 23,034 spectators, wound up nine lengths farther back in third place.

Social Outcast, ridden by Eric Guerin, was the second choice in the small field of five. He carried 125 pounds and finished the mile-and-a-quarter test in 2:04 2-5 over a fast track. Social Outcast paid $4.50 and $4.40. Red Hannigan returned $5.90.

There was no show betting so Parlo, the 19 to 20 choice, didn't get anything for her backers. She carried 121 pounds, getting a five-pound allowance as the filly in the field and was the high weight on the scale.

Stanton Returns to St. Louis U.; Alton Player Is Transfer

Don Stanton of Pinckneyville, Ill., who lettered in basketball as a sophomore at St. Louis University in the 1952-53 season, is returning to the Billiken institution this fall after discharge from the army.

The 5-foot-10 Stanton was a reserve guard with the Billikens as a sophomore. During the past year he played in the All-Army basketball tournament as a member of the Fort Bragg team and was named to the Army All-Star team.

Harold Ralph Nash of Alton, Ill., a graduate of Chipola (Fla.) Junior College, is transferring to St. Louis U., it was announced. He is a 6-foot-3-inch forward who averaged 21 points per game in junior college.

Iceland in August Sounds So Inviting

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

HERMAN WECKE (left) and HARRY KEOUGH, two-thirds of St. Louis's contingent on the United States soccer team, study the map to locate far-off Iceland. They, and Bill Looby, depart tonight for a series of three games in Reykjavik. Only other midwestern player selected is Ed Murphy of Chicago, brilliant center forward.

Three or more recently arrived Europeans will be in action with the Kutis and Meramec teams as they play a soccer practice match at Meramec Sport Club field this afternoon.

A young Englishman, an Austrian and a Greek will try for places in the Kutis lineup.

The three St. Louisans who will compete in the United States team in Iceland next week will also play. Harry Keough, Herman Wecke and Bill Looby will play the first half of the game and then will give way to reserves.

Keough, Wecke and Looby depart tonight by plane for New York where the United States team will assemble for its week-long visit to Iceland, where three games will be played. The squad of 15 players and four United States Soccer Football Association officials will travel in United States Army planes to and from Iceland.

Kutis club, through Manager Nick Jost, has booked two games at Milwaukee, Sept. 4 and 5. The tourists will be back from Iceland in time to play against Serbian A.C. on Sept. 4 and against Milwaukee Brewers on Sept. 5.

Liberty (formerly Green Pastures) has clinched the County Soccer League championship but the final week's schedule will be played out. Playoffs, in which the top four clubs will meet, will start the last week in August and will be concluded by Sept. 15.

Cecil Rodriguez, Municipal Soccer League delegate, asks clubs interested in joining the league to phone applications to him at MI 7-4374, Monday through Friday from 7 to 10 p.m.

30 Double Winners.

STATISTICS for the first 24 nights of racing at Cahokia Downs show that 175 horses of the 710 which have started have accounted for the 208 victories. . . . A total of 30 have won two or more events, leaving 145 singles. . . . That means that 535 have failed to enter the winner's circle, though they may have accounted for place and show money. . . .

Donald Schmidt's four-year-old Speed Wrinkle is the top horse of the meeting with four victories to his credit. . . . He won on July 23 and 29 and on Aug. 11 and 16. . . . Next in line is Smugsy with three firsts. . . . The George J. Schatz three-year-old scored on July 26, Aug. 6 and Aug. 17. . . .

The two-time winners include the double handicap winners, Appointment and Hopeful Sam. . . . Others are Almenow, Ambalong, Baby Leber, Blossom's Lass, Buckwheat, Corinne T, Dainty Dish, DeVille, Elliott L, Gambler, John Bauer, Just A'Foot, Lost Scarf, Miss Pensive, Mister Plucky, Movie, Mr. Bob, Poltroon, Quick Imperial, Quick Payoff, Speranzo, Toni Choy, Visticson, Validity, Indiana Vi and Emigrant Train.

Following a winning jockey, in this instance Clarence Meaux, who has 37 victories to his credit out of 158 mounts, would have netted the bettor a profit of $79.80 if he had bet $2 on each horse's nose. . . . Meaux has a winning percentage of .23 for the meeting. . . .

A bet to win on each of Meaux's mounts would have cost the bettor $316 and he would have collected $395.80. . . .

The shortest priced winner for Meaux was Gallaride which paid off at only $2.80 for $2. . . . His longest priced winners came on Aug. 4, when he was in front with Miss Grado at $32.80 and Ann's Brief at $42.60. . . . Thirteen of his triumphs came with horses that paid better than 4 to 1. . . . He has been shut out only four times—on July 30, Aug. 1, Aug. 9 and Aug. 15.

It Won't Be Long.

IT'S getting close to Grand Circuit time at DuQuoin, Ill. . . . The trotters and pacers will do their stuff on the one-mile track beginning Aug. 29 and continuing through Sept. 2. . . . There will be more than $150,000 in prize money.

The Castleton Farm Stake for 2-year-old trotters, Aug. 31, and the McMahon Memorial for 2-year-old pacers the following day, will carry the biggest purses. . . . Each will be worth $30,000.

Scott Frost, which won the Hambletonian, is scheduled to race in the $18,000 Matron Stakes on Aug. 31. . . . The "Buggy Whip Derby" winner will be opposed by Galaphone, beaten in a photo finish in one of the Hambletonian heats; Childs Hanover, Wayahead, Butch Hanover and Colby Mite. . . . In the $15,000 Matron for pacers, Meadow Leo, one of the early choices for the Little Brown Jug, will be a starter. . . . Meadow Leo won the McMahon Memorial at DuQuoin last year.

One of the standouts among the older horses, will be Allwood Stable's Kimberly Kid, who will go in the Big Five Trot, Sept. 1. . . . Many veteran harness horse men believe that Kimberly Kid has a chance to better Greyhound's 1:55¼ world record for the mile. . . . Kimberly Kid has a 1:59 to his credit.

HOOFBEATS: The father-daughter-husband combination of T. O. Logsdon, Tomassino Logsdon Maher and Frank Maher, scored a victory at James C. Ellis Park (formerly Dade Park) when the four-year-old Edith L came into the winner's circle at $64.60, $27.20 and $15.20. . . . Edith L was one of the winners saddled by Trainer Mrs. Maher at Fairmount. . . . Quite a colony of riders have been in action in the St. Louis district at Ellis Park. . . . Included are Ken Robertson, Billy Buell, Harry Holcomb, the St. Louis rider; Fritz Becker and C. H. James in addition to Maher. . . . Robertson, incidentally, was fined $25 recently for striking his mount over the head . . . .

J. Zitnik's Luciete, which won one race and was third in another, was second in a $2000 race at Randall Park. . . . The winner, My Preference, was piloted by Ralph Borgemenke, who saw service at Fairmount in the spring of 1954. . . . R. Holley, J. Shoyat and G. Steineman, who rode at the Collinsville track, are active at Hamilton, O. . . . And Howard Craig, who gave Clarence Meaux a battle for Cahokia honors last year, is in the first ten at Hazel Park, Detroit.

Faurot Expects 65 Gridders to Report Aug. 31

Only Four Starters To Be Back

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Aug. 20—Coach Don Faurot expects 65 candidates, 16 of whom are letter winners, to report Aug. 31 for a photographers' session the day before football practice starts for the Missouri Tigers.

Faced with the replacement of 17 veterans from last season, Faurot will field a team that includes only four starters from last year, when the Tigers had a mediocre 4-5-1 season. Two of the starting veterans are Harold Burnine, an end who was elevated to a starting position in the last two games after Jack Hurley was injured, and Jimmy Hunter, regular at halfback who will be at a new positon as quarterback this season.

The Tigers, however, should be stronger on defense, a grave weakness last season, because of the return of Jim (Cornbread) Martin from armed service and of Terry Roberts, injured veteran who did not compete last season, to bolster the guard positions. With the top three quarterbacks graduated last season, though, it is probable that Missouri's attack won't be as potent.

Faurot isn't counting on Bobby Gooch playing this season as he is recovering from a skull fracture suffered in an automobile accident near his home at Marceline this summer. He was a starting guard last season and his loss somewhat offsets the return of Martin and Roberts.

Depth will be lacking at ends and at fullback among the veterans, as only Burnine and Bill Craig are available for the wings and Gene Roll, who played behind Bob Bauman and Harold Thomeczek at fullback, will be available at that spot. Hunter is the only veteran listed at quarterback, but he'll be backed up by Dick Stuber, who played one season with Iowa State; Gerry Smith, Gower senior with limited experience last year; and David Doane, Joplin junior who passed up eligibility last year. August (Bud) Mercier of Fredericktown is a sophomore contender.

Fourteen St. Louis district athletes will be among the candidates, including John Piskulich of Beaumont at end; Frank Czapla (McKinley), Charles Pendleton (Central, Alvin Portney (University City) and Howard Robertson Granite City, Ill.) at tackles; George Anastas (Soldan-Blewett), Paul Browning and Gene Campbell, East St. Louis, at guards; Keith Gerst (Beaumont), Tony Karakas (Soldan), and Carl Osterloh (Clayton), at center and Vincent Hovley (St. Louis U. High) and William Rice (East St. Louis), at halfback, and William Mahiger Southwest) at fullback.

Czapla, Bob Lee of Columbia at guard and Carl (Joe) Wynn of Raytown at halfback are the top sophomore candidates.

Ten St. Louisans in U.S.G.A. Senior Golf

A breakdown of entries by sections shows that St. Louis has 10 entries so far in the United States Golf Association's first senior championship to be played at Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 26-Oct. 1.

Sectional qualifying is set for Sept. 8 at Sunset Country Club. The number of places in the national tournament will depend upon the number of local entries. Entries will close Friday. All players must have reached their 55th birthday and have a handicap not exceeding 10 strokes.

Evans Scholar Awards To Glen Echo Caddies

Two Glen Echo Country Club caddies have been awarded Evans Scholarships by the Western Golf Association, Pro Don Clarkson said yesterday.

The caddies are Al Bayliss, 18, a Wellston High graduate, and Joe Kuciejczyk, 17, from McBride. Bayliss will go to Missouri School of Mines at Rolla. Kuciejczyk will go to Marquette University.

83-Day Duck Season for Bi-State Hunters.

DUCK HUNTERS who obtain Illinois as well as Missouri licenses will be able to enjoy an extended shooting period of 83 days this year compared with 54½ last year.

This 28½-day increase is the result of:

1. The United States Fish and Wildlife Service lengthened the season for the Mississippi flyway by 15 days—from 55 to 70 days.

2. For the first time in many years, Illinois and Missouri will have different opening and closing dates.

3. The requirement that shooting not start until noon on opening day has been eliminated, thus giving hunters an additional one-half day during the regular season.

The duck season in Illinois will begin Oct. 15 and end Dec. 23. Missouri wildfowl hunting will start Oct. 28 and end Jan. 5.

Consequently, the hunter with a resident license for the one state and a non-resident license for the other will have an opportunity to shoot ducks from 30 minutes before sunrise Oct. 15 to 30 minutes before sunset Jan. 5—a total of 83 days.

Boundary Hazard.

Since many sportsmen do their duck hunting along the Mississippi river this longer shooting period can be enjoyed with little extra travel.

The hunter must be careful to stay in Illinois territory from Oct. 15 to Oct. 28 and in Missouri areas from Dec. 24 through Jan. 5. However, from Oct. 28 through Dec. 23, he may hunt in either Missouri or Illinois provided he has licenses for both states.

The problem of determining if a man is in Missouri or Illinois when he's shooting along the Mississippi river will be worse than usual this year, with the two states having different seasons.

For example, a man found hunting ducks prior to Oct. 28 on a Mississippi river island belonging to Missouri could be charged with shooting out of season. The same would hold if a shooter were tagged by a game warden after Dec. 23 on an island belonging to Illinois. In these instances, it would not help to have a license for both states.

Hunters have difficulty ascertaining which state they're in because some islands closer to the Illinois side belong to Missouri, and vice versa.

The two states have never found a satisfactory solution to this problem. Each year a few hunters scream "foul," contending they were taken to court and fined unreasonably because they were not land title experts as well as duck shooters.

Not only are the hunting seasons longer this year, but the daily shooting period also has been increased by 30 minutes. Quitting time will be one-half hour before sunset, instead of one hour before sunset.

The Arkansas game commission will meet tomorrow to set the wildfowl season dates for that state, but there appears little doubt it will choose the latest closing date permitted under federal regulations. That is Jan. 15, a choice that would mean a Nov. 7 start.

Catfish Were Biting.

Three St. Louisans reported a big haul of catfish on a trotline Aug. 13 in the St. Francis river near Qulin, Mo. One fish weighed 44½ pounds and another 37 pounds. Six others were between five and eight pounds.

The fishermen included Lehman Fann, 4302 North Twentieth street; Odell Fann, 3004 Lemp avenue, and Coy Bray, 1224 Madison street. Another relative, Archie Fann of Torch, Mo., also was in the party.

Illinois has published a new 32-page fishing guide which is available free, on request, at the conservation department's office in the Capitol building, Springfield, and at the Chicago office, 160 North LaSalle street.

The booklet lists all public fishing areas managed by the department, as well as giving a complete list, county by county, of streams and lakes throughout Illinois.

All Very Simple

Need Money?--How To Make $1,000,000

By Ed Creagh

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP).

WANT to make a million dollars? There's a new pocket-size book out which tells exactly how to do it. Sounds as if the formula might work, too, if any of us had the sense and stick-to-it-iveness to follow it. A little luck might help some, too.

Marvin Small is the author of this book, titled "How to Make More Money." (Pocket Books, 35 cents.) He made enough money himself out of such things as deodorants to retire at 45.

Basically, Small's formula is so simple that you wonder why he wrote a book about it. "Find out what a lot of people want and then give it to them" is about what it adds up to — which sounds pretty much like an old wheeze about building a better mousetrap.

But Small goes on to cite case histories—such as that of Leo Gerstenzang, who watched his wife bathe the baby, saw she was having trouble twisting cotton around the end of a toothpick, and invented Q-tips then and there.

(Small doesn't point it up, but there's another lesson here: Always let your wife bathe the baby. If Gerstenzang had said, "Here, darling, let me do that," the chances are dim he would have the high Dun & Bradstreet rating he enjoys today.)

"All right," you say, "but this fellow Gerstenzang must have had a knack for inventing things. Me, I'm not smart enough to put a box of paper matches under a wobbly table leg. Doesn't that bar me from the millionaire class?"

● NOT ON YOUR LIFE. Capitalize on your own defect. Small tells the story of a New York boy who was so gawky he couldn't get out of the way of his own feet. But one day a brash young woman dragged him out on a dance floor and the next thing he knew he was dancing like Arthur Murray.

This is not too surprising, really, because the young man was Arthur Murray. He figured that, by golly, if he could learn to dance anybody could—if properly taught. And he became the man who did the teaching, at a highly satisfactory profit.

Well, now, says Small, there's an old Chinese saying to the effect of "Fu yu mu yu wu tzu su," which he translates as "Papa's having and mama's having is not the same as having it oneself." In other words: more power to Murray and Gerstenzang—but how do I get in on the act?

● SMALL KNEW you were going to ask that, and he has an answer ready—borrowed, he cheerfully acknowledges, from advertising tycoon Alex Osborn. It's a little game called "Brainstorming." You play it this way:

You look at any object—one of Murray's dance charts, for instance, or one of Gerstenzang's Q-tips. Then you ask yourself a whole series of questions about it: is there a simpler way of doing or making this? Can it be adapted to other uses? Can it be made portable?

(Not all these questions will apply to every possible object. It's hard, for example, to imagine anything more portable than a Q-tip.)

Small provides you a whole series of such questions. He does some sample brainstorming for you. He gives you a word association scheme, an idea-stimulator check list. Plainly, if you brainstorm long enough and hard enough it's your own fault if you don't reach a point where you can paper the hall bedroom with $100 bills.

So—brainstorm away, kids. Get your idea and do something about it. Never relax. Never admit the thought of failure.

And look—when your ship comes in, remember the fellow who told you about this book, will you? I'll be brainstorming myself, but just in case anything goes wrong I could use a couple of those $100 notes.

Try and Stop Me

ADELA ROGERS ST. JOHN was up at Hemet, Calif., at a time the whole area was parched. Citizens decided to hold a monster meeting and pray for rain. After a half hour of earnest supplication, the preacher told everybody to go home and await results—everybody, that is, except one boy about 11 years old.

"Why," the preacher was asked, "are you asking that boy to stay with you and continue praying?"

"Because," observed the preacher, "he's the only one who had the foresight to bring an umbrella!"

And 15 minutes later, didn't it rain!

Who Owns Davy Crockett?

Frontiersman's Name Adds Up to Big Business and His Descendants Want In on It

By Dickson Terry

IF you'll pardon another mention of the name, there are some unusual—to put it mildly—aspects of the Davy Crockett craze, not the least of which is the fact that nobody, not even the people who are selling the stuff, knows how many Davy Crockett items are on the market.

Everyone knows, of course, that the list is as long as a creditor's memory and that it includes almost every conceivable object large enough to bear either the name or the picture of Davy Crockett, from Davy Crockett salt and pepper shakers to Davy Crockett cookie jars, not forgetting Davy Crockett piggy banks, Davy Crockett bubble gum, Davy Crockett sun glasses and the Davy Crockett Indian peace pipe.

The fact that such things as sun glasses and bubble gum have little or no relationship to the life and legend of Davy Crockett is quite beside the point. Neither, for that matter, do T-shirts, pajamas, plastic wallets, pencil boxes, dolls, bedroom curtains, electric quiz games, plastic ice-cream cones, jig-saw puzzles or paint sets, which are among the hundreds, maybe thousands, of items which are riding the Davy Crockett bandwagon, to mix a metaphor.

Mention Davy Crockett to toy buyers and merchandisers and they get a haunted expression in their eyes and start looking around for an avenue of escape. "The list has been growing so fast," the toy buyer at a department store told me as he mopped his brow, "that no one, so far as I know, has even tried to compile it. All I know is that we've had some 300 Crockett items in the store, and that's just a fraction of the total."

The buyer for a large chain of 5-and-10-cent stores just threw up his hands. "It would be just a guess," he said, "and if you want my guess I would say there are close to 3000 Crockett items on the market."

One thing they're agreed on—there's never been anything quite like it in merchandising history, nor does the end seem to be in sight. The end of new items, that is. Some buyers predict that the end of the craze is not far off, but new things keep popping up just the same.

WITH millions of Davy Crockett gadgets flooding the market, and millions of tykes importuning their parents to buy them, it stands to reason that a little of the old long green is changing hands, which brings us down to the point of this discourse, the same being, who owns Davy Crockett?

Most people have just assumed that Walt Disney does. While Disney didn't invent Crockett, he certainly made him what he is today in the public mind. To most youngsters Fess Parker is Davy Crockett and vice-versa, and if the characters aren't one and the same, they're certainly interchangeable. It's the same sort of confusion that arose a few years ago when Don Ameche so ably portrayed Alexander Graham Bell on the screen that most of the small fry of the nation went around with the half-formed notion that Don Ameche invented the telephone.

However, it appears that the question of who owns Davy, or the right to use his name on popguns and such is not as simple as it might seem. It was brought into focus recently with the announcement that Davy Crockett's true descendants had finally banded together and tossed a coonskin cap into the ring.

There are some 350 of them scattered around the country, and they have organized a corporation which has several aims, one of which is to protect and preserve the good name of Davy Crockett, but the main one of which is to establish the right of Davy's own descendants to decide who shall and who shall not use the name of Davy Crockett.

The group is known as Crockett Kids, Inc., and its headquarters is at Okawville, Illinois, a little one-time resort town of 580 people about 35 miles from St. Louis and about 15 miles southeast of Belleville. The organizer of the group and instigator of the plan is Mrs. Margie Flowers Cohn, a great-great granddaughter of the old boy himself.

WE journeyed over to Okawville the other day to get the story straight from Mrs. Cohn, who turned out to be a good looking woman with dark brown hair and eyes (a result of the fact that she is one-eighth Cherokee Indian as well as part Crockett) and a lot of charm.

Mrs. Cohn and her husband, Bert Cohn, both former St. Louisans, operate a rest home in Okawville. It is near the heart of town and the Cohns live across the street in a modern, gray ranch-type duplex with wrought iron on the porch. Mrs. Cohn collects antiques, and she ushered us into a beautifully furnished duplex in which antique and modern are combined with excellent taste, and on into the back sitting room which, since the founding of Crockett Kids, Inc., has been turned into an office.

A long table almost filled the room, and scattered over it were piles of correspondence, newspaper clippings about Davy, nearly a dozen books on the life and exploits of Davy, and scrapbooks about Davy. At one end of the table was Mrs. Florence Bailey, an agreeable gray-haired woman whose usual job is secretary at the nursing home, but whose time is taken up these days being secretary to Crockett Kids, Inc.

In fact, ever since it was revealed that the descendants of Davy were getting into the picture, letters have been pouring in.

"I want to show you one of the letters that came this morning," Mrs. Cohn said, fishing one out of the pile. It was from a youngster in New Mexico named Freddie Runio Luno, who wrote:

"I read the article about the Defenders of Davy Crockett, and I would like to know what your association is about because I would like to join in as a member. I am always glad to help defend Davy Crockett, especially true facts about Davy Crockett. Yours very truly one of Davy's Defenders."

Mrs. Cohn sat down and started explaining her line of descent. "Yes, I'm a great-great granddaughter of Davy," she said. "My father was his great grandson. His name was Thomas Finley Flowers. You see Davy's daughter by his first wife, Polly Crockett, married a Wiley Flowers. Wiley Flowers's son was David Finley Flowers, and my father was the son of David Finley Flowers. My father was born in Gainesville, Texas and died in Oklahoma City in 1939."

THE claim of Mrs. Cohn and her 300 some odd relatives is substantiated in two books, one of them the work of two genealogists, and the other the work of the Texas Historical Society. In 1928 the historians and genealogists, Zella Armstrong and Mrs. Janie Preston Collup French, did a series of books on notable Southern families, and volume five is devoted to the Crockett clan and gives the tree right down to Mrs. Cohn and her contemporaries.

Then in 1936 the state of Texas published an official genealogy, which gives the same descendants.

"I remember when I was just a youngster," she recalls, "Daddy got a letter from Washington, D. C., asking him, as one of the direct descendants, to be present at the unveiling of the statue of Davy at Lawrenceburg, Tenn."

Mrs. Cohn hadn't given Davy a thought in a long time until the spring of 1954 when she was visiting friends in Nashville, Tenn. They knew she was a Crockett descendant, and thought she might be interested in the fact that Walt Disney had been in the neighborhood doing some research for a movie about Davy.

"I wrote to him and sent him some clippings and other information, in case he might be interested," Mrs. Cohn said. "He wrote back and said he was only making some TV films; I'm sure he hadn't the least idea what those films would start."

Neither did Mrs. Cohn. But when they came along, she and her family watched the programs with great interest.

"We were thrilled, of course," she says. "Davy was a fabulous character, but there were many instances when Disney strayed from actual history, and in many of them the actual history would have been more interesting, we think."

Mrs. Cohn pointed out at this point that Davy never wore a coonskin cap in his life. "He wore foxskin," she explained, "and he tanned and dressed the hides himself. He was very particular. And another thing, he was a very snappy dresser. When he did get dressed up, he wore the best and wore it well."

From a heavy, leather-bound and well-filled scrapbook she produced a picture of Davy in a high collar and black stock and broadcloth cloak. "Davy himself wrote that this was the best likeness ever made of him," she explained, "and you can see how he was dressed."

A FEW weeks went by after the first Crockett television show and the first thing Mrs. Cohn or anyone else knew Davy Crockett was the biggest thing since the splitting of the atom. "We were very happy about it, seeing the country become so conscious for the first time of one of our truly great heroes, but we didn't care too much for the commercialization that was beginning to crop up. In fact, we were rather indignant at some of the things that were being sold to the public with Davy's name on it. Some people obviously were taking a lot of old merchandise out of stock, stamping the name on it, and foisting it on the public."

In May of this year the craze was in full flower and a clothing manufacturer in Baltimore by the name of Morey Schwartz formed a corporation named Davy Crockett Enterprises, and announced to the world that he had a copyright on the name of Davy Crockett. In 1947, it was revealed, a valid trademark had been issued to Schwartz who, at that time, put out a line called "Davy Crockett, Frontiersman." But the small fry of 1947 knew little or nothing about Davy Crockett and the line faded into oblivion. Generally speaking, lawyers point out, a trademark must be used to be valid, and failure to use it results in loss of property rights.

Nonetheless Schwartz sent out many form letters and telegrams announcing his claim to the name and threatening legal action against anyone who used it.

In the meantime, after a great deal of persuasion from manufacturers who wanted to get in the game, Disney was persuaded to license the use of the Walt Disney, or Fess Parker, type of Davy Crockett which, there was no doubt, he created. Disney brought an action in federal court in Baltimore declaring the name Davy Crockett was not the sole property of Schwartz. Then Schwartz filed a countersuit.

But the two wound up by reaching an agreement and sort of staking out the territory. Disney issued a statement saying anyone, as far as he was concerned, could use the name Davy Crockett, as long as there was no trading on Disney's name. He licensed more than 60 firms to turn out Disney type Crockett stuff, and issued a statement that unlicensed manufacturers could not use the name Walt Disney, or a picture of Fess Parker, or in anyway tie up their advertising with Disney or Fess.

MRS. COHN, watching this legal play from the sidelines, decided to step in. She had previously gotten in touch with Bourke Crockett, a middle-aged lawyer of Evansville, Ind., who has the distinction of being the only direct male descendant of Davy bearing the Crockett name. "We had discussed the commercial exploitation that was going on," Mrs. Cohn said, "and had decided that if any litigation started over the use of the name, we would form a trust and step in."

So when Disney and Schwartz started litigating, Mrs. Cohn wrote letters to as many descendants as she could locate, and told them of her plans. Virtually all of them wrote back giving their approval and offering support.

"When it all started," Mrs. Cohn said, "people just started putting out stuff with Davy's name on it, with no permission from anyone. As a matter of fact, the name was in the public domain, just like George Washington's. Our position was that if anyone was going to try to own or control it, we, as the descendants should be the ones to do it.

"As far as using the name is concerned, it's really not new," she continued. "When Davy was alive they named all sorts of things for him, as they often did with men in the public eye."

Mrs. Cohn's next move was to form a trust, with herself as president, Mrs. Bailey as secretary, and Jerome Gross, a St. Louis attorney, as the third member.

When Disney and Schwartz agreed to drop their suits (last month) Gross filed a motion to intervene alleging they were really just pooling their interests to set up a sort of monopoly. If the motion, which was filed in federal court at Baltimore, is granted, it will reopen the case. Then what the Crockett descendants hope to do is step in and establish the Crockett descendants as the only ones entitled to approve the use of the name.

MRS. COHN, with the aid of Mrs. Bailey, has organized and projected the trust and the corporation (Crockett Kids, Inc.) and has paid all the expenses. "I have been accused of trying to cut in on the profits from the Davy Crockett craze just to make money for myself," Mrs. Cohn says, "but that's not the idea at all. Every cent we receive will go into the Davy Crockett trust fund, and it will be used to help members of the family. There are quite a number of needy descendants; we want to provide money for the education and actual needs of those members of the family. The money can't be used for any other purpose."

In the meantime, pending litigation, the corporation has copyrighted the name of Polly Crockett, Davy's wife, and hope to make a big thing of her with the girls. "Polly Crockett had a beautiful background," Mrs. Cohn pointed out. "Boys have all kinds of heroes. Little girls have none. Polly Finley Crockett, in case you didn't know, is actually a descendant of a king of Scotland. And Davy himself, incidently, had a lot better background than people think. He was a descendant of Antoine Personette de Crocketagni, head of a fine Huegenot family that fled to Ireland to escape persecution. The family changed their name to Crockett.

"Anyway," she continued, "we're going to have a Polly Crockett line for little girls, and we've already licensed four companies to make hats and bags and scarfs and jewelry."

It has been suggested to Mrs. Cohn perhaps the Crockett heirs are a little late and they may be whipping a dead horse, but she doesn't think so.

"I think he's going to last a long time, and I'll tell you why. He was real flesh and blood, and it's the first time kids have had a hero quite like him. Of course the enthusiasm will level off, but kids aren't going to forget a hero as fabulous as Davy Crockett."

Living It Up in Summer

By Stan Delaplane

SAN FRANCISCO.

FOR several summer weeks I lived a slothful, unproductive life in the Carmel Valley of California. I ate wild pig at the old Moore ranch. I had the best salad of the season at the valley home of Martin Flavin, author and bon vivant.

I did hardly a lick of work and was dragged briefly to my typewriter, screaming and at pistol point. I swam three or four times a day and spent the evening in the tap room, singing and bragging.

I was ashamed of myself.

Oh, boy, was it wonderful!

I should report that I could live it up like this all the time if I wanted to. I do not have to work. Just do it to keep busy. I have a wealthy daughter.

My daughter is aged 12 and baby sits at high prices. Twenty-five cents an hour. She loves her work and would do it for nothing if I would let her. I will not let her though. I am figuring on the future.

She is making money hand over fist in this resort area. It is extremely gratifying to me. For I have been putting baby sitters through school for the past 12 years and I am glad to see the situation reversed.

My former baby sitters now have babies. My daughter sits with their babies and I charge them. Boy, how I charge them, the monsters! When they had me over a barrel, they charged me plenty. I intend to bankrupt them.

I DO NOT HAVE TO WORK. I am an assistant baby sitter. My child is new in the racket.

"Daddy, the little boy is eating the dog food!"

"Well, take it away from him, for heaven's sake," I say reasonably. "That dog food is for the dog and costs a great deal. At these sitting prices, we cannot afford to let children eat dog food.

"If the parents wish them fed dog food, we must charge extra. Give the kid some dry kibble."

That is the way we handle our sitting problems.

We give excellent service. We do not allow the children to play with loaded guns or shoot dice or smoke cigarettes. That would cost extra. We try to keep costs down.

Once in a while I saunter out in the yard and cuff all hands. To show there is nothing personal, I give the 12-year-old a couple of bats, too.

There is a good deal of thought goes into our baby sitting.

I do most of the thinking. I sit and think. What has a 12-year-old got to think about? She does the easy work like fishing the children out of the swimming pool. I do the thinking and give instructions.

"Get him before he goes down for the third time!"

MY CHILD is ungrateful and I am trying to straighten her out. She does not wish to share the wealth.

"You mean to say you will not lend your poor old father a dollar? After all the work I put in?"

"You just sat there. Sat there and drank your old beer."

"I did not! I sat and thought up labor-saving devices. Also I am your agent and should get 10 per cent just for being an agent. My work is extra. How about 75 cents?"

"No!"

"How sharper than a serpent's tooth is an ungrateful child," I said sadly. "The best years of my life have gone into casing baby sitters and their nasty, greedy ways.

"Now that I am teaching you how to exercise these horrid practices, you refuse to share your wicked gains."

"I'm saving up for a portable radio. You have lots more money than me. I think you're mean."

"Fifty cents," I said. "For a glass of nut brown ale for your aging parent. To take the chill off the bones. A moment's rest from a lifetime of care."

"No!"

"Take care, my dear," I said. "For I shall not be with you always. In fact, I feel quite weak at the moment and need stimulants. How will you feel when I have passed to my reward? Will you say, 'Dear old daddy. I refused him his last request.'"

I finally wheedled a quarter out of her. Beer for the troops. Hey, ho.

No Great Change in Camping Over Years

By Leonard Hall

AN old photograph album turned up the other day which has in it a picture of what must have been one of our earliest camping trips. The subjects, at least, are my brother Ralph and I at the ages of about 9 and 7 respectively. Camp is comfortably pitched under a giant white oak on the bank of a small creek in Washington county and is flanked by a fine old snake and rider fence. Our provision baskets hang from the top of this fence which is a full 10 rails high; a thing no longer seen in these days of barbed and woven wire. And from the set-up of the camp, it would appear that even in those far-off times we were not entirely amateurs at camping.

Our tent is an umbrella-type affair made of striped awning canvas. It may not have been any too waterproof, though I remember how we labored selling soap and other household appliances which no one really wanted, in order to accumulate enough premium coupons to acquire it. There's a grub box to serve as dining table, a hammock slung between two trees and three camp stools which leads me to believe our father must have had charge of this particular expedition.

In spite of all the outdoor gadgets, camping hasn't really changed too much since we were youngsters. You have to go farther to find solitude and a bit of wilderness, it is true. And there are some items of equipment which make life easier in the wilds, though these can be as simple or as elaborate as your pocketbook allows and your taste demands. Here in Missouri, our Ozark rivers have the most to offer for hot weather camping, whether you float by day and camp at night or pick a spot on some well-shaded gravel bar for a permanent camp. Woodland camping in midsummer can be a disappointing experience, what with the heat and the insects, though it is delightful in autumn when the nights are cool and the chiggers and ticks have run their course.

There are really three ways of making float trips, for those who want the thrill of this experience. The first is to employ one of the good Ozark outfitters to supply you with boats, guides, food and all equipment except your clothing, fishing tackle and bedding. Such trips are moderately expensive, costing about $20 per day per person. But there is no work involved and these trips can be made safely and comfortably by almost anyone of either sex between the ages of 8 months and 80 years.

● THE LEAST EXPENSIVE METHOD—and one certainly to be recommended to the young and able-bodied who've had a bit of camping and river experience—is to float by canoe or in a rented native "john boat." When you do it this way, you naturally have to work, both on the river and in camp. This is something many of us enjoy. You also have to take along your own equipment including tent, cooking and camp gear and food. And these must be limited to the carrying capacity of the boat. Finally there's a very satisfactory compromise method, which is to still go it alone and take your own gear, but to use a blunt-sterned aluminum canoe and a small outboard motor. With this outfit you can save part of the work of paddling, motor back upstream to fish the best water twice, or loaf in camp in some particularly beautiful spot for an extra day and still reach your downstream destination on time. Many sportsmen who live in the river towns use this method, though most of them still prefer the big 24-foot "john boats" with powerful 20 horsepower motors.

We talked in a recent column about camping equipment, but a word on clothing for midsummer floating on the Ozark rivers might not be out of order. Probably the first thing to remember is that the days are likely to be hot and the nights cool, especially after dark and when you roll out before sunrise in the morning. So lightweight clothes are the order of the day, with a wool shirt or windbreaker for evenings. If you're fishing, I'd say stick to clothing of neutral color that blends fairly well with the landscape. The sight of a white shirt can put a wily bass to cover under his root-wad for several hours. Unless you're a glutton for sunshine, a hat big enough to shade the neck and eyes is a good idea, while sun glasses and sun tan oil are extra insurance against glare and sunburn.

● REMEMBER, TOO, that if you are fishing—and especially if you're running your own boat—you'll be in and out of the water all day. Clothes will hardly ever dry overnight because of the river mist and heavy dew. So use high sneakers for footgear and take enough dry clothes to be able to dry out when you make camp each evening, as well as plenty of lightweight wool sox. If wet gear doesn't dry in camp, you can always spread it out atop the load as you go downstream next day and the sun will do the job. Most people think of float trips almost exclusively in terms of fishing, yet I've known people who've run the Ozark rivers for years without ever taking a fishing rod in hand. A pair of binoculars is well worth having along, for there are always interesting birds to see and identify on the river—the osprey, great blue heron, anhinga or water turkey (if you're lucky), egret and the young ibis in autumn; these in addition to occasional bands of waterfowl and countless songbirds. For the photographer, both still and movie cameras can be rewarding, since each bend in the river opens up a new vista or brings some unusual bird or animal into view. It isn't a bad idea, however, to carry the camera gear in a waterproof plastic bag which can be tied to a thwart if you travel by canoe.

Finally, remember that no matter how fine the weather when you start out, you may have the luck to run into a three-day rain before you've gone five miles. So take along some rain gear and plan your whole outfit in such a way that the trip isn't ruined by a downpour. And if there's any specific information you'd like to have that I've left out, just let me know.

From Cynic to Proud Papa

Writer John McNulty Could Take Children or Leave Them Alone, Usually the Latter—Then He Became a Father

By Clarissa Start

JOHN McNULTY, New Yorker writer about Third Avenue saloons, horse players and prize fighters, considered himself a hardened cynic as befitted his life and times and experience. Then his son Johnny was born and, as has many another hardened cynic, he found that parenthood made a softie out of him.

"For a number of years I could take babies or leave them," he muses, "and generally I would leave them, almost like W. C. Fields, giving them only the common courtesies that were necessary because of my friendship for their parent, or parents."

All that changed with the advent of Johnny. McNulty became captivated by children in general, Johnny in particular. He chronicles his observations in "My Son Johnny" (Simon and Schuster), a wide-eyed account of first time fatherhood which most other parents should find touching and true. Fathers, at least. Mothers, having rehearsed their role since doll days, take those things a little more in stride.

McNulty himself admits that fatherhood is likely to hit harder than motherhood, and that it's a mistaken notion that "it is women who talk, talk, talk about babies and that men can take babies or leave 'em, conversationally speaking."

TAKE, for instance, the world series afternoon in McNulty's neighborhood gathering place, a rendezvous usually devoted to talk of baseball, football, fights. One of the men casually asked that fill-in question, "How's the family?" and McNulty unburdened himself of his biggest fear. Johnny had stopped eating. He was getting skinny. No matter how he and his wife assured each other it was a phase "they" go through, they were getting concerned.

"Oh, for the love of Pete!" said one of the men. "Are you going through that, too? I'll never forget my littlest girl. You should see her now, husky as anybody in Manhattan. She had legs like matchsticks. Was I worried! Wouldn't eat! Threw the stuff on the floor! She had legs like matchsticks! For the love of Pete, stop worrying. You should see that little skinny girl now, handsome, no kidding, even though she is my own kid."

As one father after another joined in to offer reassurances, McNulty observed with amazement that "all talk of baseball had stopped for the moment," and instead they had spent "10 minutes in the middle of an important sporting day" talking about babies.

In the era before Johnny, McNulty confesses that nothing nauseated him more than baby talk in print. Now he finds that you can't quote a baby accurately unless you use baby talk. In that era before Johnny, nothing bored him more than looking at pictures of babies. He recalls a conversation he had some years a go with his friend, Bill Keefe, who is in show business, another cynical profession.

"Why do they all do it, Bill?" he asked. "Lots of men I know—intelligent men otherwise—no sooner do they have a baby than I'm afraid to hang around with them. I know sooner or later they will whip out those baby pictures."

A couple of years passed. The Bill Keefes had a baby. McNulty groaned when the inevitable pictures were passed around. It looked like just another baby to him but he made some polite remarks about how strong the baby looked. A few more years passed and Johnny arrived. McNulty, somewhat shamefacedly passed around the pictures. Bill took it very well. Made some polite remarks about how strong Johnny looked. Observes McNulty:

"I remembered how sneering we both had been about fathers who toted pictures of their babies around with them to show people. Bill remembered, too. We both had grown up, Bill Keefe and I. Now we knew that nobody can be cynical about babies. Now we both knew that they are not just like any other baby. Bill's was Bill's and mine was mine, and we were not wise guys any more."

McNulty went through a lot of other first reactions, from the first smile—he was amazed to read in Dr. Spock's pocket book that this was a normal occurrence—to the first day at school. He discovered that, much as he had determined he would not feel that way, he couldn't help wanting Johnny to become all the things he'd never been—his fourth strike after he'd had his allotted three.

He discovered that child has a simple blissful confidence that the old man can do everything, such as bring Howdy Doody on television in the morning. He discovered that you suffer when your child suffers, even though it's only over a rebuff when he wants to play with the big kids. That you feel lost when he's gone away on a trip though you expected to recapture your bachelor freedom. That "routine ailments . . . are what happens to other people's children: when they happen to your child, they cease to be routine. This fact," he adds, "is known to science as McNulty's Law."

WHEN Johnny was two, McNulty had that fear that his son would never learn to talk. By the time he was four, he was convinced he'd never stop. Moreover, he began to notice uneasily that children admire the bad guys more than the good. A story that Johnny loved to tell repeatedly went, "Once upon a time there was a good boy and a bad boy. But first about the bad boy. . . ." and then would follow a recital of misdeeds, from punching a hole in daddy's newspaper to crying when he couldn't have candy. In vain his father would protest, attempting to insert some propaganda that they didn't like bad boys, did they?

"Oh no," said Johnny, "we hate bad boys, don't we?" but his laughter belied the disapproval.

"Not exactly hate them, because we don't hate anybody," his father would interrupt hastily "in another attempt at propaganda."

"No, no, we hate bad boys," Johnny would say with glee. "Do you know what else the bad boy did?"

At mention of the good boy, Johnny's expression would become listless. He would recite "in a monotonous rush, 'Once-upon - a - time - there - was - a good - boy - and - he - did - everything - his - mommy - and - his - daddy - told - him BUT FIRST ABOUT THE BAD BOY! Do you know what else he did? He found his daddy's hammer. . . .'"

And so it goes.

McNulty's "child from 1 to 5" though less learned than that of the master psychologists, will be more familiar to other parents of children aged 1 to 5. Their favorite chapter will depend on the age of the child.

The chapter on the 4-year-old is a honey.

Modern Marriage

Youth Isn't Everything

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

AS a woman grows older, she loses one of the greatest assets of marriageability, namely, youth. She must therefore make an effort to increase some other assets to counterbalance this. Miss T. thinks I am holding out false hopes to such women.

"You are advising older women to marry," she reminds me. "Because you are not a woman, you are not realistic about this. When a woman loses her youth, she loses her main attraction for men, and there is nothing to take its place."

Agreed, Miss T. But youth is not the only reason why a man chooses a wife. There are other factors that she can augment, even when age is running against her. Let's see what they are. Intellectual brilliance is not one of them, though some girls seem to think so. As Ray H. Everett puts it: Men will never boast of knowing. girls whose Ph.D.'s are showing.

IT'S ALSO A MISTAKE for a girl to overcapitalize on mere femaleness, since every other woman in the world also possesses this. But she can concentrate on the following:

1. Understanding of men.
2. Competence as a helpmeet and homemaker.
3. Ability to be emotionally satisfying. (This involves her whole femininity, and unfortunately some girls become more masculine with the years.)
4. Range of social contacts.
5. Experience of life—ability to avoid exploitation and not waste time on profitless "thrills" with possible serious damage.

In all these respects I'd say that increasing age is actually an advantage. The smart girl will therefore make the most of these assets to offset the decline in other attractions such as youth.

Of course, the number of desirable husbands is decreasing at the same time. Many of the good men have already married. A woman will have to be more realistic, and accept a husband who is perhaps not as good as the ideal of whom she dreamed when she was 18.

SINCE MEN are now scarcer, you'll have to look for them more carefully, Miss T. I have an excellent bulletin, "Where to Meet Men," which is free for the asking—but please include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Answers to Questions.

Q. I'm engaged to a man 1200 miles away; should I date other men while awaiting marriage two years hence?

A. Yes, with your fiance's consent and not going too often with any other one man. You need a normal social life. All your married life you'll be seeing other men, and attractive men, without looking on them as possible husbands. You may as well begin to practice that, right now. If you can't see other men without wanting to marry each of them, don't marry at all!

Q. Advertisement says men and women have different preferences in the color of women's clothes. Please tell a worried wife what they are?

A. Not the same for all persons. Psychologist Wissler found that more men preferred blue; more women, red; and that yellow was particularly disliked by men, orange by women.

Resents Phrase

'I'm Just a Housewife'

By Angelo Patri

THERE are two phrases women use that I resent keenly: "I'm just a housewife." "I'm only a homebody." Why any wife and mother should speak of her career in that tone, as if she did not respect her position, did not feel the dignity of her place in society, is beyond me.

Time was, in this land, when marriage and motherhood was the ambition of the young woman, an honored ambition and an honorable achievement. Women then did not work outside their homes. Then, gradually the business world opened to them and year by year more women entered it until today women are happily, usefully at work beside the men. All to the good for them. But—

WHAT IS THERE in an office job, in a professional job, any outside-home job that is so glamorous as to cast the housewife and mother in the shade, make her inferior to the outside worker? Nothing whatever.

The outside worker is no more intelligent, no more able, and in no way more important than the woman who makes a career of home, husband and children. Think what it takes to do that. There is a man to keep happy, to feed, house, care for and love. There are children to bear, rear, send into the world in fine health physically and spiritually.

Consider the various fields of work a mother masters today. Child care in itself is a career. Cooking is a profession and a highly skilled and essential one. There is the financial side to homemaking. It is the mother who must get the full value of every dollar that crosses her hands, and the American mother does just that. It is she who looks ahead and sees who needs what next month or next year, who sees that there is provision for shelter, clothes, health, recreation and education. Dad supplies the money and plans with mother and she executes the whole.

That is who our housewives and mothers are: household executives. Executives in offices are V.I.P.s Well, mothers are too if they would just accept the dignity and power of their office, stand up tall and claim it.

ONE CANNOT PICTURE a fourth vice president of a corporation or the manager of a department store replying to the question, "What do you do?" with, "I'm just the vice president of Rags and Riches," or "I'm only the manager of Feathers Incorporated" in meek and lowly tones. No sir. Those words will come with a ring of pride in achievement, as they should.

Then that is the way they should sound when a woman who heads a going business like a home says, "I'm the housewife." People take other people at their own valuation so mothers and wives should stand up tall and uphold the dignity and the honor of their position. It is tops in America.

Secrets of Charm

Exercise for Health

THIS FALL when the slim, silhouette in fashions takes over, and a good figure is needed to show it off to perfection.

Most women exercise out of vanity. Health usually tags behind in second place. You want to look good, and the fact that you feel good is an extra dividend. Exercise makes you supple and keeps your body youthfully graceful long after you stop announcing your birthdays. It adjust contours, whittles down any problem spots, and keeps the muscles firm.

To get the greatest benefit from exercise, devote at least 20 to 30 minutes daily. The secret is never to miss a day. It takes a lot of will power not just wish power, but the result — your streamlined fall silhouette—is going to be worth it.

Midmorning or midafternoon is the most satisfactory time to do your daily dozens. An hour and a half after, or before a meal are best. Always exercise in a room where at least one window is open—fresh air is most important.

Do you know exactly what your measurements should be?

Unless you are sure of what you are doing, your efforts will probably be haphazard. You may even wind up trimming the wrong curve. It's been done.

To avoid catastrophe, write for "Do You Measure Up." (send 10 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Secrets of Charm, in care of the Post-Dispatch, to determine your ideal measurements. This booklet will serve as a reliable basis for all future contour plans.

New Giant in Film World

Tom O'Neil Started Out in His Dad's Tire Business, Now Controls RKO Pictures

By James L. Kilgallen

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 (INS).

THERE'S a new giant in the field of entertainment in America — dynamic young TV-radio executive Thomas F. O'Neil.

The 40-year-old O'Neil, president of General Teleradio, Inc., now has broadened his TV-radio activities to include motion pictures as a result of his $25,000,000 purchase of RKO-Radio Pictures, Inc., from Howard Hughes.

A quiet, unassuming man with an Irish name, a warm Irish smile and a tire and rubber background in business, O'Neil's stature in the entertainment field has suddenly grown tremendously. His future policies will have great effect not only in TV and radio but in motion picture operations as well.

The $25,000,000 deal promises to have a profound effect on the showing of motion pictures in the nation's theaters and upon the ultimate display of feature films on television screens.

In the deal with Hughes, completed after a year of private negotiations, O'Neil acquires—among other RKO-pictures assets—a magnificent library of approximately 600 feature films.

The acquisition of these films was the "major element of interest," according to O'Neil, in the purchase of RKO by General Tire and Rubber Co.

O'Neil is vice president of the rubber company and head of Mutual Broadcasting System and General Teleradio — companies controlled by General Tire.

The deal was one of the largest single financial transactions in the history of the entertainment field.

I INTERVIEWED O'Neil in his office at 1440 Broadway, New York City. He is a strappingly built war veteran, 6 feet 4 inches tall.

His manner is affable and restrained. There is an outdoor look about his rugged, tanned countenance. He has a high forehead and black hair.

The writer suggested that his $25,000,000 deal with Hughes sounded like a pretty big gamble. He didn't think so. He made it plain that there is, of course, a calculated risk in almost any big business venture.

Smilingly, O'Neil said:

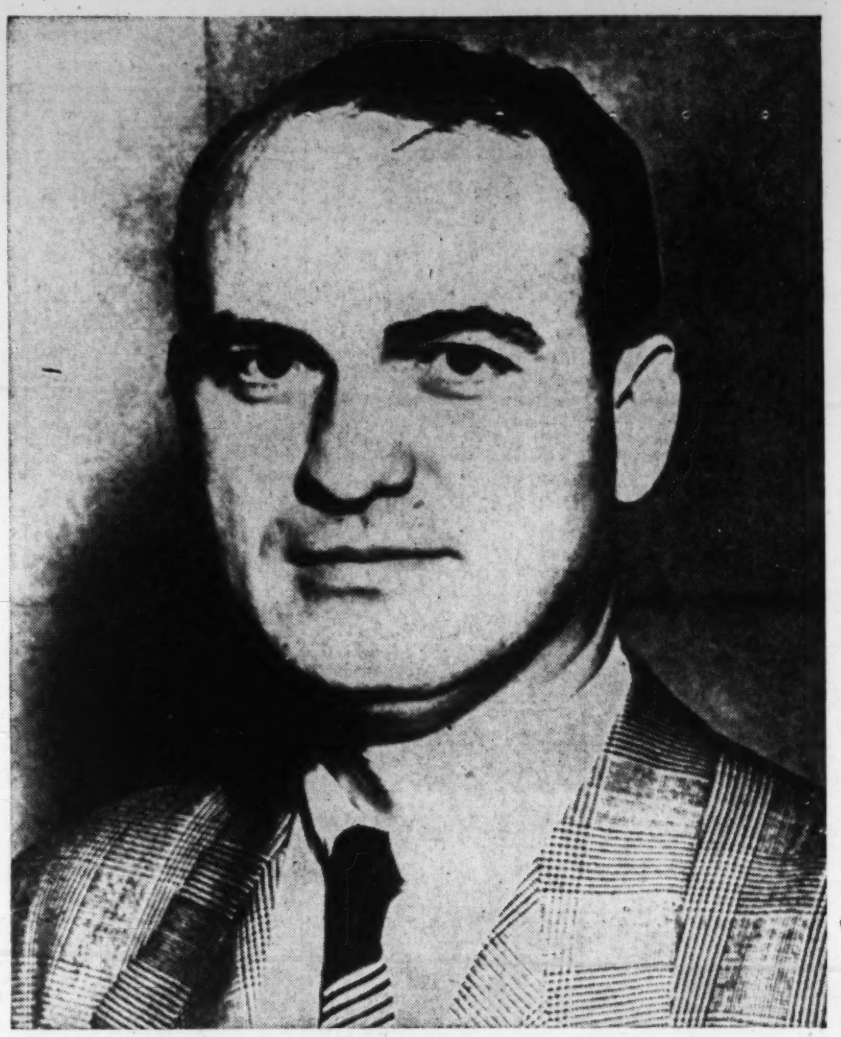
"When the Chase-Manhattan Bank comes up with a $25,000,000 check clinching the deal, they must have decided there was value in it.

"We had to prove to the bank that it was a good deal so we could raise enough money to swing it.

"The way I approached this deal was this: If we were to continue to grow in our field, it would be more of a gamble not to make this $25,000,000 investment than it would be to go ahead with the proposition."

O'Neil said that during a year-long investigation, he and his business associates "became convinced that there is a large and growing market for films for theatrical distribution."

"While the tire company's subsidiary has no definite plans for releasing firms from the RKO library for use in television, certainly inventory of approximately 600 feature films was a major element of interest in the purchase of RKO by our company. "It is quite likely that these films will ultimately appear on television."



THOMAS F. O'NEIL . . . HIS PURCHASE OF RKO PICTURES IS EXPECTED TO BRING 600 MAJOR HOLLYWOOD MOVIES TO TELEVISION.

The young-looking O'Neil came into TV-radio after having had business experience as an executive of General Tire and Rubber Co. (Akron, O.), which was founded by his father, William F. O'Neil.

"W. O.," as his father is affectionately called, always has had great pride in his four sons —Tom, Bill, Jerry and John. A business man to his finger tips, the old gentleman has watched the progress of his sons with keen interest.

Concerning Tom, "W. O." was once moved to say:

"That Tom, he makes money."

Tom O'Neil has indeed been a busy man in recent years. When he changed from his work as a tire company executive to television and radio, things began to hum.

With the acquisition in 1942 of the Yankee network in New England, Tom's general teleradio holdings have expanded until today they include control of Mutual Broadcasting System, two of the country's most influential regional networks; the ownership and operation of five TV stations; seven radio stations; a film division and a recording division.

O'NEIL, who has been made chairman of the board of RKO-Radio Pictures, is already knuckling down to make his $25,000,000 deal with Hughes pay off.

The primary objective with RKO, he said, is to make money in the production and distribution of motion pictures, rather than through the "immediate" use on television of its library of some 600 feature films.

It may be a year or more, he indicated, before any of the films are made available for TV.

His first task is the "revitalization" of RKO-Radio Pictures as a major production-distribution organization for theatrical films.

A great future lies ahead for dramatic shows on film for TV, in O'Neil opinion. Asked what type of TV shows will "take the play" in the future on TV screens, he said:

"News of an instantaneous nature, spot coverage of big sports events, a certain type of popular panel shows and possibly variety show programs will remain an important part of the 'live' television picture.

"But, in my opinion, the tendency of the future will be the filming of dramatic shows. Film, because of the nature of its production, is better equipped to handle the dramatic show than is 'live' television.

"Another value of film lies in its re-use. If you can re-use films on TV, the public gets a second and a third chance to see a show whereas the public has to see the 'live' show the first time."

O'Neil was born April 18, 1915, in Kansas City, Mo. After his graduation from Holy Cross in 1937 he joined General Tire and Rubber Co. The war came on and he served for five years in the U.S. Coast Guard, rising from petty officer to the rank of lieutenant. At one time during his service he was a gunnery officer on a patrol frigate and he was also skipper of an LST in the Pacific. He landed on the beach at Leyte on Oct. 20, 1944, and at Mindoro on Dec. 15, the same year.

Back from the war, O'Neil knuckled down to business at once. While with General Tire in Boston he entered the radio industry in 1947 as vice president of Yankee Network.

HE went up fast. Now he is a "Mr. Big" in motion pictures as well as in TV and radio. To get an idea of the extent and breadth of his various jobs, it is necessary to visualize the operations of General Teleradio which he heads. The component parts of General Teleradio are:

1. Mutual Broadcasting System. Coast-to-coast radio network, and General Teleradio is its majority stockholder. Mutual got under way in 1934 with the inauguration of regular programs between WOR, New York; WGN, Chicago; WLW, Cincinnati, and WXYZ, Detroit. Today it consists of more than 570 affiliates.

2. Don Lee Broadcasting System. The FCC early in 1951 approved the purchase by General Teleradio (for $12,320,000) of the Don Lee Broadcasting system, the Pacific Coast's largest chain with 45 stations in five states.

3. Yankee Network of New England. The acquisition of this network in 1942 marked the entry of General Teleradio into the broadcasting field. Today it has 29 radio stations in six states.

General Teleradio also owns and operates five television stations in five important United States markets. They are WOR-TV (Channel 9), New York; WNAC-TV (Channel 7), Boston; WHBQ-TV (Channel 13), Memphis; KHJ-TV (Channel 9), Los Angeles and WEAT-TV (Channel 12) in West Palm Beach, Fla.

O'Neil's company also owns and operates seven radio stations —WOR, New York; WNAC, Boston; WGTH, Hartford, WHBQ, Memphis; KHJ, Los Angeles; KFRC, San Francisco, and WEAT, West Palm Beach.

When O'Neil is not traveling on the job, he is toiling in his New York office from 9:30 a.m. until it is time to catch the 7:02 p.m. commuter train for his home in Greenwich, Conn.

There he lives happily with his wife and five children—Shane, 8, Eileen, 6, Mark, 4, Conn, 2, and Claire, 9 months. Baby Claire is named after his pretty, diminutive wife, the former Claire Miller McCahey of Chicago.

O'Neil is so busy he has little time for recreation. However, he has a marked fondness for golf and shoots a good game.

His spectacular coup in acquiring RKO is the talk of trade circles.

But big, good-natured Tom O'Neil is taking it all in stride.

Fables Of the Famous

By E. E. Edgar

DECORATION: Once, early in his career, when he was down on his luck, comedian Red Skelton arrived in New York with his wife. They rented a dingy apartment for $4 a week, all they could afford. It was a dismal place, with the dust piled high, the wall paper peeling and the ceiling on the verge of collapse.

For the next few days, the two busied themselves cleaning up the place. Skelton painted the rooms, while his wife put up fresh curtains and added a few feminine frills.

At the end of the week, they were summoned to Philadelphia to fill an engagement. As they expected to be gone for some time, they gave up the apartment.

The engagement proved to be a fiasco. At the end of two weeks, they were back in New York again, as broke as ever. They decided to go back to their old apartment. To their amazement, the landlady asked $7 a week rent.

RED SKELTON . . . NOT ALWAYS IN THE MONEY.

"How come?" demanded Skelton. "It was only $4 three weeks ago."

"I know," agreed the landlady, "but since then the place has been redecorated!"

Doubts: Walter Hagen, one of the great golfers of his day, was not averse to using a little psychology on the opposition. Once, after playing nine holes of a tournament match, he found himself trailing his opponent, who was playing over his head.

As the two stepped up to the tenth tee, Hagen said:

"You're playing a great game today. By the way, which is your stronger hand, the right or the left?"

His opponent, who had been playing flawlessly without concerning himself with such matters, could not help giving the question thought. The moment he did, his game fell off and Hagen breezed through to win the match.

VERIFICATION: A woman who had been invited to the home of Sir Winston Churchill, brought along her young grandson. Before entering the house, she tried to impress the youngster with the importance of the occasion.

"This is a moment you will never forget," she told him. "You are about to meet the greatest man in the world."

When the two entered the house, Sir Winston was not to be seen. After a while, the boy went into the garden, where he came upon an elderly gentleman, who was reading a book.

"Pardon me, sir," said the lad, "are you Sir Winston Churchill?"

"I am," replied the other, looking up reluctantly.

"I am visiting here with my grandmother," continued the boy. "She says you are the greatest man in the world. Is that true, sir?"

"It is," replied Churchill without hesitation, returning to his book.

TEST: When violinist Fritz Kreisler was recuperating from his automobile accident some years ago, his wife was haunted by the fear that he might not be able to play again.

One day, shortly after he began to sit up in bed, she brought his violin to him. A certain passage in the Mendelssohn Concerto had slipped her memory, she told him. Would he play it for her? Kreisler lifted the violin to his chin and played the passage with the clarity and richness of tone that only his artistry could conjure up. When he had finished, there were tears in her eyes. He looked at her understandingly and said:

"Is that what you wanted to hear?"

WORK: During his years in the army and the diplomatic service, Gen. Walter Bedell Smith was always a work horse, who spent long hours at his jobs.

One Saturday morning, when he was Under Secretary of State, he decided to go to his office, although it was his day off. He had a leisurely breakfast and did not reach his desk until nine o'clock.

He had scarcely taken his seat, when the phone rang. It was President Eisenhower calling.

"Are you all right, Beetle?" asked the President.

"I'm fine, Mr. President," replied Gen. Smith. "Why do you ask?"

"I've been calling since 8 o'clock," replied President Eisenhower. "When I didn't find you in, I figured you were sick."

Why All the Fuss?

By Christopher Billopp

A SPECK is a small dark particle of matter. It is found on the surface of a glass of milk or orange juice. Its presence is made known by a child's alarmed cry, "There's something in my milk (or orange juice)."

Elders will immediately investigate to see what the something is. When they find out it is a mere speck they will treat it with scorn. They will say they can't imagine anybody making such a fuss about a tiny little speck.

They will say it is nothing. They will say that from the way the child cried out they supposed it was something dreadful. They will suggest that the child take a spoon and skim the speck off. When the child hesitates they will do the skimming themselves and, after the speck has been removed, command, "Now, go ahead and drink it."

BUT THE CHILD will not drink. It will look skeptically and suspiciously at the liquid. It will have to be told that it is acting very foolishly, and that the speck was nothing.

The elders will profess to having consumed hundreds of such specks without ill-effect. They will predict that in the course of its life the child will do likewise.

THE CHILD, HOWEVER, will refuse to start immediately. It will elect to put off the eating of specks as long as possible. It will not yield even though it is reminded of the millions of starving children in all parts of the world who would give anything for a glass of orange juice with or without the speck. It will behave as though it supposed the elders were trying to poison it.

So the elders will have to yield, throwing the liquid out and replenishing the glass, expressing concern over the future of a child that is so squeamish and overlooking the fact that, at the corresponding age, they had the same horror of a speck.

Hard to Figure Some People Out

By Senator Soaper

A CHICAGO citizen, under indictment on a tax charge, has 10 television sets in his house and is reputed to be a gambler. It's hard to figure some people out. Gambling you can understand, but why would anyone want 10 television sets?

When Parachute Failed

Paratrooper's Plunge From 1000 Feet Into Snowbank

By Lt. Gay J. Talese

FT. KNOX, Ky., Aug. 20 (AP).

THE favorite bedtime story for young paratroopers is the miraculous tale of Stanley Melczak—the luckiest paratrooper alive.

It is the tale of a guy who jumped from a plane 1000 feet above the ground—and both his parachutes failed to open. So, down he came the hard way. His body plunged into a snowbank. He was not even critically injured.

Melczak, with deeply etched cheeks and a voice like James Cagney's, was one of 1500 paratroopers flown near Anchorage, Alaska, last January.

He was assigned to the Eleventh Airborne Division and this was the Army's "Operation Snowbird"—a test to give air-Alaska's harsh climatic conditions.

The gaunt, 20-year-old private from Pittsburgh told the full story after reporting for duty recently at Ft. Knox.

"It was late January — the 29th," he said. "I had been a paratrooper since November — had seven jumps. This was to be my eighth. I felt nervous—more than ever before. Maybe it was just being in Alaska—the snow, fog and all. But I had complete faith in my parachute. Everyone knows that the possibility of a 'chute not opening exists, but the percentage is very small. I felt confident it wouldn't happen to me.

"It was an extremely foggy day. I thought they'd postpone the jump, but they didn't. It was about 10 o'clock in the morning when we boarded the C-119 (flying boxcar) and it would take us about an hour and five minutes to reach the drop zone.

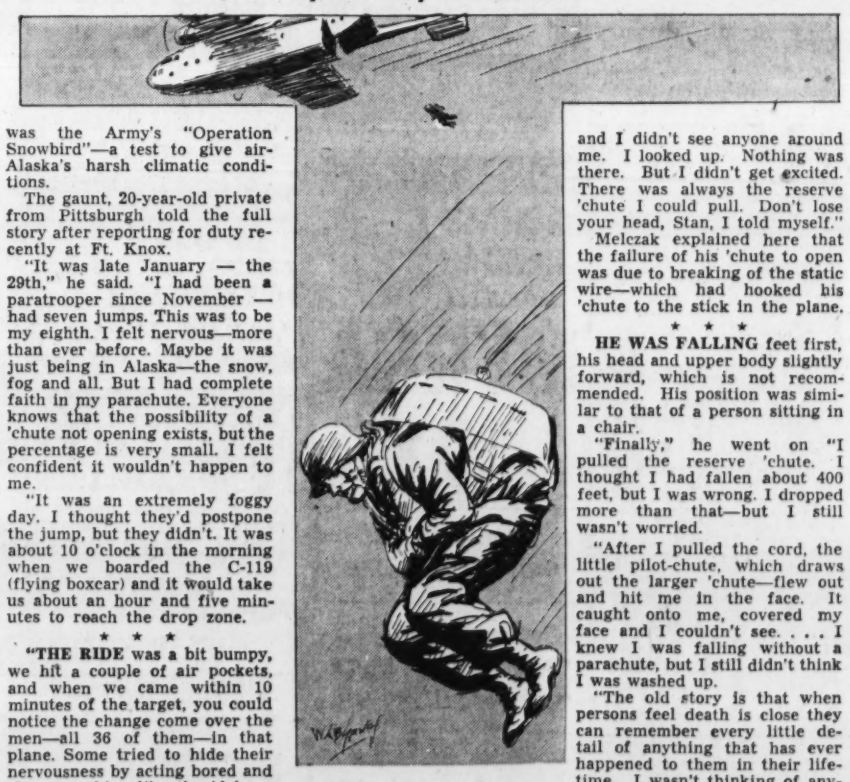
"THE RIDE was a bit bumpy, we hit a couple of air pockets, and when we came within 10 minutes of the target, you could notice the change come over the men—all 36 of them—in that plane. Some tried to hide their nervousness by acting bored and sleepy, making like they'd been around before, that this was just another working day. The young guys tried hard not to show their nervousness — but they showed it all the more by their solemn faces, their silence.

"A lieutenant—new to our company—got up. We were almost there. He was in charge of our stick—the wire in the plane to which parachutes are linked. I was on the right side of the plane, being the fourth man.

"Everybody was quiet now. All except the guy next to me. He was Pvt. Dick Brandolini from somewhere in New Jersey —and he never stopped talking.

"Two minutes before we had to jump and Brandolini was talking about food (Melczak grinned at the memory). My rucksack attached to the 'chute was filled with canned goods — canned peaches, canned pears, chicken, all part of a package my mother had sent the day before. I planned to have a feast after a while. Brandolini said to me:



"'Melczak, when you jump and your parachute don't open, I'm going to take all that food from you. O.K.?' I laughed. Real funny joke.

"Even Brandolini stopped talking now. The only thing on my mind now was this: I was not going to freeze at the door. I was going to jump right away—don't hesitate and freeze. . . .

"Brandolini was out and then I went, too. I counted. 1000 . . . 2000 . . . 3000 . . . 4000 . . . 5000.

"There was no sensation when I hit the air. Sometimes you get a jolt from the prop blast, but not this time.

"I was going down fast now and I didn't see anyone around me. I looked up. Nothing was there. But I didn't get excited. There was always the reserve 'chute I could pull. Don't lose your head, Stan, I told myself."

Melczak explained here that the failure of his 'chute to open was due to breaking of the static wire—which had hooked his 'chute to the stick in the plane.

HE WAS FALLING feet first, his head and upper body slightly forward, which is not recommended. His position was similar to that of a person sitting in a chair.

"Finally," he went on "I pulled the reserve 'chute. I thought I had fallen about 400 feet, but I was wrong. I dropped more than that—but I still wasn't worried.

"After I pulled the cord, the little pilot-chute, which draws out the larger 'chute—flew out and hit me in the face. It caught onto me, covered my face and I couldn't see. . . . I knew I was falling without a parachute, but I still didn't think I was washed up.

"The old story is that when persons feel death is close they can remember every little detail of anything that has ever happened to them in their lifetime. I wasn't thinking of anything—only to try to get that parachute off my face and get some air in it. I didn't make it."

When he finally hit, Melczak never realized it. Luckily, he landed feet first in a 40-inch snowbank. His hips and knees were flexed 90 degrees. Thus, his body was a sort of shock absorber. "This position," a medical report said later, "plus his excellent training, accounts for his living."

"The medics and chaplains were the first to get to me," Melczak said. "They cut my equipment, got me on a stretcher, gave me some shots, and soon I was on a helicopter to an Army hospital. My arms and back felt broken, but it was only three fractured vertebra.

"That weekend, generals and colonels and my buddies came to see me, shook my hand and told me how lucky I was. Brandolini came too — and I gave him some canned peaches. For the next three months I was in hospitals in Alaska, later was sent to Valley Forge, Pa., to another Army hospital.

"All this time I still couldn't believe I survived such a thing. Exercises daily got me back in shape, and my back is strong and I'm in good shape now. I was walking within two weeks of the fall."

Melczak, who stands 5 feet 8 and weighs 147 pounds, said that on being sent to Ft. Knox he was told "not to jump off a chair, even."

This has made him unhappy. "I'm a paratrooper," he said. "I'd like to jump again."

To Serve, or Not To Serve Drinks

By Emily Post

A DIFFICULT problem is asked in this letter: "Very soon we will have relatives of my husband come and visit us for a week. During their stay we plan to have a dinner party for them, so that they may meet some of our friends. It has always been our custom to serve a cocktail in the living room before dinner. However, these relatives of my husband are opposed to drinking. I would like to know if it would be proper to follow our usual custom or might it be discourteous to our guests knowing their prejudice?"

Because you are giving the dinner for them, I think it would be better not to go against their prejudice, especially since you know how they feel. When you invite the other guests you can explain that you are not serving cocktails as usual because your house guests are so opposed to drinking.

DEAR MRS. POST: My daughter is going to be married soon. Since her fiance has no brother, he has asked a cousin of his to be best man. This cousin is engaged to be married and we would like to know if it is necessary to ask his fiancee to be a bridesmaid.

Answer: It is not at all necessary to invite her to be bridesmaid nor is it necessary to invite her to sit at the bridal table.

Matured as Comic in Army

Phil Foster, Assigned to Morale Building, Has Own Morale Bolstered

By Virginia Irwin
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.

WHEN Phil Foster, star of the "Caesar Presents" summer series (KSD-TV Mon. 7 p.m.) was driving one of Uncle Sam's Army trucks in southern France during the war, he was frequently called from behind the wheel for a little morale-building job.

"Some officer would say, 'Look, Foster, it says here on your form that you're an actor and I figure my guys could do with a little cheering up, so suppose you entertain us'," the versatile comedian said. "Well, I don't know how much I cheered those guys up, but their laughs sure did wonders for my morale."

Just how Phil wound up driving a truck instead of in some special services entertainment unit, where most actors landed in the Army, is something of a mystery. Especially since Phil's sole knowledge of mechanics before the war had consisted of adjusting a microphone before delivering one of his comic routines. But he's glad the Army put him where it did.

"While driving those trucks with the infantry I matured as a human being," he said soberly. "And I think while entertaining those dogfaces on the side, I matured as a comic.

PHIL, who plays the role of the pharmacist Charlie Williams in "Caesar Presents," has been getting laughs since he was in Erasmus High School in Brooklyn. He worked at being the class clown because, being good for a little entertainment, it got him invited to parties, where there was usually plenty of good free food and pop.

PHIL FOSTER . . . GOT HIS NAME FROM A NEIGHBORHOOD STREET.

The extra party food wasn't exactly a negligible item to Phil in those days. The son of a Polish immigrant house painter, there were many times when his family thought they were really living it up if there was enough potato soup for a second helping.

Now often referred to as "The Will Rogers of Brooklyn," Phil got a good deal of his professional experience working at Catskill Mountain resorts, a testing ground for many of today's television stars. He remembers the first time he ever signed a contract for a whole season—13 weeks at $3.00 a week with room and board.

"It was clear," he recalls, "except for what I had to pay my agent."

PHIL was beginning to make quite a name for himself when Uncle Sam decided there was need for his services. And after the war he picked up just where he left off. Eight hours after stepping off the troop transport that brought him home he donned a tuxedo, grabbed a mike and laid them out laughing at a club in the Bronx with comic monologue on his life in the Army. Club dates, radio, resorts and television kept him steadily and increasingly gainfully employed. His real break came on the Tallulah Bankhead show. Teamed with Patsy Kelly, he was on the show for 26 consecutive weeks.

One of the stories Phil tells frequently is on himself and how he picked out his professional name. Actually his father's name had been an unpronounceable Polish jumble of c's, y's, w's, k's and z's and the immigration officer at Ellis Island, despairing of spelling much less pronouncing it, gave Phil's father the same name as the man just ahead of him in line. So Phil grew up as Phil Feldman but when he broke into show business his first agent suggested that he abandon Feldman for something more theatrical. He asked Phil what street he lived on.

"Coney Island avenue, but that wouldn't do," Phil said. "How would it sound if they introduced me in a theater or night club as 'Phil Coney Island Avenue'?"

PHIL thought again. He lived on Coney Island Avenue between Cortelyou Road and Foster Avenue.

"Phil Cortelyou wasn't right either," he said. "So I became Phil Foster."

Married to a former Conover model, Phil is the papa of two young sons, Mike, 2, and Danny, just 2 months old. One of the few comedians in the business who writes all his own routines, Phil spends what little spare time he has dabbling in painting. He lives across the river from Manhattan in Fort Lee, N. J.

Weaver's TV Views

Medium Must Do More Than Just Entertain

By Sylvester L. Weaver Jr.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.

THE PRESS, John Crosby included, has given some attention in recent months to an NBC policy called "Enlightenment Through Exposure." Under this policy, we try to weave elements of cultural, informational and educational value into our prime-time shows without detracting from the entertainment values that lure mass audiences.

The press response has ranged from extremes of praise to extremes of skepticism. Mr. Crosby, I would judge, has steered a middle course. To him the policy presently means that "little snippets of culture are inserted in regular shows whose purpose is mostly to entertain." He has appraised our efforts as "a small beginning—but you have to start somewhere." Fair enough!

Weaver.

Out of this small beginning we frankly aim to create something that is useful, inspiring and educational as well as entertaining—something that contains elements of appeal for everyone. We do this because a lot of us in network television believe, unblushingly, that we are shaping an instrument with the greatest potential for good since the invention of the printing press. Our problem is how to go about unleashing this great force for good, how to expose more people to more good.

I BELIEVE there are two things we must do. First, the cultural infusion: more and more snippets woven into a cultural mosaic of fine music, fine art, fine drama. As the level of popular appreciation rises, we must keep pace with increased programming of a cultural nature. We must make culture a commodity of mass appeal.

Second — and in support of that first aim—we must make television fluid. The old rigid radio programming forms of regular half-hour and hour shows are not our answer. Used alone, they would limit television, would make it a small instrument achieving only small ends. We have, therefore, sought fluidity by opening up television to programs scheduled in an irregular pattern. True, we have kept the old radio forms and we shall continue to do so. But we have added new ones—ninety minute and two-hour spectaculars in color, live; special service shows like "Home"; special telementaries like Henry Salomon's story of the atom, "Three-Two-One-Zero."

This is program fluidity such as radio never knew. Next season, NBC and CBS alone will program more than 100 Spectaculars.

WE HAVE ANOTHER name for this type of big special programming, with its emphasis on fine art and fine music. We call it "programming up." It is the antithesis of the motion picture philosophy of programming down to the lowest denominator of mass appeal. Unlike the movies, we in television are not merchants of escape; we seek to deal in reality. The difficulty in "programming up," of course, is that many knowledgeable people feel it's not good business.

Television, like newspapers and magazines, is a mass medium. Like the printed media, its prosperity rests on circulation. But, in the business of attracting larger circulation, the analogy between television and print breaks down. Where newspapers and magazines must seek their added circulation, I suspect, on popular levels, the problem for television is just the opposite.

BUT TELEVISION must be a medium for all the people. And to increase our circulation we can aim only at the "light viewer," who is usually highly discriminating, and the non-viewer.

"Programming up" is not the easy way to riches. Replacing a one-hour commercial program by an award-winning telementary like "Three-Two-One-Zero" on a sustaining basis does not flood the network ledger with black ink. But it is our way of compelling the "light viewer" to spend more time at his set, and of forcing the non-viewer to scurry over to his neighbor's house. (Eventually he'll wear out his welcome and have to buy his own set.)

Next season, we plan to offer some tantalizing bait for the "lights" and the "nons." There is a series of one-hour documentaries on the history of the Twentieth Century—Project 20, we call it. Already set are "Nightmare in Red," a dramatic history of Russian Communism, told in terms of Russian-made film from all parts of the free world; "Young India," a probing study of that complex new nation; a survey of the Jazz Age, and other aspects of current history. A probable starter for fall is "Wide, Wide World," previewed a few weeks ago in a 90-minute program that darted all over the United States and across borders to Canada and Mexico.

There will be the new Maurice Evans- produced series of great dramas, presented as 90-minute color spectaculars on Sunday afternoons. World-famous concert-hall figures like Artur Rubinstein and Marian Anderson will appear on other spectaculars. There will be premieres of operas commissioned by NBC, and news-in-depth studies like the recent "Meeting at the Summit" program. And color television will add to the torment of the stay-aways. We're boosting our colorcasts 500 per cent above last year's output.

Frankly, it's going to be a hard year on the TV-boycotters. I sorrow for gentlemen like Mr. Wolcott Gibbs who recently appeared in this space as a guest columnist and announced that he did not have a television set. What a pity that Mr. Gibbs, a student of drama, will miss the Evans dramatic series, the ballet spectacular, the three-hour presentation of Richard III with Sir Laurence Olivier. But perhaps his neighbors are still tolerant.

Television Letter Box

FOR some time I have wanted to voice my dislike for the awful noise coming under the title of music to which we are obliged to listen while watching a TV play. I hesitated, thinking I might be the sole objector, but on reading Mrs. Martin's letter, I see I am one of many. This so-called music is, in some instances, so weird and horrible as to be hair-raising. Please, please less so-called music with our drama.

MRS. J. B. RICHARDS.

I do not see how it is possible for me to enjoy "The Tennessee Ernie Show" more each day, but I do just that. It is unquestionably the most enjoyable show on television. I would not have him change one thing about his show. I like the spontaneous way it starts; both girl singers are fine; I also enjoy Skip's singing very much. Each member contributes so much, and Ernie lets them without trying to hog the whole show himself. The high point is the hymn, which closes the program on a dignified, happy and peaceful note.

MABEL PALMIER.

Muny Opera Summing Up---A Good Season

But Attendance Still Dipping

By Myles Standish

COMES NOW the summing up for Municipal Opera's thirty-seventh season, as it goes into its final eight performances of "South Pacific." Critically it was a remarkably successful season. There were five shows new to Forest Park, equalling last year's record, and one of them was new to St. Louis. Seven productions, as such, were really first-rate. Three were fairly good, although they had some casting weaknesses and one of them was a mediocre musical as written. One other musical was given an anemic production.

The attendance continued to show, however, the slight but too persistent decline which began after the record 1949 season and was only halted temporarily in 1952. The first 10 shows had an attendance of 515,000, or 20,000 under the first 10 for last season. The difference is almost accounted for by the fact two performances were rained out this year as against none last season. But if the weather continues good from this writing, this drop may be made up somewhat the final two weeks. The first week of "South Pacific," it is indicated, will be 3000 to 5000 more than the 72,000 "Oklahoma!", last season's final production, had in its first week, although "South Pacific" can hardly hope to do more than equal the 80,000 of "Oklahoma's" second week.

At best, indications are this season will be 15,000 under last year's 694,429 attendance. To show the steady decline, the 1953 total was 697,700; 1952, 724,000; 1951, 723,000; 1950, 807,000; 1949, 898,000.

MANAGER PAUL BEISMAN thinks the opera will come out in the black again—although it will be "a pretty close shave"—thus preserving the theater's record of never costing the guarantor's a cent. But expenses, mostly because of much higher royalties, will be up over last year's, which were $50,000 over the year before. The opera is squeezing through, in other words, but isn't building up any financial cushion.

"South Pacific's" opening night crowd was 11,200, the largest opener in the history of the theater, and it is a tremendous hit. Next biggest hit was "The King and I," with 70,200 for a week. The other three shows of the Rodgers and Hammerstein Festival disappointed financially. "Allegro" drew only 40,700 people, "Carousel" 41,300 during a hot spell, and the concert only 38,600 in six performances—there was a rainout, and rain threatened constantly.

"Guys and Dolls" was a success with 66,000 in spite of threatening weather two nights. "The Desert Song," was good with 58,000, too, but all the rest, "Brigadoon," "Wonderful Town," "The Vagabond King," and "The Merry Widow" were disappointments, being far under the 55,000 attendance the management considers necessary for a show to pay its way in a week. "The Merry Widow," with only 51,000 for 10 nights, was the worst of the season. Handicapped by cold and rainy weather and one rainout, it was 24,000 under last year's opener, "Call Me Madam."

"WONDERFUL TOWN," the show new to St. Louis, was smart, high-spirited and amusing. The other musicals new to Forest Park were "South Pacific," an exhilarating success, with first-rate leads; "The King and I," richly mounted, finely acted and excellently sung; "Guys and Dolls," zestful, exuberant and quite funny; and "Allegro," a trite show to begin with, with most of the music undistinguished, and not helped by the limitations of the male lead.

The corn and lush, candied melody of "The Desert Song" were given a good production, with Ed Roceker booming as the Red Shadow, and Jack Goode doing some hilarious comedy work. "The Vagabond King," in spite of its good score, had a production too undernourished to carry the stilted heroics of its book, and a wooden Villon. "The Merry Widow" had its old musical magic and an excellent Danilo in George Gaynes, although its Sonia's charm was on the mechanical side. "Brigadoon" retained its enchantment, with Earl William singing brilliantly and the dances good, although I would have chosen a different Fiona.

THE CUSTOMERS got what they said they wanted, Beisman pointed out, although in some cases they didn't seem to want it very much when they had it. The 11 shows given were among the first 20 selected in a pre-season poll sampling the desires of potential audiences. The totals included 5100 replies from 11,000 mailed to guarantors, season subscribers and former subscribers, and a small return from ballots published in the newspapers. The other nine were eliminated chiefly because they had been given recently, except one new one, Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Me and Juliet," which probably will be offered next season. The box-office results actually followed the form of the customers' indicated desires for shows they most wanted to see, in the first few instances. "South Pacific," was No. 1 in the poll with 63.5 per cent of the ballots putting it in the first 20. "The King and I" was second with 49.5 per cent. "The Desert Song" was fourth with 45.1; following "Show Boat," with 47.9; and "Guys and Dolls" was fifth with 39.

Next year the opera will continue its policy of mostly new shows. It hopes 7 weeks of the 12 will offer something new—besides "Me and Juliet," about four current or recent Broadway hits and a new experiment in fine music. "Annie Get Your Gun" and "The Student Prince" are two other good bets, and for the others, a culling of the old favorite list is indicated.

Eddie-Debbie Still on

NEW YORK, Aug. 20—Eddie Fisher and Debbie Reynolds are still engaged, Fisher's manager, Milton Blackstone, said tonight. No wedding date has been set, but the couple remain engaged, he said.

Fisher was in Seattle this week on a crowded tour of personal appearances, scheduled to bring him to New York this weekend for an appearance in Central Park.

Miss Reynolds has just completed making the film, "The Tender Trap," in Hollywood,

Art and Artists

More on Russia's Modern Masters

By Howard Derrickson

ALFRED H. BARR JR. has characterized Russia's long-hidden modern art treasures, now being publicly shown, as "the greatest collection in the world of French painting of the post - impressionist and early twentieth-century schools." Barr, director of collections at New York's Museum of Modern Art, is probably the leading American authority on the 700-picture Soviet holdings.

It may be that, along with Russia's new role as active participant in Western culture, the paintings are merely to continue their old function as a political football. Russia lent nine famous Picassos to Italy in 1953. Later a Paris showing of 37 Leningrad-based paintings was cut short by the lawsuit of an original Russian collector's heirs.

Soviet appreciation of propaganda value of these treasures' Russian ownership is not exactly new. French novelist and critic Romain Rolland was first quoted thus on his reaction to the Russian collection on seeing it in the days when it was intact:

"I was fortunate then to see that colorful French symphony under one roof."

HIS REMARK was edited and expanded interestingly in a portfolio on the collection printed in English in Moscow in 1938. Russia then was anything but friendly to the trends the pictures represent, but Rolland was made to say:

"I am happy to see this abundant, varied French symphony now flourishing under the friendly eyes of the U.S.S.R."

This was at a time when slick, academic, neo-classic poster "art" was demanded of Russian painters who wanted to eat. Even factual or emphatic realism was denounced as naturalism. Those works in the Museum of Modern Western Painting that were not found to be "formalist," a dirty word in the Soviet lexicon, were—Nazi-fashion—"degenerate."

In a sophomoric 1939 pamphlet on "Museums of the U.S.S.R.," the work of one O. Leonova, "teacher of merit and member of the Supreme Soviet," the official line for home consumption was made clear.

AUTHOR LEONOVA extolled Moscow's Red Army Museum and its Museum of the Revolution but had not one word to say about the same city's once world-famous Museum of Modern Western Painting. Lines are lavished on mere albums devoted to Stalin and on such monstrosities as silk-embroidered portraits of the Man of Steel and his comrades.

Descriptions of Leningrad's Hermitage and Moscow's Pushkin Museum are innocent of allusion to French moderns then hidden in remote rooms at both places. Jubilant mention is made, however, of art collections from China, Japan, India, Egypt, Mesopotamia, Renaissance Italy and later European schools.

Piously the pedagogue concludes:

"This strikingly testifies to the high respect the citizens of the Soviet Union entertain for cultural achievements. The people of the Soviet Union value and respect the treasures of world culture."

Early last year a French woman journalist, Helene Gordon-Lazareff, succeeded in obtaining admission to the musty, disused gallery of the sprawling Hermitage where many of these modern master works were stored.

Published in Paris in July 1954 in Le Nouveau Femina, a fashion magazine, her descriptions and color photographs of these expressions of the free spirit included such beauties as Van Gogh portraits, a Degas pastel and Matisse's brilliant "Le Chambre Rouge" and "La Danse," dismissed by the Russians as "symbols of the influence of capitalistic slave culture."

LESS THAN two months later the New York Times was reporting on Page 1 that this vast wing of the Hermitage had been dusted and "reopened to the general Soviet public."

The Times continued: "This does not mean that the Soviet line has suddenly shifted to the support of (modern) trends. It does mean that the Government no longer believes in hiding world-famous art treasures from public view simply because the official ideological line may point in a different direction."

Lest it be assumed that Soviet treatment of modern art has been reported with unfailing accuracy and quickness in the United States, it should be noted that an American picture magazine only last February — six months after the Hermitage wing in question had reopened—published a short, jazzed-up article based on Mlle. Gordon-Lazareff's work. Entitled "A Treasury of Art Found in a Russian Attic," it failed to report the changed situation.

At the Movies

By Myles Standish

LADY AND THE TRAMP—Walt Disney cartoon all about dogs. Real cute, too, sometimes too cute for my stomach, but on the whole sprightly and amusing. Looks like this will be the biggest thing with the kids since Davy Crockett. ORPHEUM.

INNOCENTS IN PARIS—Some mildly amusing fun and romances on the wistful side in this English attempt at the French style as seven Britishers weekend in Paris. Sometimes too obvious, certainly never very subtle, in the script, but with a good cast headed by Clair Bloom, Claude Dauphin, the adroit Alastair Sim and Laurence Harvey. SHADY OAK.

THE MAN FROM LARAMIE—Jimmy Stewart as the mysterious stranger on the trail of vengeance and Donald Crisp as the granite-like cattle baron bring two standard Western themes together head on in CinemaScope. Jimmy struggles through all manner of persecution, but the results are anticlimactic. Nothing to get excited about. FOX.

THE KENTUCKIAN—A Kentucky pioneer days adventure-romance gets pretty dull before star-director Burt Lancaster injects it with large gobs of unnecessary brutality. Then it just gets disgusting. LOEW'S STATE.

MISTER ROBERTS—Although the necessary cutting of the ribald stuff of the play loses a dozen belly laughs, this story of a bored crew aboard a Navy cargo ship in World War II is still awfully funny. Henry Fonda, Jack Lemmon and William Powell are just right as Lt. Roberts, Ensign Pulver and Doc, but James Cagney is unbelievably vitriolic as the Captain. ST. LOUIS.

MARTY—A heart-warming and touching little picture about loneliness among drab people, brought to life from Paddy Chayefsky's television drama by fine performances by Ernest Borgnine as a fat Bronx butcher and Betsy Blair as a plain school teacher. PAGEANT and RICHMOND.

THIS IS CINERAMA—Sights and sounds of Paris, Switzerland and the United States in the sensational depth process. AMBASSADOR.

Louis Calhern in New Play to Open American Sept. 19

THE American Theater's first attraction for the coming season will be "The Wooden Dish," a new play by Edmund Morris, starring Louis Calhern. It will have its American premiere at the showhouse the week of Sept. 19, prior to its New York opening Oct. 6.

It was first produced in England last summer, even though Morris is an American, because of the Broadway theater shortage at the time. The locale is Texas. Polly Rowles, currently acting in the American Shakespeare Festival at Stratford, Conn., will have the feminine lead. Donald Oenslager designed the settings. Armand Deutsch is producing.

Calhern's last play was "King Lear" on Broadway in 1950. His biggest hit was "Jacobowsky and the Colonel." His many motion pictures since 1942 have included "Arch of Triumph," "The Magnificent Yankee," "Asphalt Jungle," "Prisoner of Zenda," "Julius Caesar," "Executive Suite," "Blackboard Jungle" and "The Prodigal."

Boy Meets Mom

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 20—Bob Hope met British film producer Betty Box at Paramount recently. "I was born in Eltham . . . very near where you were born," Miss Box told the comedian, who studied her thoughtfully.

"Did you live in a little red brick house near High street?" he asked. "Yes," she replied.

"Was there an oak tree in the garden?" "Why yes," said the producer.

"Was there a big potted plant in the parlor?" asked Hope excitedly. "Yes."

Hope grabbed Miss Box in his arms and cried, "Mother!"

'Rocking-Horse Winner'

"The Rocking Horse Winner," the 1950 British film starring Valerie Hobson and John Mills, will be shown at the Cinema Guild, 455 North Boyle avenue, at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. Friday, Saturday and next Sunday.

Lanza Starts New Film; Odds He Won't Finish

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 20 (UP)—Temperamental Mario Lanza has gone to work in a new movie, but according to his director the odds are 90-1 he won't finish the picture.

"It's beginninge to sound like a horse race," says veteran director Anthony Mann. "Every time I run into someone they ask: 'Has he shown yet?'

"They said Mario would never work again after the Las Vegas hassle and the 'Student Prince' trouble. But he's already completed recording 50 minutes of recordings for 'Serenade.' And he's in greater voice than ever."

Tony says Mario still must lose weight for the filmed sequences of the film.

"It's not important if he does come in overweight," the director went on. "The story parallels Mario's own life. It's the dramatic story of an opera singer who loses his will to sing, and then regains it.

"That's just about what's happened to Mario.

"So far we've gotten along beautifully. Mario's a very charming guy, a very sweet guy. Past performances don't mean a thing to me."

Marilyn Monroe Makes Up With 20th Century

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 20 — Marilyn Monroe and 20th Century Fox have apparently settled their differences, and not a moment too soon for Miss Monroe's own good. Her fan mail has been steadily decreasing and she is slipping at the box office, probably because of the noticeable decline in her publicity since going on suspension.

Terms of the agreement between the actress and the studio call for her to star in a minimum of four films for the next seven years. She also will have the right to approve scripts and directors.

For every studio picture she makes Miss Monroe will be able to make one picture for her own Marilyn Monroe Productions. These films will probably be released by Fox.

Meanwhile, Miss Monroe is taking her own sweet time about going back to work. She is now attending actors' studio classes in New York.

Answers to Housewives' Questions

By Dorothy Brainerd

WHO among us hasn't at some time found a coat or suit that was just too good a bargain to pass by, bought it on impulse, then regretted it at leisure when we discovered that although our "find" truly was a bargain, it just didn't fit into the rest of our wardrobe? A single garment can't stand on its own merits; it must fit happily into the over-all scheme of our clothing and accessories if it is to be a success.

And so it is with home furnishings. It is a temptation to fall in love with one beautiful piece that we find on sale—but before you make it your own do take time to ask yourself these questions:

Does it belong? That is, is it something that you can really use, or will it just take up space in your room without serving any real purpose?

How will it affect the balance of the room in which you plan to place it? It isn't necessary that it be of the same period or of the same wood as all of the other furniture. Periods and woods may be combined effectively, but this must be done with some skill and not haphazardly. Also, before introducing another object into a room, consider the balance of high and low pieces; heavy and light pieces which you now own.

Are the proportions right? No matter how handsome a large sofa may be, it will overpower a small room and spoil the whole effect. Rooms of moderate size, or ceilings that are average or low, need furniture scaled in proportion. Each piece should be selected in relation to the size of the room, and of other pieces.

Will it be comfortable? In the final analysis, this is the most important point of all. A home is a place to relax, not a museum or a decorator's studio. Any piece of furniture that does not contribute to this goal had better be left in the showroom. No matter how big a bargain it may be, it is of no value to you unless it makes your room more pleasant and more livable.

TWO ILLINOIS READERS have come forward with suggestions for Mrs. L. S., who wanted to know how to remove dirt of long standing from the windows of an old house.

Mrs. R. C. of Sparta reports that she "found something that really worked." She dampened one of the soap-filled steel pads used for cleaning pots and pans, and used it in conjunction with a good scouring powder.

"A Housewife" in Herrin says that she had tried everything including ammonia, razor blades and a lye solution—then found that nail polish remover did the trick.

Many thanks to both of you—you probably have saved Mrs. S. hours of hard labor.

"DAILY READER" really had us stumped when she requested a recipe for carrot pudding made in a double boiler. Not only did we not have the recipe—we had never heard of it. We took our problem to the home economist for the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association, who did not have such a recipe but promptly set about developing one. So here it is, strictly custom-made for you, Daily Reader.

Double Boiler Carrot Pudding: One and one-half cups hot mashed carrots; one-fourth cup butter or margarine; one-half cup sugar; one-fourth teaspoon ground nutmeg; one-eighth teaspoon salt; two eggs, beaten; one-fourth cup milk; one tablespoon fresh lemon juice; one-half teaspoon grated lemon rind.

Combine first five ingredients in top of double boiler. Mix until fluffy. Beat in eggs and milk. Cook over hot water until thickened, 12 to 1 minutes. Stir in lemon juice and rind. Serve warm with whipped cream. Yield: four servings.

"WE HAVE a problem with a wet basement floor," explains F. F. "The house is only two years old, and we are just sick about it. Every time it rains the concrete gets damp."

Of course I have no way of knowing whether this is due to faulty construction or some architectural or drainage defect. Normal basement dampness can be controlled by adequate ventilation on warm days, and by the use of some of the many products on the market which absorb moisture, or by dehumidifiers. Obviously these can afford only partial and temporary relief if the dampness is excessive and is due to leakage or seepage.

Any homemaking problems bothering you? If so, write to Dorothy Brainerd in care of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. She will answer your questions or publish them and see if other readers have the answers for you.

Symptoms of Emotionally Upset Person

By Glen Shepherd, M.D.

BACK in the consulting room, Dr. Frank spoke to his patient after reading over the laboratory reports and refreshing his memory about the physical examination and symptoms. He said, "Mrs. Albertson, my examination and these laboratory tests show that physically you are in good shape. There's no evidence of cancer or any other structural disease. Your symptoms are functional, perhaps emotional, in origin."

Was she relieved? Well, yes, in a way. But listen. "Now look here, doctor, I'm not imagining those pains and other troubles. I'm not just another neurotic woman. Emotional, indeed. Let me tell you . . ." And she did. But good.

THE DOCTOR WONDERED FOR THE UMTEENTH TIME how he could communicate what he means so that his patient won't feel insulted. He's abandoned using the word psychiatric whenever possible. Nerves is the word that gives his patients something physical to fix their attention on instead of the real nature of the trouble, so it isn't so good.

Here is what most physicians are trying to say when they talk of symptoms coming from emotional or nervous causes. Let's pretend that you are the patient in my consulting room. You just sat down and I'm talking to you.

Are you still having those troubles? You are, eh? Well, I can understand how much they bother you and we've got to do something about it. We've made progress. We've found a lot of things they aren't due to. My examination and the laboratory tests show that your body basically is in good shape. There isn't any sign of tumor, cancer, ulcer or other things that might have to be cut out. That's good.

IT LEAVES QUITE A FEW WAYS that various functions of your body can be out of kilter. By functions of the body, I mean its various workings, such as making various hormones or sending nerve impulses to muscles and intestine causing them to tauten. I don't mean your glands or nerves are out of order. I just gave those as examples.

They're good examples because they and other body functions can be influenced by happenings, events, and your own emotions quite as much as by germs or viruses.

Our bodies are very complicated systems. Our attitudes and emotions influence the various workings of the body just as disordered functions influence how we feel and think. You know this is so when you have an upset stomach or a headache. You aren't as cheery or energetic as usual.

FOR THAT MATTER, you know that a disgusting sight or great disappointment can upset the stomach, even though your stomach itself is perfectly healthy, without ulcer or any other disease. Milder fears or anxieties that you might not at first realize are important can upset delicate body functions.

You have some very real symptoms that naturally bother you a good deal. Our job is to find out just what is disturbing the function or workings of your essentially healthy body.

That is going to require several talks together, you and I. We'll try to find out just what the underlying disturbance is that brings on these pesky symptoms of yours.

In the meantime, not as a cure for anything but simply to help you get some good rest the next few nights, I'll give you some medicine. It will make you feel better but the basic problem lies in our discovering what disturbs you sufficiently to produce these symptoms.

Fall Costumes

Many types of textures and weights of fabrics contribute to the attractiveness of fall costumes. Both plain and novelty woolens have been made compatible through similarity of surface treatment or close color mating. Tweeds, for example, are color-cued to featherweight plain fabrics in the Forstmann fabric collections by accenting the predominating color of the novelty. Tweed mixtures and monotones appear together. Some of the dense pile coatings are allied with tone-on-tone materials that are lighter weight.

Varied Brown Shades

Varied shades of brown are shown by Mollie Parnis for fall costumes. The shades are featured to harmonize with mink or sable as well as to flatter different hair coloring. They include browns for blondes, browns for brunettes, and brown for the gray-haired woman. Beige tones also are noted in new variations. Among these is a grayish beige while a warmer, nearly brown shade is called molasses.

Rare Wool Fibers

The trend in new woolen materials is towards richness whether the fabrics are used for casual or more festive costumes. A lavish use of rare wool fibers is noteworthy. Some of the coatings have a plush-velvety feeling. Duvetyn types of materials are used for suitings. Cashmere comes in many combinations with wool, and camel hair steps away from the strictly classic into gay colors such as blue, green and red.

Small Fur Scarfs

Hattie Carnegie features small fur scarfs which she calls "fure flatterers." These are tucked into the neckline of a suit or costume. These little scarfs are practical as well as pretty, and may be worn with several different ensembles.

'My Opinion'

Father Too Strict With Teen-Age Son?

By Martha Carr

Dear Martha:

MY husband has been very strict. He now works away from home and is here only on weekends. Our elder son is 17 and will be a senior in high school this fall. Should he have to ask us every time he goes out with his friends? He has use of the car three nights a week and Sunday afternoon only. Should he be allowed more freedom? None of his friends has to ask to go out or even to take the car if no one else is using it. He also talks of leaving home if his father doesn't change.

MRS. G.

I can't understand your son's rebellion because from your letter it seems to me that he has quite a few privileges, at least regarding the car. I don't think a teen-ager should always be forced to ask permission to go out, but I do think that as a matter of courtesy he should let his parents know with whom he is going and whether he will be late in getting home. Nor do I think it is right for one member of the family—adult or teen-ager—to assume without question that he can take the car at any time without regard to the others' needs or wishes. Try to discourage any thought of running away. After all, as the eldest son, he should be taking some responsibility at home, rather than worrying about his lack of freedom. Since he confides in you, try to make him understand that his father's strict rules are motivated by concern for him and that as an adult in a few years he will have the right to make his decisions as he wishes.

Dear Martha:

● MY HUSBAND AND I and another couple are close friends. Now my husband has found out through a business friend that this man is going with another woman. His wife, of course, doesn't know anything about it. She's crazy about him and wouldn't suspect that anything was wrong. Do you think we should talk with her about this? We hate to see her hurt.

No, I don't think it's your place to pass along the bad news. She'll probably find out soon enough. However, under the circumstances, I can see that it would be awkward for you and your husband to be with this other couple, and it might be better to break away gradually. Don't get involved in their difficulties.

Dear Martha Carr:

● RECENTLY I passed my test for a driver's license with a rather high rating. My problem is people constantly asking and teasing me about not driving my car to work. Since I have to travel 15 miles across heavy traffic I feel I am not experienced enough just yet. Am I wrong or am I as stupid as people make me feel? BOBBIE.

You're wise not to try to drive in heavy traffic until you feel you have sufficient experience. Take your friends' kidding with a laugh and a wisecrack in return. If all drivers had the sense to know their own limitations, there'd be fewer accidents, and much less traffic.

Dear Martha:

● I WENT STEADY with a boy while we were in high school and college. Then we went east with a big company and he said after he had been through the two-year training period he would come back here and we could be married. But now his two years are up and he has written me that he likes the east and wants to stay there and since he knows I want to be here near my family maybe we'd just better break up. Should I tell him I'll go there to marry, or is he just giving me the brush-off? IN LOVE.

I'm afraid you have the situation pretty well sized up. If he wanted to marry, he would either have arranged to move back here or would have given you a strong argument why you should be willing to move where he is.

Dear Martha:

● A FRIEND AND I grew up together, went through high school and college. Then she married, and moved to another city. She has always been asking me to visit her but I never had a chance to go near her home town until this year. She has been married eight years and I haven't seen her in that time. But this summer I wrote and said I would be coming through and would like to see her. I thought surely she would renew her invitation but I haven't heard from her and that has been two months ago that I wrote. Should I write again or just cross her off my list? SIS.

I don't think you should cross her off your list, because she may have a good reason for failing to come through with an invitation. But neither do I think you should make another offer to visit her. Your paths have separated now and even though you were close friends 10 years ago, you have different interests and move in different circles now. So just by-pass her house this vacation but don't break up a friendship over it.

Dear Martha:

● I HAVE THREE FRIENDS who are always dropping in unexpectedly and it always upsets me because the house is never straight, the toys aren't picked up and I don't look like receiving company. Yet I hate to tell them not to come. What can I do? WORRIED.

Just stop worrying. What if everything isn't as it should be? People who drop in on others informally shouldn't expect everything to be in place and the hostess all ready to receive guests. The only thing I can suggest is to try to keep the house as straight as possible, your hair fairly well combed and a neat house dress on so that you won't be embarrassed by unexpected callers. Then sit down and enjoy their visit.

IN ANSWER TO Bill Jr.: For an informal wedding in the morning or afternoon, when the bride does not wear a wedding gown and veil, the groom wears a dark business suit.

IN ANSWER TO Sue: It is the bride's right to decide whether she should wear her mother's wedding gown or have a new one of her own. It is traditional in some families that the wedding dress should be handed down from one generation to another, but if it is not a flattering style, the bride certainly can state her preference for a more becoming one.

TWO-PIECE DRESS OF DARK COTTON BY BEN BARRACK HAS A LOWERED WAISTLINE AND PEPLUM ACCENT.

By Sylvia Stiles

WHAT to wear during late August and early September when the weather usually does not co-operate with a woman's interest in autumn fashions has been solved by the cotton fabric designers. Four-season cottons that preview fall in textures and colors withstand all types of weather.

Although dark cotton dresses have had unusual popularity throughout this summer, there are many patterns and weaves to give a new-season slant to any purchases that are made now. Cotton tweeds, suitings, jacquard effects, and knitted fabrics are featured in day dresses. Many look like lightweight woolens or have a silken finish. Wrinkle-resistant features also make these cottons excellent for travel wear, as well as for wear during hot days in town.

Blackened color schemes dominate the collections. Brown, blue, green and gray are blended with black in the creation of muted color schemes that look attractive for immediate use but will be equally as fashionable and appropriate for late fall and winter wear. Especially typical of the trend in fabrics for late 1955 are the brush prints and the dark monotone prints with black as an important medium. The glowing paisley prints are among the most striking designs. Some of the fabrics have a brocaded texture while many of the striped ones suggest tie silks with their deep, ribbed lines.

Ensembles that provide double or triple duty have a distinct appeal to start the autumn season. The tunic length coat ensembled with a sheath dress is a popular type. Jackets with the boxy silhouette also continue their style emphasis. The vogue of plaids is seen in one tunic ensemble. Another co-ordinates stripes with plain suiting and is available in the darkened brown or deep charcoal gray. The two-piece dress with long overblouse is another familiar style that will be of service indefinitely.

The revival of capes is seen in several costumes that are between-season features. Betty Carol has designed a cape of a cotton tweed in brown and black mixture. It is ensembled with a sheath dress that has low neckline but long, tight sleeves. Another cape costume consists of a hip-length cape of a cotton tweed with matching slim skirt. A vestee blouse is of a beige jersey.

The cotton knitted dresses that have been highlighted in white and pastel shades during the summer are appearing now in the dark, fall hues. The T-shirt type with cowl neckline and patch pockets is a typical model. Cross stripes in blending tones of green with beige, brown with orange, or charcoal gray with lighter gray and blue illustrate an important fashion for casual dresses.

Many of America's leading designers are featuring cotton dresses and ensembles which now are on sale in St. Louis. Claire McCardell chose water-repellant poplin for an unusual double cape to provide protection in bad weather. Other poplin coats, many lined with bright plaid, are available and practical for general use. Velveteen and corduroy also have been treated to be water repellent to serve as rain or shine apparel.

The jumper silhouette, formerly regarded as a "little girl" style now has become equally as popular for adult fashions and is seen repeatedly of the dark cottons that resemble woolen. The molded silhouette, slender of line, is effective for a new jumper designed by Joset Walker. Suspender strap join a low-cut bodice. The fabric is tweed-like in its appearance. Ensembled with a cotton shirt in dark paisley it is a pleasing costume for early fall.

The vogue of paisley cottons is impressively illustrated by late-day and evening costumes as well as daytime modes. A theater suit, for example, is made of a cotton velvet that is printed in an allover paisley pattern. The sleeveless dress which has a high neckline is ensembled with a cutaway jacket. Paisley embroideries give an Oriental aspect to other cottons. Gretty Plattry embroiders skirts and blouses in these oriental patterns. Bright red corduroy is used for a novel one-shouldered blouse which is allied with a skirt scattered with gold paisley and having a border design.

Handsome evening dresses of cotton velvet are appearing in brilliant shades of red or blue. One floor-length dress of red velveteen has its own floor length coat cut in the princess silhouette and lined with white taffeta. Black velveteen is a popular choice for entire dresses as well as for skirts to be worn with contrasting bodices. The circular skirt, braided all over in a scroll design, is one of the most elegant models on display. Youthful dance dresses with covered shoulders and heavy white lace at the shoulders are inexpensively priced, and flattering to the young figure.

Dessert for Hot Days of Late Summer

By Edith M. Barber

PROBABLY some of you can remember the day when ice cream was a Sunday or party treat. It was usually made at home and took the combined efforts of the family. It was considered fun to take a hand at least in giving the freezer a turn or two.

Father or the boys had to chop off a block of ice from the store in the big icebox unless a special piece had been ordered from the iceman, who placed it in a wooden tub after it had been wrapped in burlap. Then it had to be crushed with the aid of an ice pick and a big mallet. The bag of coarse salt had to be located. After the metal freezer can had been scalded by mother it was placed in the wooden container and packed with the ice and salt.

The mixture for the cream depended upon the fruits in season. Peach was our favorite, although once in a while we humored father and made his favorite, vanilla. Then the rest of us decked our portions with crushed fruit or a chocolate sauce.

We liked to call this delectable dessert a "sundae," the novelty that an enterprising confectioner had just begun to serve in the ice cream "parlor." Drug stores had not yet added soda-service.

Today we can get ice cream from any corner drug store or order it from the grocer. We often dress it up, sundae style with a sauce, or use ice cream or sherbet in combination with other desserts.

Some one asked recently the difference between sherbets and ices. The sherbet may be made with a milk base, or egg whites may be beaten into an ice after the mixture is frozen and before it is packed.

PINEAPPLE ICE WITH PEACHES: One package lemon-flavored gelatine, three peaches, peeled and sliced; two tablespoons lemon juice, one pint pineapple ice.

Prepare package of lemon-flavored gelatine according to directions on package. Chill until mixture begins to set. Sprinkle peaches with lemon juice and fold into gelatine mixture. Place in ring mold and chill until set. Unmold on large plate and fill center with pineapple ice.

GRAPE SHERBET with white grapes: Stem seedless grapes. Sprinkle with lemon and orange juice and chill. Arrange grape sherbet in individual glasses and top with chilled grapes. White wine may replace the fruit juices.

Knitted Fashions

Knitted fashions are increasing in number and interest. Highlighted for fall are knitted coats and suits as well as dresses and sports items. One of the new knitted coats has a fur collar. A striking suit in a tweed pattern has a longer jacket that is double-breasted and slightly fitted at the waistline. The one-piece dress of knitted wool or a blend of wool with synthetics appears in very tailored style as well as in designs for late day and evening wear.

Novel Fashion

A novel fashion in millinery consists of bright colored felt veiled with black chiffon. Red and green felt look more subdued in color when covered with the sheer fabric in the dark shade. Hats that are created in this manner usually are of the casual type to be worn with tweeds and other two-tone fabrics.

Lake Lorraine

Only 30 minutes away from St. Louis a beautiful new Lake Vacationland is rapidly coming into existence. Drive out today.

The LAKE VACATIONLAND St. Louisans have always wanted

Among the beautiful hills of Jefferson County there will soon be a lake of clear, sparkling water, with picturesque lodges, where busy men and their families will enjoy life as they have always hoped to do. . . . even as the nearby city swelters under Summer's simmering heat.

Here lake-cooled breezes will gently fan you to sleep at night—and by day, give zest to the finest fishing, swimming, sailing, canoeing and motor-boating this section has ever known.

The same men who developed Lake Montowese and Fond de Lac are building Lake Lorraine, near Goldman, Missouri, less than 30 miles south of Affton on Highway 21 (Tesson Ferry Road). One small lake is now stocked and ready for fishing.

Lodge sites vary in size from 50x150 feet to half-acre and acre tracts. Modern conveniences are available. Lodge site prices start at $750, and may be bought on convenient terms.

Lake Lorraine will NOT be open to the general public. It is being developed—and will be maintained —for Lodge Site owners and their guests.

Joanne Dru, Husband, In New Broadway Play

NEW YORK, Aug. 20—Broadway will get a new husband-wife team this fall when John Ireland and Joanne Dru come out of the Hollywood studios to star in "Deadfall," a melodrama by Leonard Lee which has intrigued various producers for some six years under an earlier title, "Sweet Poison." It was forever being optioned and then not produced because of alleged casting difficulties.

The Irelands are not exactly strangers to the New York stage, but they've been away a long time and neither had much stature when last around here. Their movie work made them important. Miss Dru was known as Joanne Marshall when she left Broadway for the movies after appearing 15 years ago with the late Al Jolson in "Hold on to Your Hats." Ireland's last local effort was in "Highland Fling," a dozen years ago.

Rehearsals are scheduled for Sept. 12, immediately after Ireland completes a film role opposite Joan Crawford in "Queen Bee."

London Stage

Orson Welles Overpowers In 'Moby Dick'

By Kenneth Tynan

LONDON, Aug. 20.

IT is three-and-a-half years since London saw Orson Welles on the stage. On that occasion he played "Othello," and did it with overwhelming nonchalance. His performance was a gigantic shrug. His production was a thunderbolt, but the star was a dampish squib. London was disappointed.

This summer he came back to the boards with an unmistakable bang. A few weeks after his fortieth birthday Welles unleashed on the West End the most controversial uppercut it had felt for a long time.

We might have guessed at this point in his career nothing less than the impossible would tempt him. He chose Herman Melville's "Moby Dick," a book whose setting is the open sea, whose hero is more of a mountain than a man and more of a symbol than either and whose villain is the majestic, unstageable whale.

He took as his raw material Melville's prose, which is as stormy as the sea it deals with; in every chapter a hundred wrecked metaphors cling on its surface to frail spars of sense. Nobody dips into Melville. You hold your nose and jump in, hoping not to be drowned.

Welles has been at work on this impossibility for nearly 10 years, on and off. Out of it, at length, he conjured a piece of pure theatrical megalomania. It was a sustained assault on the senses comparable in effect to a minor earthquake.

JUST HALF a century before "Moby Dick" opened, Sir Henry Irving made his farewell appearance on the London stage. I doubt whether anyone since then has left his mark so indelibly on every second of a West End production as Welles did on this one. It was as passionately uniquely his as "Citizen Kane." No man for half measures, he served his author in three capacities—he adapted the book, directed the adaptation and starred in it.

The revelation was the way in which he directed the piece. He took the great, square, gaping vault of the bare stage and stabbed it with light from every point of the compass. With the aid of a few packing-cases he made it pass for the wharf at Nantucket, the whalers' chapel, the deck of "The Pequod" and the ocean itself. This was the technique Thorton Wilder used to evoke "Our Town," except that what Welles was evoking was more like "Our Universe." At the end, when Ahab flings himself to his death at the maw of the whale, Welles strode out on to a rostrum projecting into the orchestra and almost impaled Gilbert Miller, the impresario, who was sitting a few feet below his harpoon.

Visually it was overpowering; and aurally too. Welles's films have established him already as a master of atmospheric sound. Here the crash and howl of the storm were alternated with a smart little mouth-organ theme and slow, slow, ominous chords played on a harmonium. Dialogue was over-lapped, lines were unexpectedly pounced on with rare subtlety. All this was done with a scratch cast, rehearsed in less than three weeks and containing no one remotely definable as a star, apart from Welles himself.

Welles played the actor-manager, Father Mapple and Captain Ahab. In appearance he was a super-leviathan. His voice sounded like bottled thunder.

The trouble was that everything he did was on such a tremendous scale that it soon became monotonous.

Though he played Ahab too portentously, there are few actors alive who could have played it at all. London was grateful to Welles for trying.

Joanne Dru, Husband, In New Broadway Play

NEW YORK, Aug. 20—Broadway will get a new husband-wife team this fall when John Ireland and Joanne Dru come out of the Hollywood studios to star in "Deadfall," a melodrama by Leonard Lee which has intrigued various producers for some six years under an earlier title, "Sweet Poison." It was forever being optioned and then not produced because of alleged casting difficulties.

The Irelands are not exactly strangers to the New York stage, but they've been away a long time and neither had much stature when last around here. Their movie work made them important. Miss Dru was known as Joanne Marshall when she left Broadway for the movies after appearing 15 years ago with the late Al Jolson in "Hold on to Your Hats." Ireland's last local effort was in "Highland Fling," a dozen years ago.

Rehearsals are scheduled for Sept. 12, immediately after Ireland completes a film role opposite Joan Crawford in "Queen Bee."

London Stage

Orson Welles Overpowers In 'Moby Dick'

By Kenneth Tynan

LONDON, Aug. 20.

IT is three-and-a-half years since London saw Orson Welles on the stage. On that occasion he played "Othello," and did it with overwhelming nonchalance. His performance was a gigantic shrug. His production was a thunderbolt, but the star was a dampish squib. London was disappointed.

This summer he came back to the boards with an unmistakable bang. A few weeks after his fortieth birthday Welles unleashed on the West End the most controversial uppercut it had felt for a long time.

We might have guessed at this point in his career nothing less than the impossible would tempt him. He chose Herman Melville's "Moby Dick," a book whose setting is the open sea, whose hero is more of a mountain than a man and more of a symbol than either and whose villain is the majestic, unstageable whale.

He took as his raw material Melville's prose, which is as stormy as the sea it deals with; in every chapter a hundred wrecked metaphors cling on its surface to frail spars of sense. Nobody dips into Melville. You hold your nose and jump in, hoping not to be drowned.

Welles has been at work on this impossibility for nearly 10 years, on and off. Out of it, at length, he conjured a piece of pure theatrical megalomania. It was a sustained assault on the senses comparable in effect to a minor earthquake.

JUST HALF a century before "Moby Dick" opened, Sir Henry Irving made his farewell appearance on the London stage. I doubt whether anyone since then has left his mark so indelibly on every second of a West End production as Welles did on this one. It was as passionately uniquely his as "Citizen Kane." No man for half measures, he served his author in three capacities—he adapted the book, directed the adaptation and starred in it.

The revelation was the way in which he directed the piece. He took the great, square, gaping vault of the bare stage and stabbed it with light from every point of the compass. With the aid of a few packing-cases he made it pass for the wharf at Nantucket, the whalers' chapel, the deck of "The Pequod" and the ocean itself. This was the technique Thorton Wilder used to evoke "Our Town," except that what Welles was evoking was more like "Our Universe." At the end, when Ahab flings himself to his death at the maw of the whale, Welles strode out on to a rostrum projecting into the orchestra and almost impaled Gilbert Miller, the impresario, who was sitting a few feet below his harpoon.

THE HURRICANE in the first act was an uproar of imaginative stagecraft. Ropes and beams swung madly before one's vision, while the crew tumbled and huddled beneath. Visually it was overpowering; and aurally too. Welles's films have established him already as a master of atmospheric sound. Here the crash and howl of the storm were alternated with a smart little mouth-organ theme and slow, slow, ominous chords played on a harmonium. Dialogue was over-lapped, lines were unexpectedly pounced on with rare subtlety. All this was done with a scratch cast, rehearsed in less than three weeks and containing no one remotely definable as a star, apart from Welles himself.

Welles played the actor-manager, Father Mapple and Captain Ahab. In appearance he was a super-leviathan. His voice sounded like bottled thunder.

The trouble was that everything he did was on such a tremendous scale that it soon became monotonous.

Though he played Ahab too portentously, there are few actors alive who could have played it at all. London was grateful to Welles for trying.

When Missourians Meet in New York

By Mary Margaret McBride

LUCILLE and I grew up on adjoining Missouri farms. The other day in New York we met again after more than 30 years and immediately began batting memories about like table tennis balls.

"Never in all my life was I so scared as I was the day you busted your head wide open falling off the bag-swing that we had under that big oak of ours," I reminisced.

Lucille pointed to the little scar still livid on her forehead and we wondered if country children today have for a favorite plaything a bag filled with sand fastened to a rope hung from a tree with the swinger straddling the bag and somebody pushing—as I was doing when Lucille fell that day.

"I'd do it all over again," Lucille declared recklessly.

"I'LL TAKE the barrel stave hammock covered with the old quilt," I countered. Then we talked about lying in the hammock with me reading "Alice in Wonderland" out loud when Lucille wanted me to read "The Little Colonel's Knight Comes Riding."

"You were spoiled but your mother was always wonderful," Lucille said. "I wish we could taste again her ginger cookies and her light rolls, the best I ever ate. But do you remember how she cried one eevning when she found us jumping up and down on the feather beds just after she'd made them? Everything had gone wrong and the messed up beds were just too much.

"Oh, and do you remember how she cried one evening when of your union suit that you'd rolled up above your knees came down and showed below your dress at Nell's party?"

I turned red at the thought. "Of course I remember," I groaned. "That was when I was so crazy about red-headed Theodore Whathisname and he laughed at me."

THEN I THOUGHT of an even worse moment—the time when I was going back to boarding school after spring holidays and had waited so late to start dressing that I had to try to finish in the surrey. The train was standing on the track when we stopped in front of the depot. A great crowd was there—all looking right at me. I jumped from the surrey and started to run towards the train. With the very first step I took, the fastening of my skirt—which in my haste I'd neglected to make secure—gave way. And right there before everybody I stood revealed in purple bloomers.

A sound of mingled amusement and sympathy went up. An agitated aunt started towards me but with great dignity I stepped behind a baggage wagon, fastened my skirt, got on the train.

"My face was red all the way to Fulton," I recalled bitterly.

"I'll bet it was," Lucille agreed. "You always did take things too hard. Remember how your father used to tell you when you got stirred up to use your gumption? Gumption was his favorite word. When anybody behaved foolishly, your father would say, 'Where's your gumption?'

"I always used to wonder what gumption was and longed to ask Uncle Walk if I had it."

"Let's see if it's in the dictionary," I suggested, and, sure enough, there it is, labeled colloquial, but a fine word meaning understanding and capacity. I think even at this late date I'll add my father's favorite word to my working vocabulary.

MISCELLANEOUS

IF you are going to give exterior woodwork a stain rather than paint, don't use steel wool for smoothing. The steel wool will leave small bits of iron in the wood and when these become wet, you'll get rust stains even though the wood has been treated with a stain. Stick to sandpaper on this job and you won't have any troubles.

Fibrous sheets of wallboard should never be installed with the edges butted tight together. Unless there is a small gap between sheets, the sheets will buckle out in damp weather when they absorb moisture and expand.

You can make your own rosin coated nails (they have greater holding power than ordinary nails) by dissolving some rosin in turpentine and then dipping the nails into this solution. An old kitchen strainer is great for this job.

A good way to get those little bits of skin out of a container of paint is to strain the paint through an old nylon silk stocking. And if you pour some turpentine over the top of paint before the container is sealed up for storage, this skin won't form.

When you have to remove paint from a vertical surface, use a paste type of paint remover rather than a liquid one—it won't run down and make a mess.

MRS. RONALD ROGER REGNIER

Phyllis Rae Bailey Becomes Bride of Ronald R. Regnier

THE wedding of Miss Phyllis Rae Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Raines Bailey, 7750 Kingsbury boulevard, Clayton, and Ronald Roger Regnier took place at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Chapel of Second Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Chester C. Carnahan officiating. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Arnim C. Beste, 4104 Utah street, and John Regnier.

Woodwardia fern, two arrangements of white flowers and candelabra provided decorations at the altar of the chapel, the center aisle of which was marked by lighted hurricane lamps and greenery. The bride's sister, Mrs. Thomas C. Bunting of Quincy, Ill., was soloist.

Mr. Bailey gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a ballerina gown of white Italian silk made with a deep V neckline, fitted basque bodice and a bouffant skirt over crinoline. Her veil hung to her shoulders from a pearl-trimmed cap. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, gift of the bridegroom. Instead of a bouquet she carried a white fan, decorated with a white orchid and stephanotis backed by malines, tied with satin streamers.

Mrs. Stanley D. Tasker was matron of honor for her sister, whose bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy Joan Watson and Miss Abby Menne, both of Quincy, Ill. Their dresses were identical to that of the bride except that they were in Miami blue. Their fans were overlaid with white roses and split carnations, tied with blue ribbons, and their accessories were matching blue. Best man was Donald C. Koehler, cousin of the bridegroom; ushers were Harvey E. Koehler, another cousin; Dr. Thomas C. Bunting, Quincy, and Mr. Tasker, the bride's brother-in-law, and Arnim C. Beste. Diane Cheryl Koehler, the Donald Koehlers' daughter, was flower girl, wearing a bouffant white organdy frock with blue shoes and hairband, and carrying a flower-trimmed fan tied in blue.

Mr. Regnier and his bride will spend their honeymoon at the Lake of the Ozarks. They will live at 1323 Wilson avenue, Columbia, Mo., where both will attend the University of Missouri, she in the College of Arts and Science as a music major; he is the School of Business and Public Administration. Numerous out-of-town guests attended the wedding.

Suzanne Barney Is Married to Lt. R. M. Sydow

THE marriage of Miss Vera Suzanne Barney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy K. Barney, 617 Bompart avenue, Webster Groves, and Lt. Robert M. Sydow, U.S.M.C., took place Aug. 13 at the Church of the Holy Redeemer, Webster Groves. The Rev. Robert Kaletta officiated at the morning service, which was followed by a reception at the Barney home.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a short dress of nylon tulle over taffeta. Her lace-trimmed frock was complemented by a beaded crown and tulle veil. She carried white carnations.

Miss Judith Claire Barney served as her sister's maid of honor, while Miss Gretchen Conrad was bridesmaid and Miss Ruth Ellen Barney, another sister, junior bridesmaid. The first two attendants wore identical ice-blue crystalette frocks with matching net and velvet headbands. They carried bouquets of yellow carnations to match the junior bridesmaid's dress. Her flowers were blue carnations.

Lt. Sydow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Sydow, 725 Greeley avenue, Webster Groves, had his brother, Dan Sydow, as best man. Carl Sydow Jr. and David Sydow were ushers for their brother as was Tom Ross, the bride's cousin.

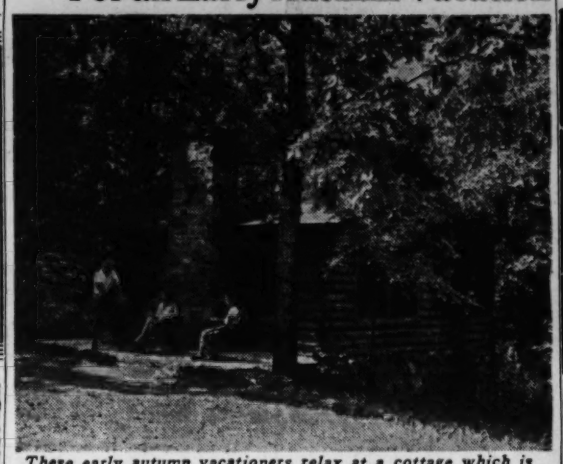
Lake of Ozarks Ideal Area For an Early Autumn Vacation



These early autumn vacationers relax at a cottage which is typical of those in the Lake of the Ozarks region, where Indian summer is one of the finest seasons of the year. Excellent motel and hotel accomodations also are available at reasonable rates.

Although the Labor day weekend which is fast approaching will herald the closing of many resort areas, St. Louisans will still have a delightful vacation region within a few hours' drive of home. The Lake of the Ozarks will just be entering one of its finest times of the year—the autumn and Indian summer season that extends through November with a temperature range of 70 to 80 degrees during the days and 45 to 50 degrees at night.

All of the more than 300 individually owned and operated resorts remain open through November, and some of them throughout the entire year. Accommodations are more readily available during the autumn months, after the rush of summer is over. While 95 per cent of the resorts are of the completely modern housekeeping type located on the shores of the lake, motel and hotel accommodations also are available. Rates are sensible, and the many types of lodging offered assure the vacationer of finding a spot to meet his particular requirements.

The same sports that were enjoyed in summer are available in autumn. One may swim into October, enjoy boating of all types, speedboat and cruiser rides, excursions, trips through caves, golf, tennis and all of the other active sports.

Fishing is always excellent during this season. Limit catches of large-mouth and white bass, jack salmon, crappie and catfish are the usual rather than the unusual daily report.

A special attraction for the late vacationer is the color display when the foliage of the trees on the heavily wooded shoreline of the lake turns, usually in October. The red, yellow, brown, purple and orange of the leaves against the background of green cedars, with the clear blue waters of the lake in the foreground, creates a picture worth journeying many miles to see.

The Lake of the Ozarks is only 165 miles from St. Louis and is reached over excellent highways. U.S. Highway 54 and Missouri Highways 5 and 52 serve the immediate lake area.

The Lake of the Ozarks Assoc., Inc., Box 2, Lake Ozark, Mo., has prepared a 48-page map and resort guide which will be mailed without charge upon request.

HAYFEVER RELIEF FOUND IN MANY MICHIGAN RESORTS

In mid-August, when ragweed pollen concentration reaches the point where irritating sniffle and sneeze symptoms appear, hay-fever victims will find a haven in the northern third of Michigan's lower peninsula and most of the upper peninsula.

According to a pollen count survey conducted by the Michigan Department of Health over a ten-year period, this part of Michigan is sufficiently free from ragweed to provide welcome relief for the average hay-fever sufferer.

Specifically, there are seven hay-fever havens in Michigan with pollen seasons that average three days or less. These areas center around Charlevoix, Petoskey and Boyne City in the lower peninsula; St. Ignace, Sault Ste. Marie and Houghton in the upper peninsula; and Isle Royale, the nation's only island national park, out in Lake Superior off the Keewenaw Peninsula.

Short seasons, of from four to five days, are also recorded for Alpena, Cheboygan, Gladwin, Mackinac Island, Marquette, Munising, Newberry, Ontonagon and Rogers City.

Fortunately for hay-fever sufferers, these pollen-free sections of Michigan are situated in the very heart of the state's highly developed northern vacation and resort areas. Swimming, fishing, boating and other recreational attractions are right at hand so that the visitors who come to escape discomfort may also enjoy the pleasures of a Michigan vacation.

Water spectacles

The water provides unusual diversions along Florida's Gulf Coast. You not only swim, sail and fish, but view exciting spectacles: pelicans, sandpipers and cormorants; porpoises leaping near shore; colorful sea shells such as Lion's Paw and Channeled Whelk; sailing regattas and water skiing exhibitions. A small cottage for two can be rented for as little as $35 a week—motel and hotel prices are also far below the winter-time rates. Plan to see the sights in St. Petersburg, Tampa, Sarasota and other sea-cooled Gulf Coast Cities.

Go south to cool off

You'll be pleasantly astonished at the spanking breezes that sweep in off Florida waters and keep you refreshed. U.S. Weather Bureau official records show that the Trade Winds Coast (around Miami) averages only 6 days a year when the temperature goes to 90 degrees or above. So leave muggy, oppressive days and nights behind you — come enjoy yourself in beautiful resort cities such as the Palm Beaches, Fort Lauderdale, Hollywood and Miami.

Gently sloping beaches

From Fernandina Beach in northeast Florida (route A1A), past Jacksonville's beaches on down through St. Augustine to Daytona Beach, you drive at the edge of gently sloping beaches beside the blue Atlantic. Here you spend lazy days at the water's edge, build castles in the sand and take invigorating dips in the dancing surf. Fishing, golf, tennis and scores of other healthful activities vie for your time—and you have the time of your life.

See the Miracle Strip

In northwest Florida, skirting the Gulf of Mexico, you'll find a 100-mile stretch of the whitest beaches in the world. Surf bathing, boating and fishing are superb. Feast on jumbo Gulf shrimp and many more sea-fresh delicacies. See picturesque Pensacola, Fort Walton, Panama City. In October, get your share of the thrills at the 7th annual Destin-Gulf Coast Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo!

30,000 lakes

In the lush hill country of central Florida, near Orlando and Lakeland, you'll want to bait up for the giant bass that inhabit the thousands of lakes in this area. North Florida, too, in the Gainesville vicinity, abounds in lakes. Don't brag about your catch unless it exceeds ten pounds! Here, too, is Stephen Foster's inspiration, the majestic Suwannee River. Farther west lies Tallahassee with its ante-bellum mansions, mossy oaks, and lovely gardens.

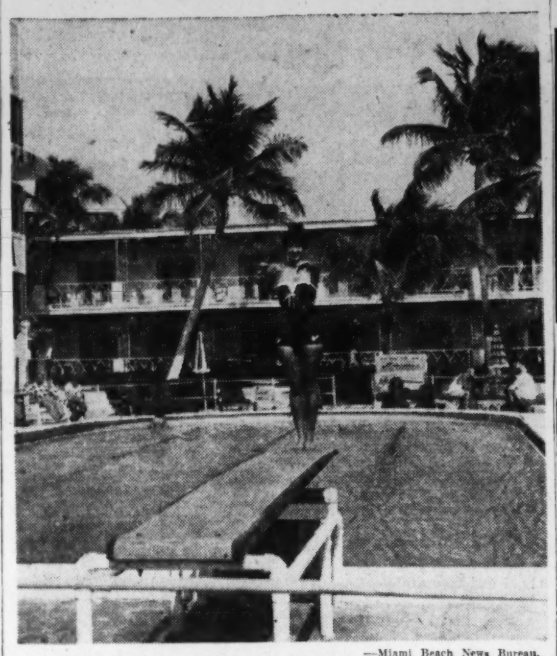
Summer Fun at Miami Beach



—Miami Beach News Bureau.

Luxurious accommodations that include pool and cabana area await the summer vacationer at many Miami Beach hotels. Rates now are at low levels while a mild climate invites full enjoyment of outdoor recreation.

HISTORY, PROGRESS IN CIUDAD TRUJILLO

CIUDAD TRUJILLO — More and more tourists are finding fun in following the footsteps of the well-known Columbus family of Spain. They're a little behind Chris and his kin—about 460 years behind—but the advantage is that they find changes, which are all for the better.

Once visitors to the Dominican Republic, which is drenched in the lore of the great explorer, confined themselves mostly to Ciudad Trujillo, the capital and oldest city in the New World.

They were content to view ancient, still standing buildings and streets that once echoed the booted tread of Columbus, his brother and his son, and to Cortez, Balboa, Pizarro, Ponce de Leon, De Soto and other such early travelers. They gaped at the contrast between the narrow colonial streets girding the Ozama river harborfront and the broad, tree - lined boulevards lined with ultra-modern buildings in twentieth century Ciudad Trujillo.

Nowadays, visitors are being lured in increasing numbers to tempting island spots, according to Pan American World Airways, where comfortable, modern resort centers have sprung up amid the tree-clad mountains and fertile plains of sugar cane.

Likewise getting a big play are Dominican beaches, which welcomed their first tourists back in 1492 when Columbus's sailors spilled ashore. The beaches, too, have been improved considerably since then.

However, Ciudad Trujillo remains a fascinating study of ancient and modern history. Still standing on its waterfront, for example, are the well-preserved ruins of the palace-fortress of Bartolomeo Columbus, brother of Christopher, who founded the city in 1496 on the orders of his illustrious brother. Christopher's son, Diego, once ruled the rich Spanish New World colony from the palace-fortress, and seven of his children were born there.

And, scarcely an arquebus shot away, on a 125-acre site on the outskirts of the city are rising the five ultra-modern pavilions which will house the republic's United for Peace and Progress Fair slated to run from next Dec. 20 to Feb. 27. Some 30 nations, including all those in Latin America, are expected to participate in the fair.

MISS JO ANN MILLER

Sarah Otto Married To H. S. Connelly Jr. In Gildehaus, Mo.

MISS SARAH KATHRYN OTTO, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Herbert Otto of Washington, Mo., was married last night to Harry Sinclair Connelly Jr., at St. John's Church in Gildehaus, Mo. The ceremony was performed by Msgr. George J. Hildner, pastor.

Miss Peggy Jean Otto was her sister's maid of honor, with Miss Jacqueline Schryver of Springfield, Ill., as bridesmaid. Miss Schryver is a former classmate of the bride's at Stephens College. The young women attendants were dressed in Nile green crystallette, and each carried a single rose made of lemon leaves. Similarly dressed was Jean Daugherty who served as flower girl for her cousin.

The bridegroom had his brother, Michael C. Connelly of Columbia, Mo., as best man. They are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sinclair Connelly of Wichita, Kan. Neal Pedrolie was an usher.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto gave a reception at their home after the ceremony. The newly-married pair will spend their honeymoon in Bermuda, and on their return will live in Columbia where both the bride and bridegroom are students at the University of Missouri. Mrs. Connelly is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority; her husband, of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

MISS MILDRED GRAHAM, 145 North Bemiston avenue, Clayton, was married to Roy L. Blackwell, 4140 Wyoming street, Saturday afternoon, Aug. 13, at Normandy Methodist Church. The Rev. Delvis B. Roberts officiated at the double ring ceremony. Guests remained for a reception at the church.

The bride, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Graham of St. Louis, was given in marriage by her brother, Joseph J. Graham. The bridegroom's cousin, Mrs. John A. Othman, was matron of honor and her daughter, Jewell Othman, was flower girl. Mr. Blackwell, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blackwell of Piedmont, Mo., had Mr. Othman as best man. Ushers were Joseph G. Mahalak and Howard N. Coggburn.

Church decorations were pink gladiolas and lighted white candles arranged with greenery at the altar. The bride wore a pale pink crystallette gown, terrace length, and a short pink veil secured to a cap trimmed with lilies of the valley. Her bouquet was white roses. Mrs. Othman was in ice green crystallette and had a colonial bouquet of pink carnations. Her daughter wore a frock of the same material and held a pink carnation nosegay.

Mr. and Mrs. Blackwell went to Nassau on their wedding trip. They will live at Hathaway Meadows, Normandy.

Double Wedding Takes Place at Church Service

MISS MARY ANN SCHNEIDER and Miss Peggy Ann Schenigman, who have been friends since kindergarten days, were married last evening in a double wedding at Normandy Methodist Church.

Miss Schneider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Joseph Schneider, 1521 Engleholm drive, Pagedale, became the bride of Charles Harry Starksen, Sioux Falls, S. D., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry O. Starksen, Hetland, S. D. Miss Schenigman, daughter of Mrs. Frank Mette, Wentzville, Mo., was married to Larry Clifford Lahs, son of Dr. and Mrs. P. C. Lahs, Mexico, Mo.

Pink and white roses and candles in tall candelabra caught with fern and pink satin ribbon decorated the church. The ceremonies were performed by the Rev. F. S. Eitelgeorge. The double reception was held at Santa Cruz Hall, 6401 Stratford avenue, Pine Lawn.

The ushers, three for each bridegroom, and three attendants for each bride led the procession. The brides served as honor attendants for each other.

Bridesmaids for the former Miss Schenigman the first to be married, were Mrs. Don Phillips, Mexico, Mo., the bridegroom's sister; Mrs. Harry Lee and Mrs. Gordon Sullivan. For the former Miss Schneider the bridesmaids were Miss Quanagene Dorough, Fort Worth, Tex.; Mrs. Joseph McCommon, Memphis, and Miss Judy Hilder, Houston, Tex., a cousin. They were dressed alike in light blue silk organdy and carried pink roses in three different shades and arranged in satin-bound rings. Some of the blossoms were worn in their hair.

Attendants for Mr. Lahs were Don Phillips, best man, and Paul Sitton, Mexico; Harry Lee, St. Louis, and Kenneth Mette, Moscow, Mo., ushers. For Mr. Starksen they were Courtney Larson Jr., best man, and Raymond Stanhope, Luverne Engler, Aberdeen, S. D., and Harry Herzogenrath, ushers.

Mr. Starksen, a graduate of the University of South Dakota and a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, will take his bride to the Black Hills for their honeymoon. They will live in Sioux Falls. Mr. Lahs and his bride will live in Los Angeles where he is a student at Woodbury College.

Miss Glaze Married To W. A. Harrington

MISS JOHNA MARY GLAZE and William Albany Harrington of Chicago were married at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in Pilgrim Congregational Church by the Rev. Dr. Allen Hackett. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Clary Glaze, 3841 Melba place; her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Harrington, who came from Chicago for the occasion.

MRS. WILLIAM A. HARRINGTON

A bouffant princess dress of white crystallette over taffeta was worn by the bride. Seed pearls decorated the neckline and the coronet which held in place her short, double-tiered tulle veil. She carried a cascade of carnations and stephanotis.

The bride's attendants were her sister, Miss Helen Glaze, and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Elizabeth Harrington. They wore identical blue crystallette frocks with silver accessories and carried shower bouquets of pink carnations.

Robert Walter and William Hogarth, both of Chicago, were best man and groomsman, respectively. The guests were seated by Pierre Bret, Kansas City, Mo., and George Cobaugh, Thomas Daniel and Eugene Zimmerman, St. Louis.

The reception was held in the church parlor immediately after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Harrington have departed for the north woods on their honeymoon.

for the others, whose roses were American beauty red. Ballerina length, the frocks were made with full skirts and strapless bodices finished with short fitted jackets.

Mr. Wagner escorted his daughter to the altar and gave her in marriage. Her gown was chantilly lace and tulle over satin, with semi-off-shoulder lace bodice, short sleeves and a full tulle skirt overlaid with lace. Her veil fell to her fingertips from a lace half-hat. She carried orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. Wagner chose a Dior blue peau de soie gown with a matching lace panel down the front, and a small blue hat. Her flowers were purple-throated white orchids worn at her shoulder. Mrs. Latzer was in gray lace over ice blue satin, and a small hat.

The bride's brother, Melchior A. Wagner Jr., was best man for Mr. Webb, whose ushers were Mr. Kinnaman, Mr. Hawkins, Jerome F. Kircher Jr., Charles G. Schott Jr., Louis C. Spatholt and Robert J. Wibbing.

The reception was held at the Wagner home, 9 Ladue lane, Ladue. The receiving line formed in the rose garden, where hundreds of bushes are in bloom, and tables were set up on the lawn which was lighted by concealed lamps in the trees. Pink and white flowers surrounded hurricane lanterns as table decorations except the bride's table which was done in white. Strolling musicians played.

Mr. Webb and his bride will spend their honeymoon on the east coast and will return here to live at 909 Westwood drive, Clayton. He is a graduate of Brown University and a member of Alpha Delta Phi fraternity and the Bachelor Club. He served in the Navy in both World War II and the Korean campaign and was discharged with the rank of lieutenant. His bride is a graduate of John Burroughs School and Washington University and a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

It was to our ears

All day Friday... and yesterday, too, we kept hearing the nice things you said about Northland... and the song had more verses than Davy Crockett.

Over and over, we heard the refrain: "It's so big... and so beautiful!" Again and again, "What a place to shop... and so handy to home." "Typically big Famous selections... and what values!" And the chorus swelled, long and loud, "It's got everything!"

You came, you saw, and your enthusiasm rang to the rafters. If you found our aisles crowded, our service lacking, it was only because you overwhelmed us by sheer numbers. Remember, service is our theme-song, and as Northland shifts into the routine of serving you day-by-day, you'll find us everything that means customer convenience and satisfaction.

And to all our friends... both new and old... we say again, "You're Wonderful!" It was just like you to make Northland's opening a grand opening.

Thanks! and come often to Northland

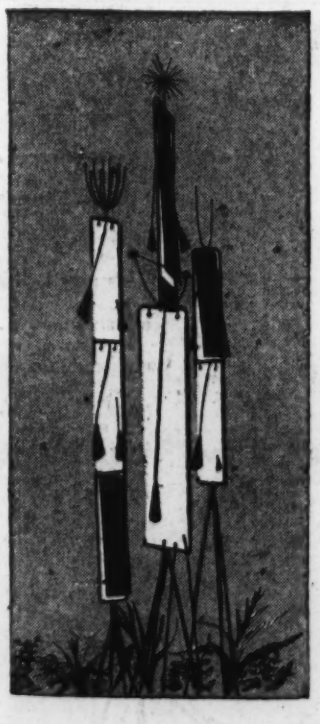
WESTROADS IS OPEN

One of America's most fabulous stores has opened its doors to St. Louis! Over half a million suburbanites have watched the exciting transformation; from shapeless acres of stone and steel, to the showplace of the county. Westroads is the store beautiful, the store complete . . . and it's surrounded by a huge parking area for 1800 cars. We're striving now to achieve the perfection of service you'd expect in these beautiful surroundings, and so all last week we "played store" to practice . . . actually operated the entire store just as if it were open, complete with salespeople and make-believe customers. We're not perfect yet . . . please bear with us and remember that the store is new, the routines are new and many of the salespeople are, too. But it won't be long before you'll find the swift, expert service that is traditional at SBF. Come see us at Clayton Road and Brentwood Blvd.; we're at the Crossroads of the County!



Telephone number: PA. 5-7600

Forest Park bus of the Public Service Company stops right on SBF's lot; Clayton-Conway bus, on Clayton Road. Webster-Shrewsbury and Clayton-Kirkwood buses of St. Louis County Transit stop on Brentwood Boulevard.

Parking lot has entrances on both streets, about 600 feet from Clayton-Brentwood intersection.

Westroads opens at 9:30 a.m. daily. Shop Monday, Thursday, Friday nights till 9:30, other days till 5:30.

AMERICAN TALENT FOR GREEK MUSIC, DRAMA FESTIVAL

ATHENS, Aug. 20 (INS)—Top flight American talent is being lined up by the organizers of the first Athens Music and Drama Festival, to be held Aug. 25 to Oct. 2.

Heading the list is Greek-born Dimitri Mitropoulos and his New York Philharomnic, with concerts scheduled for Oct. 1 and 2.

The theme of the Festival will be ancient Greece and the setting will be an amphitheater at the foot of the Acropolis dating back to 161 A.D.

Festival-goers will be regaled by the ancient Greek drama off Sophocles and Euripides played by the Greek National Theater and featuring Katina Paxinou (of Pilar fame in "For Whom the Bell Tolls") and her husband, Alexis Minotis.

The Festival will include performances of Gluck's "Orfeo" with Rise Stevens in the title role; Mozart's "Idomeneo" in costumes inspired by Minoan frescoes at Knossos, Crete, and starring Eleanor Steber and finally Krenek's "Medea" monologues, written especially for Blanche Thebom, which she will sing, together with Stravinsky's "Oedipus Rex."

To lighten this heavy fare, the Lyceum Club of Greek Women will go through the graceful and intricate folk dances of Greece in national costume and to the tune of shepherd's pipes.

Other symphony concerts will be given by the Athens Symphony Orchestra with distinguished guest conductors.

SEA SCOUTS OPEN REGATTA TODAY

St. Louis Ships Entered in Competition at Lake of the Ozarks.

Sea Explorer Scouts and leaders of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council set up camps early today at Camp Pa-He-Tsi, near Osage Beach, Mo., in preparation for the start of the annual week-long Lake-of-the-Ozarks Regatta.

Approximately 140 scouts and leaders will compete in regatta competition, including sailing, canoeing and swimming. The program is scheduled to begin today. The camp is a state-owned scout camp on the Grand Gleize arm of the lake.

The regatta is sponsored by the council for Sea Explorer units in Missouri scout councils. Four St. Louis units will participate. They are Ship 27, sponsored by Peters Memorial Presbyterian Church; Ship 126, Fathers' Club of Scouting Organizations at Kennard School; Ship 500, St. Raphael the Archangel Catholic Church, and Ship 521, Nazareth Evangelical and Reformed Church.

Units from St. Louis county are Ship 200, sponsored by the Affton School Patrons Association; Ship 348, Thoman-Boothe Post 335, American Legion; Ship 352, Keysor School Parent-Teacher Association; Ship 474, Lindbergh High School Parent-Teacher Association; Ship 501, Webster Groves Lions Club, and Ship 517, Kirkwood Lions Club.

Ship 4, of Columbia, Mo.; Ship 13, of Jefferson City, and Ship 102, of Hannibal, Mo., also will participate.

A group of 480 Scouts of Suburban District were to leave Irondale Scout Reservation today following church services closing this year's 9-week long-term camping season.

The reservation, which opened June 19, is a 150-acre site near Irondale, Mo. It is the oldest camping property owned by the council, which acquired the land in 1918.

Eagle rank, Scouting's highest advancement honor, will be awarded Explorer Scout Walter Werner in a ceremony to be held by Troop 66 today in Lemay.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Opportunities for Senior Girl Scouts to visit Girl Scout organizations and facilities in Europe next year will be discussed at a meeting at 2 p.m. Sept. 24, at Stix, Baer & Fuller's downtown department store, it was announced yesterday.

Mrs. John Pahlmann, chairman of the St. Louis Girl Scout Council's world friendship committee, will conduct tryouts at the meeting prior to selecting girls for participation in the visits.

Two opportunities will be available next year, Mrs. Pahlmann said. They are visits to a Girl Scout chalet at Adelboden, Switzerland, and participation in an exchange program involving outdoor camping and visiting homes of Girl Scouts in Europe.

An exchange program for camp counselors also will be available next year beginning June 15 and continuing through Sept. 1. Counselors also may attend an international intercultural event at the Edith Macy Training School, Pleasantville, N.Y., Mrs. Pahlmann said.

Scouts who plan to attend Senior Scout weekend beginning Sept. 9 and have returned the first flyer forms and registration fee to the council office will receive the second and final form this week, a Girl Scout official said. Scouts were asked to return the second forms by Sept. 1.

Members of Troop 827, of Ferguson, were spending this weekend camping at Ploudre's farm, Williamsburg, Mo.

The world friendship committee will meet at 10 a.m. Tuesday in committee room B at the Girl Scout offices.

Forty-two adult members of the council will attend the thirty-third annual National Girl Scout Convention in San Francisco for four days beginning Nov. 1. The convention will be open to any active, registered adult Scout leader.

Performances will be each evening at 8:30 o'clock. Matinees will be at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

82-YEAR-OLD BUILDING, ONCE FACTORY, BEING RAZED

An 82-year-old former match factory on the southwest corner of South Twelfth street and Park avenue is being demolished on the site of the Joseph M. Darst Apartments public housing project, it was reported yesterday.

Dr. William G. Swekosky, St. Louis dentist, whose hobby is the study of old buildings, said the two-story brick structure was erected in 1873 by Fielding Mansfield. It passed through several hands and was used for various purposes until its sale recently to the St. Louis Housing Authority, Dr. Swekosky said.

He also reported the razing of the Thomas E. Price mansion at 26 North Kingshighway, on the site of a projected 16-story apartment building. Price, a grain commission merchant, built the 14-room house in 1906. Its front and sides were of cut stone, trimmed with carved stone wreaths, Dr. Swekosky said.

JAN HEDJI TURNS TO PRINCE VALIANT AND INSISTS: "PAY DOUBLE THE FEE AND PAY NOW, ELSE I WILL CALL AWAY MY MEN AND OXEN AND LEAVE YOU STRANDED!" VAL ONLY GRINS AND LACES ON HIS HELMET.

HEDJI SHOUTS, AND FROM THE FOREST STEP THE MEN HE HAD CONCEALED THERE, BOWS READY.

"YOU WERE NOT SATISFIED WITH OUR FAIRNESS," SAYS VAL PLEASANTLY, FOR HE HAD HEARD THE SOUND OF ARMED MEN ON THE TRAIL. "SO NOW YOU WILL KNOW OUR JUSTICE. BE VERY, VERY CAREFUL LEST YOU FEEL OUR WRATH TOO!"

HE ORDERS THAT THE SHIP WITH THE WOMEN AND CHILDREN BE ANCHORED SAFELY IN MIDSTREAM, UNDER AMPLE GUARD.

FINAL TOUCHES are added to a model of Independence Hall by Arthur Kay, helped by sons and the author.

Models of Patriotism

Early America lives again in wooden miniatures carved by this Massachusetts family

by MARY B. KAY

WEST FALMOUTH, MASS.

The world moves so fast and excitingly today, it's small wonder that many famous historical events from our nation's past hold less fascination for young people now than they once did — and still should.

Five years ago, when our sons, David, then 9, and Kevin, 7, first started studying American history, my husband Arthur cast about for some way of bringing home to them graphically the drama of great moments in our country's early days.

Although he had never tried his hand at any form of wood carving, he finally settled on that as the best way of accomplishing what he had in mind. Thus began our family collaboration on the building of small, wooden scale models commemorating incidents from America's past.

The first model we completed was a midget replica of the log cabin in which Abraham Lincoln was born, with young Abe industriously splitting fence rails outside it. Before starting work on the project, we made sure our dimensions and other details were accurate by researching numerous library books on the subject.

Historic Sites Visited

Next we spent hours studying Boston's Old North Church at close range, then took an automobile trip to Concord and Lexington, Mass., to get firsthand material for a composite model depicting Paul Revere's ride. We traveled to Plymouth to visit the original Pilgrim House, and to Sudbury to inspect its ancient schoolhouse, before building models of them.

One of our most elaborate miniatures shows the first reading of the Declaration of Independence in front of Boston's original State House. It includes 20 human figures, ⅛" high, attired in carefully painted costumes of the period.

In creating our models, the four of us pool our ideas and make suggestions, although most of the actual carving and much of the technical work is done by my husband. In the Paul Revere model, we were stumped for a while trying to think of a way to make a tail and mane for the famed alarmist's horse. Finally Kevin came up with the idea of shellacking strands of white thread, then painting them brown. David's outstanding suggestion to date has been the use of colored facial tissues — which are easily molded when they are damp — for tree foliage.

Basically our models are made of carved bits of cigar-box wood, clothespins, toothpicks and other common household materials, carefully fitted and glued together with plastic cement. We paint on details like faces, clothing and decoration with a fine camel's-hair brush dipped in tempera colors.

Through the years, our collection of miniatures has become somewhat famous locally. It has often been exhibited in schools and libraries, and Arthur and I appeared with it as "hobbyists of the week" on a Boston TV program.

Ours may seem like an odd family hobby, but it has taught us a lot about early American history we might otherwise never have known. Working on our models together, we have furthermore become truly a family unit, proud and grateful that we possess the heritage of our wonderful country. ■

MOST FAMILIES have a formula for happiness —a special activity, a favorite place, a saying handed down through generations, an unusual philosophy of life. What is yours? PARADE will pay $100 for each story of a family used in Parade Families. They must be true accounts from your own experience, submitted in typewritten form along with a photograph of the family. Length: 300 to 750 words. Manuscripts and photographs cannot be acknowledged or returned. Send to Parade Families, PARADE, 285 Madison Ave., New York 17, N. Y.

HAPPY WANDERER

• When you read stories by PARADE West Coast Correspondent Lloyd Shearer, you may be struck by the fact that some of them come from points far from California. For example, today's exclusive interview with hard-to-interview Audrey Hepburn (page 10) is datelined Burgenstock, Switzerland. Well, Shearer went all that distance to get it (and, incidentally, to pose with his subject for the photo at right). Never let it be said that PARADE correspondents don't like to get around.

Chevrolet

CHEVROLET

SEE YOUR CHEVROLET DEALER

Chevrolet's modern beauty, like that of modern architecture, springs from clean, uncluttered design. Take, for example, the crisp simplicity of the grille—free of exaggerated "massiveness" and bolted-on decoration. Its classic purity of design will be as modern tomorrow as it is today. But more than presenting a beautiful front, the '55 Chevrolet is showing its heels to everybody with its record-smashing "Turbo-Fire V8" power! In every phase of performance, roadability and handling ease, the new Chevrolet is stealing the thunder from the high-priced cars and winning a lot of "oh's" and "ah's" doing it! One ride and you'll see why. Can you make it . . . soon?

SAFE DRIVER Marlene Cook displays group's bumper strip.

When an Oregon lady judge lost her temper, the result was...

A new answer to HOT RODS

by ELLIS LUCIA

BEAVERTON, ORE.

One day in Judge Frances Cook's traffic court here, an angry driver berated a "crazy teenager" for an accident. The "teenager" was tracked down and arrested. He turned out to be 45 years old.

Pretty Judge Cook blew up. Herself the mother of a 15-year-old boy, she was sick and tired of hearing safe-driving youngsters branded with the "hot rod" reputation of a minority. Right then, she vowed to do something about it.

That was three years ago. Today Judge Cook's "Safe-Teens" crusade has spread to 12 states and Canada. When schools open in a few weeks, insurance agents in six more states are planning campaigns to enroll teen-age drivers. By December, Safe-Teens expects to have 100,000 members.

More important, the crusade is paying off — in reduced accidents and saved lives. One traffic court noted a 66 per cent drop in teen-age cases within six months after Safe-Teens was introduced in the local high school.

Just what is Safe-Teens? "It's difficult to explain how Safe-Teens works, only that it does," says the judge, a former school teacher, newspaperwoman, secretary, actress, model and child psychologist. "I think of it as a Jiminy Cricket gimmick. The driver is bound by his own conscience and the social pressure of his group." Put another way, Safe-Teens has capitalized on teen-age unity and pride to reduce accidents.

JUDGE COOK (l.) watches as Beaverton High students attach a strip to the auto of newly enrolled Safe-Teener Ron Neelings.

Actually, Safe-Teens has been in action only a little more than six months. After the day she lost her temper, Judge Cook spent two years searching for some positive, straightforward, simple approach to cut down accidents and inspire good youth driving. Teenagers, she felt, had been "preached at" long enough. Some plan was needed which would stress the "dos" and not the don'ts."

Finally, last December, she thought she had it. Safety officials were encouraging. But would the kids like it? Nervously Judge Cook called the student officers of her own Beaverton High School and outlined her plan. The response was overwhelming.

One hundred ten students signed up as charter members and pitched in to spread the Safe-Teen gospel. They designed the Safe-Teen fluorescent red-and-black-bumper strip (above) and membership card. A special edition of the school paper was mailed throughout the nation. "Ambassadors" were sent to other high schools. Gov. Paul L. Patterson endorsed the crusade; the Oregon Association of Insurance Agents stepped forward to help pay the costs; the National Safety Council gave the crusade wide publicty. Ever since, Judge Cook's office has been deluged with letters, telegrams, long-distance calls.

A Simple Reason for Success

Apparently what has made Safe-Teens snowball is its simplicity. It spotlights the careful high-school driver and puts what teenagers call the "squirrel" on the spot. Direct and non-profit, designed for both boys and girls, it requires no dues, no pledges. Adult direction is at a minimum.

To qualify for Safe-Teens, a teenager brings his driver's license to the locally designated, volunteer administrator. His car is inspected for mechanical defects free of charge. If all is well, the teenager is issued a 2"-by-10" luminous bumper strip and membership card. If he violates the law, both may be lifted for a period determined by the court. (Safe-Teens is allied with police and traffic courts; there are no kangaroo courts.) This puts him in the doghouse with fellow members, who quickly notice the bare bumper and ask embarrassing questions.

Thus the students police each other. Not-so-good drivers suddenly become careful operators. Cars are kept in better shape. No one wants to lose that precious bumper strip.

And the system works. Safe-Teens cars have been trailed long distances. Observers note the youthful drivers carefully obeying speed laws, making stops and giving correct signals. One boy with a broken taillight refused to drive home after dark, called his mother to come and get him.

Another Safe-Teen swung recklessly into a drive-in. Other Safe-Teens leaped angrily from their cars, bawling him out for giving them all a bad name. A youth who daydreamed at the wheel woke up. Concentration on his sticker kept his mind on his driving.

And Safe-Teens has its effects on adults. "I have to drive carefully with that sticker on the bumper," one father said. "Don't want to embarrass the boy."

Safe-Teens worry a lot about traffic courts seizing their strips. Even Judge Cook showed no sympathy recently when three charter members came up before her. But one very concerned young man inquired, "Can anyone lose my strip but me?"

"No," the lady justice said. "Why?"

"Well, frankly," the youth replied, "my dad is a lousy driver." ■

Audrey Hepburn—

After only two starring films, she's the world's highest-paid actress. Catching her

The umbrella that shelters Audrey on PARADE's cover lends color to this shot of her and Mel Ferrer. At top of page, they admire a Swiss vista.

PARADE WEST COAST CORRESPONDENT

$350,000 a Picture

on a Swiss 'second honeymoon,' PARADE learns why

BURGENSTOCK, SWITZERLAND.

IN 1953 a flat-chested, saucer-eyed bit-player starred on the American screen for the first time in Roman Holiday. She beguiled the public, wowed the critics, won an Academy Award. Today, only two years and one picture (Sabrina) later, Audrey Hepburn has become the highest-priced actress in the world.

For playing the lead in War and Peace, a film based on the Tolstoy epic and currently shooting in Rome, Miss Hepburn is receiving: 1) $350,000, for a maximum of 12 weeks' work; 2) $500 a week expense money, payment of which began May 1 and is to continue until she finishes the picture; 3) a car and chauffeur for the duration of the production; 4) $27,500 for each week above 12 that she works.

Here, in this Alpine paradise where she and her actor-husband Mel Ferrer recently enjoyed a "second honeymoon" after one year of marriage, I asked Miss Hepburn why she suddenly is worth all that money (she got just $12,500 for Roman Holiday, $15,000 for Sabrina) and what, if anything, her abrupt success has done to her life.

"There are stories all over," I told her, "that in the past year or so you've become snooty and uncooperative, that Mel here has made you inaccessible to the press."

For a scant second Audrey hesitated. Then her lips parted in a half-smile.

"There are an awful lot of publications in this world," she said, "and only 24 hours in a day. And I can see only so many reporters.

"Nobody really knows how hard I've worked these past few years, how much effort went into Gigi [her first Broadway play], Roman Holiday, Sabrina and Ondine [her second play, in which she co-starred with Ferrer].

"I've always been terribly anemic, terribly thin. In Holland, when the Germans occupied the country, I was in my early teens. I went hungry all the time. We ate nettles and everyone tried to cook grass, only I couldn't stand it. When the British liberated us, I was 16 years old. I was 5 feet 7 and I weighed 90 pounds, and my ankles and joints were filled with water. I was just a stick.

"I tell you all this," Audrey continued, "to let you know that I'm not an especially robust person. Work takes its toll on me. I have no confidence in my acting ability. I have no technique. I know I've been very, very lucky, and I do so want to become a good actress. I try to concentrate on my work.

"All this doesn't leave me much time for interviews."

At this point her husband took up the story.

"I know," he acknowledged, "that I've been accused of being Audrey's Svengali. But people just don't realize how many interviews one little statue like the Academy Award calls for. As Audrey's husband, I have a responsibility to look after her health.

"We try to do as much as we can, but it's impossible to satisfy everyone. A year or so ago, when we were doing Ondine, we were invited to a circus charity at Madison Square Garden. Had to wear costumes, ride horses, the whole routine. It was for a good cause, so we said yes.

"As soon as the curtain lowered on our own show, we changed clothes, rushed like mad to get over to the Garden. Audrey, believe me, was on the verge of fainting. All the photographers gathered around, started shooting. I looked at Audrey. She was growing whiter by the second.

" 'Hold it up, fellows,' I begged, 'just for a minute. Isn't there some place Audrey can sit down and catch her breath? She's going to pass out.'

"The photographers got insulted. They accused me of being high-handed. They didn't know that Audrey's doctor had forbidden her to work, warned her about an impending collapse, told her to get away for a long vacation or he wouldn't be responsible. They were just sore because they didn't get a picture."

She Attracts — and Repels

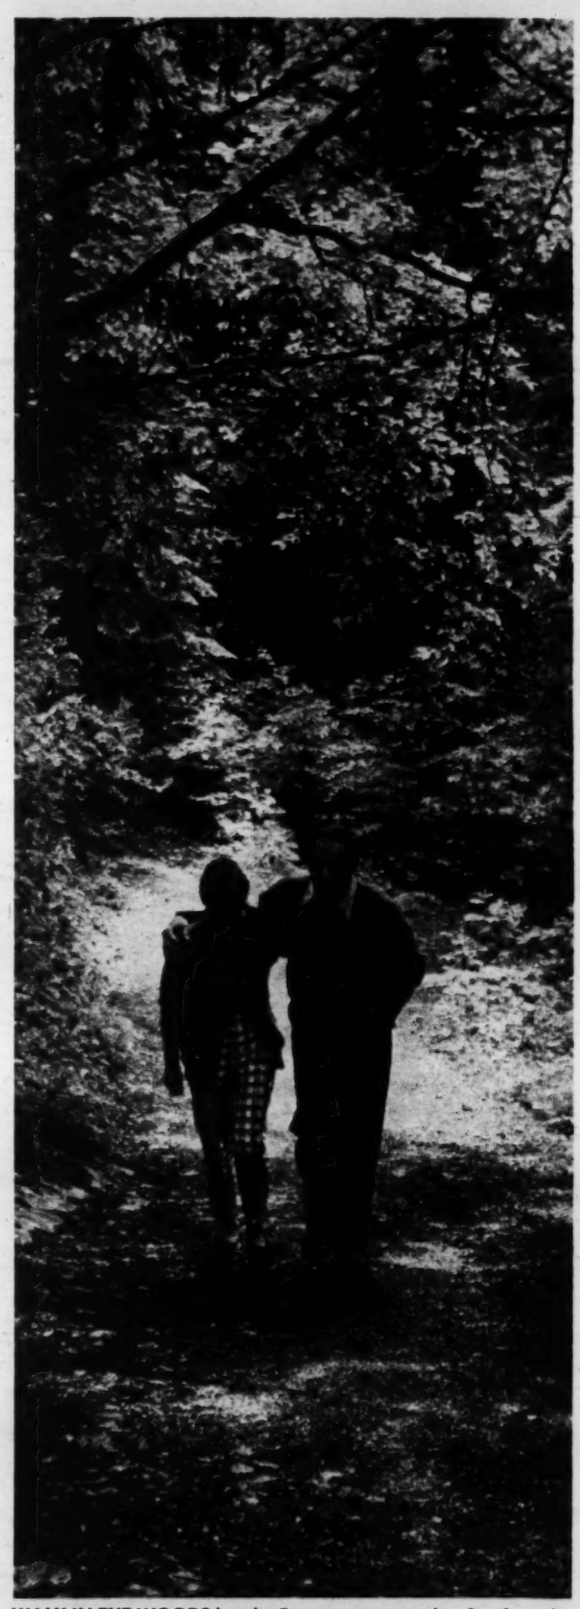
As Ferrer spoke, Audrey nodded agreement.

"Mel is right," she said. "If we have the time and the strength we'll do anything to cooperate on a project." And she said it so graciously that I felt I had been boorish in asking the question in the first place.

This quality of commanding every situation with disarming dignity is one of Miss Hepburn's outstanding traits. For one so young — she is only 26 — she has a remarkable knack of simultaneously taking you in and holding you off.

For example, while I was with her she staged a press conference for 18 correspondents who wanted to check certain rumors. Was it true, for example, that Audrey was getting $350,000 for War and Peace? Was it true that her mother, Dutch-born Baroness van Heemstra, had objected to Audrey's marriage? Was it true that Audrey wouldn't work in a film unless her husband had a role in the same picture? Was she or was she not with child?

By smiling sweetly, dodging artfully, shifting conversational gears deftly and referring tough questions to the incisive Ferrer, Audrey told her



WALK IN THE WOODS lets the Ferrers get away—briefly—from the reporters and autograph hounds who haunted their Swiss sojourn.

Behind Audrey's big deal is a big, brilliant agent inquisitors exactly what she wanted to — and no more.

Yes, she and Mel both were in War and Peace. "But only because it's good for the project. After that, Mel will make a film in Sardinia, I think. And I will probably do L'Aiglon, the story of Napoleon's son . . .

"Do I consider Switzerland my home? . . . I have no home. We are renting a villa here. We were married here, a year ago, right in the chapel. We hope to come back whenever we're not working . . .

"And there is one thing I must say . . . I must thank you all for your kindness, your thoughtfulness in allowing us our privacy. You've all been very considerate . . ."

Beyond question, Audrey Hepburn's talent, beauty and winsomeness make her worth $150,000 a picture. After all, any real Hollywood star gets $150,000 a film these days. But $350,000 in flat salary, especially for a girl who has starred in only two films — !

How did Audrey manage to pull it off?

The truth is that the coup was executed by her agent, a dynamic, brilliant money-man of 42, Kurt Frings.

Last April, Frings — who also handles Jose Ferrer (no relation to Mel), Lucille Ball, Desi Arnaz and others —flew to Switzerland to discuss with Miss Hepburn the contract she had signed with Associated British Films in the years of her genteel poverty (1947-51). By its terms, Audrey was required to make three motion pictures at $2,800 each, when and as the studio requested.

While Frings was heatedly denouncing "this slave contract," the phone rang. It was Dino de Laurentiis calling from Rome. De Laurentiis, the most reputable of Italy's chronically unreliable motion-picture producers, had just signed King Vidor to direct War and Peace, and Vidor desperately wanted Audrey for the lead. How about a conference?

THE AGENT: Kurt Frings.

The Hollywood agent said, "Sure, except that I've got to be in London tomorrow evening."

"That's all right," de Laurentiis answered. "We'll make it to St. Moritz by the morning."

The following day he called again — from Milan. A snowstorm was raging. Vidor wouldn't fly.

Frings said all right, he and Audrey would drive to the Italian border. Three hours later, in a frontier village, the two parties met. De Laurentiis rented a room in the local hotel and there, for two and a half hours, Vidor told the story of War and Peace. He told it graphically, movingly. Hepburn was enthralled. If Frings and de Laurentiis could come to terms . . .

Frings said he had to get to Milan in a hurry or he'd miss his connection to London. De Laurentiis said he would drive him. En route, Frings stated his terms: $350,000 for Hepburn, $100,000 for her husband, cars and chauffeurs for both, approval of cast, script, cameraman, etc., $500 weekly expense money for Audrey, $250 weekly expense money for Mel, a top-notch writer such as Irwin Shaw to work on the script.

Understandably, de Laurentiis demurred. "Okay," said Frings, "make War and Peace without her." Finally de Laurentiis agreed — and Frings went on to London.

There, Associated British proved willing to let Audrey make War and Peace providing the studio could distribute it in Great Britain. Paramount in turn guaranteed Hepburn's salary in dollars and was given the U.S. distribution rights to the picture.

So Frings at last was able to phone Audrey and tell her of the deal. Her first reaction was disbelief. "I'm not worth it," she cried. "It's impossible! Please," she added, "don't tell anyone . . ."

Exactly what $350,000 will do to the young lady is impossible to tell. Her close friends say it will make no difference in her outlook, her philosophy, her ambition.

"She is determined to become a great actress," director Billy Wilder maintains. "And nothing will hold her back — money, men, marriage, nothing."

If he is right, a major reason can be found in Audrey's childhood. She was born in Brussels, Belgium, on May 4, 1929, the daughter of a divorced Dutch baroness and J. A. Hepburn-Ruston, an Irish businessman. At 4 she was sent off to school in England. Two years later her parents were divorced.

In 1939, when the Nazis began to bomb Britain, Audrey was a skinny, well-educated 10-year-old. Her father, by then a leading member of Sir Oswald Mosley's Blackshirts (British Union of Fascists), thought it best to send his child back to her mother in Arnhem. He put her on a plane to Holland.

"I have never," Audrey now says wistfully, "seen my father since."

In Arnhem the child saw a performance of the Sadler's Wells Ballet and decided to become a ballerina. A few weeks later the Germans invaded Holland. Audrey managed to keep taking ballet lessons — but by the time she was 14 the war had ravaged her country, and she — like many other teenagers — had become a nervous, high-strung victim of malnutrition.

In 1945 liberation came. Soon Audrey took off for Amsterdam. There she worked in a department store till she had earned enough to go to London and advanced ballet school.

She was 19 when she got her first show-business job — a chorus girl in the English production of High Button Shoes. Other small jobs followed: a night-club revue, a bit in the opening sequence of Alec Guinness' The Lavender Hill Mob, the French Riviera for a bit in Monte Carlo Baby. And she signed that contract with Associated British.

In Monte Carlo, Audrey was playing a scene in the Hotel de Ville when the late French novelist, Colette, happened by. The aging author, crippled by arthritis and walking painfully on sticks, stopped suddenly as she saw Audrey. "There!" she cried. "There is my Gigi!"

Within a week Audrey was signed to play Gigi (which had been dramatized in English) on Broadway. Although the play was no great shakes, Audrey received rave notices. Before long Paramount signed her for Roman Holiday. She has six more pictures to make for that studio.

Top Billing — and an Error?

Both in America and abroad the Hepburn fan following is tremendous. Her appeal, the admixture of maturity and naivete, warmth and restraint, intelligence and fresh loveliness, is apparently universal — and profitable. In California, for example, when Sabrina was exhibited, many theater-owners gave Audrey top billing on their marquees above Humphrey Bogart and William Holden.

Financially secure at 26, happily married, poised and unspoiled by success, Audrey Hepburn has no intention of retiring into domesticity. But a close Dutch friend of hers confided to me that, in her opinion, Audrey is guilty of one major error in living, an error characteristic of many actresses.

"She is a girl of breeding, talent and character," my informant conceded. "But she is building her life around work. What a sad mistake! She should build it around love and children. In the end they will mean more to her than War and Peace."

Time, as they say, will tell. ■

A homeowner who did it says:

BE YOUR OWN BUILDER!

by ROBERT SCHARFF

STONY BROOK, N.Y.

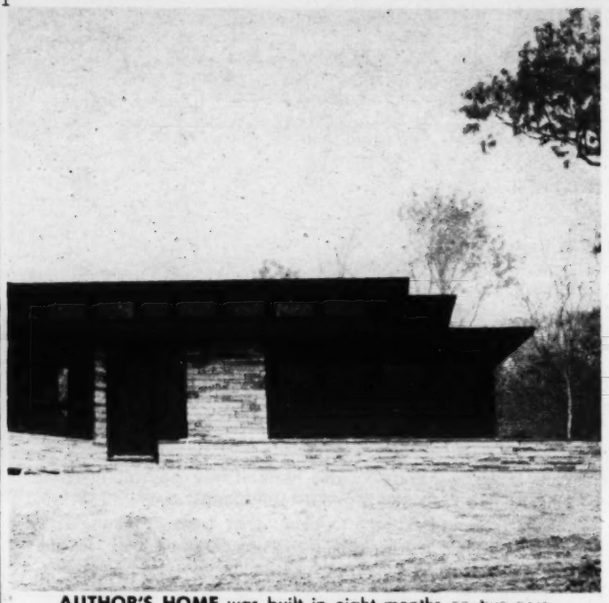
Want to build your own home? My wife and I did, but when we worked out final plans we found we lacked two important items: time and money. Then Helen and I hit upon the idea of being our own general contractor. This way the job would move at the normal building rate and we would save 15 or 20 per cent on the over-all cost — the builder's or general contractor's fee.

It meant the difference between having a home we wanted or building a smaller one. It meant a saving of more than $3,000 on a $20,000 house. So we decided to do it.

Now, I don't want to give the impression that professional builders don't earn their fees in getting permits, ordering materials and hiring labor. However, being your own contractor is within the realm of possibility for the average man who desires a home of his own.

And saving money isn't the only advantage. Here are others we learned: 1) You know and see the materials that go into your house. As you do the purchasing, there's little chance of getting inferior products or scrimping unnecessarily on them. 2) You can lay out the house and make changes to suit your needs as you go along. For instance, Helen practically drove the kitchen-cabinet man crazy during the installations, but she got the arrangement she wanted. 3) You can have certain luxury features — copper plumbing, baseboard heating, air-conditioning, etc. — and pay for them out of your savings on contractor's fees.

Finally, when the house is finished you can stick out your chest and say to one and all: "I built my house the way I



AUTHOR'S HOME was built in eight months on two-acre plot in Stony Brook, N.Y. It has three levels, a full cellar.

CARPENTER cuts sheathing (wooden covering nailed to upright posts) for window, which is fitted between the posts.

wanted it." It's part of you — your sweat, toil and tears.

The latter statement is no exaggeration. There are many headaches a builder must suffer and several pitfalls he must avoid. I'll admit my foot slipped a few times and — by way of forewarning you against comparable mistakes — I'll make a clean sweep and confess them.

The major cause of the silver streaks in my hair was labor. An established builder usually has a certain group of subcontractors ("subs," in building-trades jargon), who work for him in the various stages of building a house. When acting as your own builder, you must start from scratch in the matter of selecting subs.

We combed the yellow pages of the phone book, asked friends and people at the lumber yards for names of reliable contractors in the various trades. After gathering bids from those most highly recommended, we began selecting.

Estimates were confusing, to say the least. For example, I got bids from excavators varying from 35 to 80 cents per cubic yard for dirt removal for the basement. But in checking the fine print, I found that the excavator's bid of 35 cents didn't include the removal of trees from the property and that there was an extra charge for digging the cesspool. Moreover, he wouldn't say when he would start the job. After adding up all the extras, I decided a bid of 70 cents was my best deal. After that experience, I read every other proposition word for word.

Being a combination of Dick Tracy and Sherlock Holmes saves plenty of headaches. You can quickly find out if the sub is a reputable contractor by talking to some of his former customers. Of course, you may find complaints about the best craftsman. One woman, for example, wouldn't give a good recommendation to a plumber because he married her maid. Generally, an unreliable contractor doesn't stay in business long, but a brief investigation may save you from being his last dissatisfied customer.

On carpentry and masonry we paid for labor at a fixed daily rate. We got flat cost on labor and fixtures for plumbing and electrical work. Take our advice on one thing: Never attempt to hire labor directly.

You will find that even if you have public-liability insurance on your property, workmen you hire are not covered by this insurance. A special type of workmen's-compensation insurance must be secured to cover injuries to men on the job — generally more expensive than an individual could afford.

Let the "Sub" Worry

Your responsibility is removed by keeping all trades on a subcontract basis, with workmen covered by insurance paid for by the firms with which you contract. Never chance a job with an uninsured workman. A serious injury can cost you your savings.

Another part of your job as builder is to purchase materials. We let several of our subs furnish their own materials, but we found they added their own profit percentage. For this reason, you save more if you buy all materials. Your local lumber dealer will be glad to figure your needs from the house plans and make an estimate. He may even be willing to extend contractor's prices if you buy all materials from him.

Or you can shop around for bargains. Helen did most of the buying for our home by phone. She called every lumber company for miles around, then took the lowest offer quoted.

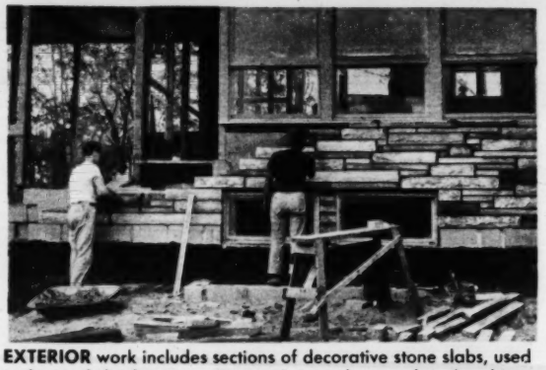
Another way to save money on lumber is to buy proper grades. Our local lumber dealer advised us not to demand the best grades throughout the house. "You don't necessarily get a better house," he said. "It's just more costly." By using cheaper grades wherever possible, we saved about $1,000.

If you take a 30-year mortgage, as we did, this saving is about doubled because you save interest, too. Excellent booklets on this subject are published by the Southern Pine Association (New Orleans) and the West Coast Lumbermen's Association (Portland).

Timing of various building operations and getting materials to the job when they are needed is one of the most difficult and nerve-wracking jobs of all. With today's high labor wages you can't afford to have men sitting around waiting for materials or for other workmen to finish their jobs. It cost me $100, for example, to have the tile-setters listen to the baseball game while they were waiting for the carpenters to put the lath in place and for delivery of the mortar cement they would need to finish their job.

"CLOSING IN" stage of building (at end of first month) shows plank-and-beam type of construction. Some sheathing (at right) already has been nailed in place.

PLUMBING is "roughed in" after the basic carpentry is done. Here workman connects copper piping for drains.



EXTERIOR work includes sections of decorative stone slabs, used in front of the house as "veneer" over the wooden sheathing.

Make a schedule of the various trade jobs and stick to it. Plumbers shouldn't be called before the carpenters have progressed to a point where the plumbing can be roughed in without serious loss of time. Plumbers and electricians must finish their work before the plasterers start. Floor-layers and tile-setters take over after the plasterers. And so on.

Scheduling requires some technical knowledge, to be sure. But if you don't want to spend time learning how to build a house before starting the job, then by all means don't try to be your own builder. If you do, there are many excellent books and pamphlets available at your library. Most manufacturing and trade-association literature — yours for the writing — is packed with technical information.

Also study local home-building jobs for techniques of construction. Your local building department and utility company will be glad to explain their regulations for permits, electricity, water and gas. During the actual building of your home, don't be bashful about taking your subcontractor's advice about construction details.

While you're acting as builder, you may cut costs still further by doing some of the work yourself. A lot of labor that goes into a house is unskilled — which means that many jobs can be done by amateurs like you and me.

Helen and I stapled the insulation on our house over a week end and saved $150 on labor costs.

It's all over now. The headaches and the heartaches are gone. We have what we want — a house we couldn't have afforded if we hadn't been our own builders. You can, too. So go to it — with our wishes for your success. ■

parade etiquette by Amy Vanderbilt

TODAY'S TEENAGERS

This is essentially an etiquette column for teenagers, and etiquette, in my opinion, covers many of the ways we act and feel in life. I am interested in hearing not only from teenagers but also from their parents regarding them.

Q. I am 15 years old and still don't know completely about sex and sex relations. My mother says she'll tell me when I am older. I think I am quite old enough. Is my mother right?
— R.J.B., Youngstown, Ohio.

A. You certainly are old enough. Actually, you probably have been asking your parents sex questions right along. I hope that, like modern and enlightened parents, they have answered you casually and honestly, explaining only those facts you have asked about.

If your mother now feels that you must wait for more detailed information, it is perhaps because she is embarrassed. If this is the case, you both should turn to your family doctor, a clergyman you know well or the many books and pamphlets published on the subject. I would like to recommend a book actually written for young children but helpful for all ages. It is The Wonderful Story of How You Were Born by Sidonie Matsner Gruenberg. The Child Study Association in New York has a fine pamphlet, When Children Ask About Sex. Your public library has such publications.

Don't be ashamed of your curiosity; it is normal and natural. And once you acquire the information you seek, keep it to yourself. Children come to the point where they are ready for such information at different times in their development. If they are told too soon, even by someone their own age, they may misunderstand.

Q. I am a girl of 17 and very much in love with a man of 24. We want to marry, but my parents won't permit it. He wants to elope. Should we?
—M.G., San Diego, Calif.

A. Don't do anything so foolish. If it possibly can be avoided, no girl should marry against her parents' wishes. Let this man try to win your parents' approval in open courtship of you and then, if he is successful, have a period of engagement before you marry.

Q. I am 15 years old and I like one boy a lot. My parents won't let me see him because, they say, he's a foreigner. But he was born here in Akron. They want me to like others and I have tried, but still like this boy best. Can you tell me what to do? — C.J., Akron, Ohio.

A. Your parents are right in asking you to see other boys, too. Of course, they should understand that we all have foreign backgrounds of various kinds. You do not mention religion, and perhaps this is what concerns your family more. They may be looking ahead to years of deepening friendship with this boy with the thought that the difference in religion might make for difficulties in marriage. Think about all of these things and try to be more flexible in your relationships.

Q. I am a girl of 12. Some of my ideas are old-fashioned. Should I say what I think or keep quiet and let people think I'm modern? — A.P., Fort Worth, Tex.

A. Just do not try to be what you are not. The ideas that you have are those that your parents have inculcated in you. From your handwriting, I would say that they have given you a sense of security and purpose rare in a girl of your age. Hold fast to it.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS will be answered in this column as space permits. (Miss Vanderbilt cannot answer letters personally.) Address: Amy Vanderbilt, PARADE, 285 Madison Ave., N.Y. 17, N.Y.

You simply furnish the "fixings," then let your guests make their own — simple or lavish, according to taste.

(Two excellent examples are described at right). Add a cool beverage. Then relax and watch the fun!

CHICKEN-CURRY SANDWICH SPREAD

1½ cups chopped chicken
2 tbsp. finely chopped onion

1 cup shredded cabbage
½ cup chopped dill pickles
2 tbsp. mayonnaise
2 tsp. horse-radish
⅛ tsp. pepper

This Louisiana experiment proves:

BETTER DIET DOES PAY

A simple, but hard-hitting idea produces happier, healthier children and adults, too

EAGER YOUNGSTERS line up for lunch in an Ascension Parish school. Their well-balanced meal includes meat, vegetables, bread, butter, milk.

ASCENSION PARISH, LA.

They're growing bigger children in the 300 square miles of this rural Louisiana parish near Baton Rouge than they were 10 years ago — bigger, healthier and happier children. Last year three of the four high schools in the parish (population 25,000) produced championship football teams. School attendance is up; sickness is down. And teachers agree that their pupils are more active, more alert and scholastically more responsive.

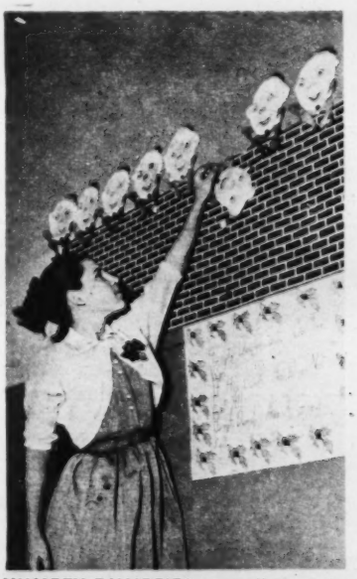
What's behind it all? To put it in the simplest terms, a change in diet.

Listen to a typical Ascension grocer: "We used to sell maybe two or three loaves a week of whole-wheat bread. Now we sell maybe 100 a week. Grapefruit juice — folks wouldn't touch it 10 years ago. Now we may sell a case a week. We sell lots more milk — 100 per cent more — and cheese. People generally, grownups and kids alike, look healthier and better."

It was an impressive-sounding program, begun back in 1938, that was to produce such results: "The Ascension Parish Program of Improvement of Community Living Through Education." Former Superintendent of Schools Larry J. Babin originated the idea, and he stated it best: "Education should be the way to a better life for the whole community, not just book learning . . ." As part of that better life, Babin stressed healthful eating habits.

The program started in the schools, of course. There was room for improvement. Most of the children had either no breakfast at all, or a minimum: "coffee water" or "coffee milk" and a slice of bread. They drank little milk, ate far too many starches. Few drank fruit juices except when they were sick. Their usual dinner might be corn bread and cane sirup — period. In 1944 a survey showed that only 1.6 per cent of parish children in white schools had good eating habits, with 59.5 per cent fair and 38.9 per cent poor.

Six years later, the figures stood: 31 per cent good, 64.3 per cent fair and only 4.7 per cent poor. Negro children had made even more striking gains. And Ascension Parish was attracting national attention. Said Dr. Frederick J. Stare, chairman of the department of nutrition of Harvard's School of Public Health: "There is no question in my mind but what these activities are the best of any I have seen . . . in schools in Massachusetts, Vermont, New York and Tennessee."



HUMPTY-DUMPTIES on wall in sixth-grade classroom represent children. If one fails to eat school lunch, Humpty "falls."

Here's how the Ascension program was carried out:

In the beginning, every indication — including spot-checks of home menus and physical examination of the children — demonstrated that poor nutrition was widespread in the parish. Economic factors had something to do with it (average per-capita income in 1943 was $326), but it was notable that upper-income families ate little more fruit, green vegetables, whole-grain breads than their poorer neighbors. There was a school-lunch system, but it, too, was inadequate.

So Babin called a series of public meetings. As many as 1,800 people attended some of them. Everybody who came was given a ticket, and "door prizes" were raffled off: a milk cow, 10 pigs, 12 crates of chicks, assorted vegetable seeds. Questionnaires were distributed, covering many other things besides nutrition: house-screening, painting, use of electricity, deep-water wells and so on.

A high-school principal, Mrs. Regina L. Hood, was chosen to improve the school-lunch program. The Louisiana General Education Board made a grant in aid; through Louisiana State University a nutrition specialist was hired. Children were given "score cards" on which they listed all the food they had eaten in one day. One point was set down for each serving of a "protective" food such as stewed tomatoes, zero for such nutritionally poor dishes as salt pork.

The results were shocking — and they jolted everyone into action. Health Committees were set up in each school. They included the teachers, lunchroom personnel, parents, students, members of outside agencies. Special attention was paid to the school-lunch program. Parents and teachers met regularly with lunchroom personnel. As time went on, the children were allowed to help plan menus. Mothers and even some fathers helped to plan, cook and serve meals. (For 25 cents they could eat with the children themselves — many did and still do.) In several communities money was raised by the parents for new lunchrooms.

The nutrition program was broadened to include the three parochial schools of Ascension Parish, and the Negro schools. Nutrition itself became one of the most-used words in the curriculum. Arithmetic problems were reworded to use food examples. Spelling tests were given with food words. In English class, compositions were written on food, and in drawing periods pictures were made. The children wrote and presented skits and playlets dramatizing proper nutrition. In some schools the children raised a pair of hamsters or white rats; one of each pair was given milk with his food, one water, and the children speedily saw the difference.

Two Big Bites

Before long every child in the parish could rattle off the number of points tabulated on his score card in a given meal. Children learned never to turn away a new food with the remark, "I just don't like it!" They joined the "Two-Bite Club" — two big bites every time, even if mustard greens didn't taste like ice-cream. Then they graduated to the "Clean Plate Club." In one school the children weighed all left-over food after every meal.

Oddly enough, one of the "new" foods that required a great deal of selling was turkey. Turkey just wasn't eaten in Ascension Parish. Even on Thanksgiving, roast pork or roast beef was standard. Now even grownups will eat turkey.

In the little community of Geismar, a

DRAWING by a second-grader, complete with original spelling, comes from class project, "My Milk Booklet." Other pages show virtues of butter, foods made with milk, vegetables.

PARADE reporter had Friday supper with the W.P. Duplessis family: fried catfish and rice, field peas, salad, milk, butter, whole-wheat bread, strawberries and cake. "We used to have corn bread and sirup, corn bread in milk or cereal and milk for breakfast," Duplessis said. "We used butter and eggs only very occasionally and fruit juices hardly ever. At lunch there was no salad, and probably no butter. White bread, naturally. Our meals filled you up, but there wasn't much nutrition in them. We just didn't know that things like fruit juices were good for you."

"Our youngsters have always been active." Mrs. Duplessis added, "but I sure can say they're healthier and more full of activity as a result of the school program. And I don't really have any feeding problems with them."

One of the important reasons for the complete acceptance of the program by parents was a remarkable four-page letter to every child's home every week. The first page explained the program. The second showed the school-lunch program for the week — thus preventing duplication at supper time — and suggested the correct foods for the remaining meals. The third page listed 47 foods and the proper number of daily servings of each.

The fourth page was a simple block chart for the children to fill out after each meal.

Today, if there is a flaw in the whole program, it is a tendency for good eating habits to be lost after the seventh-grade level. "As children get older," one high-school home economics teacher told PARADE, "they get more sophisticated and they ape adult manners — including food habits. And many adult habits aren't very good."

Even so, with seven years of this program behind them, Ascension children have a lifetime head-start on those in many other parts of the United States — including, possibly, yours. ■

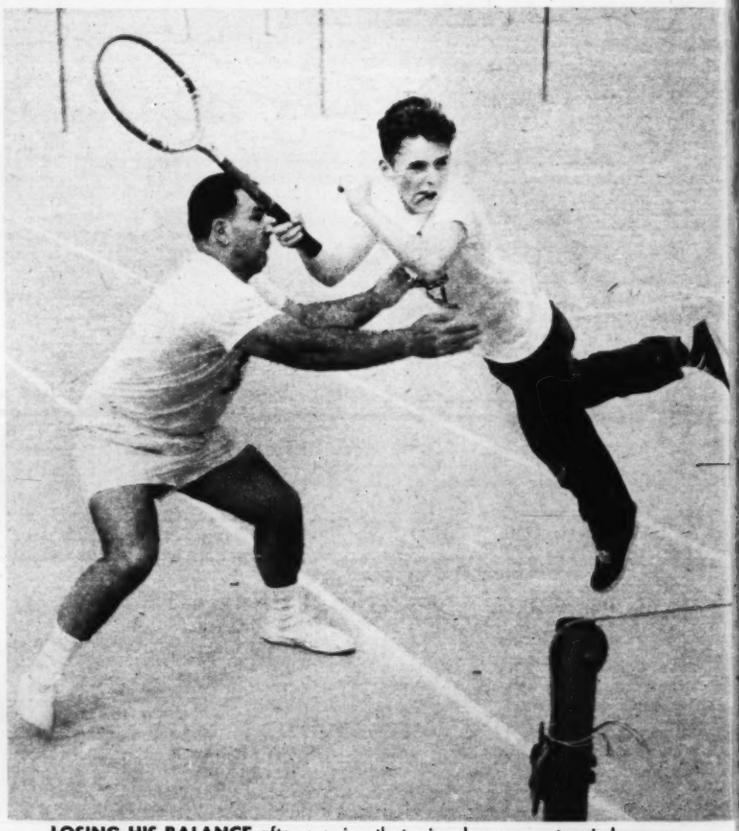
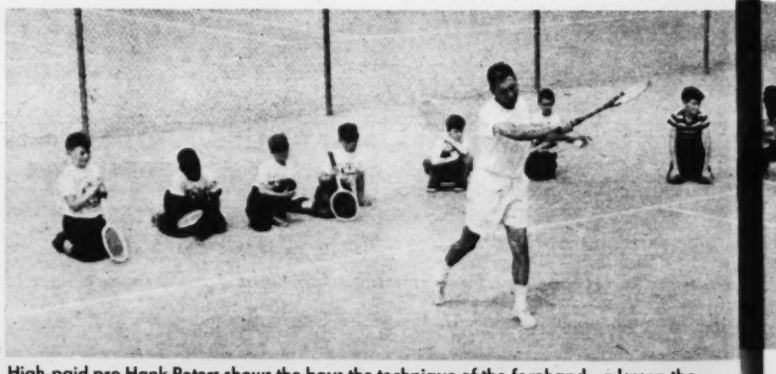
TENNIS FOR EVERYONE

This year we're teaching the kids in dungarees and T-shirts to play. Outlook: more Davis Cup victories



Llosing his balance after a swing that missed, a young tennis learner takes a flyer, but Newark Boys Club's Joe Paradise is set for the catch.



High-paid pro Hank Peters shows the boys the technique of the forehand—a lesson the

by ROBERT CARLISLE

NEWARK, N.J.

Bristle-haired, reedy Tom Pennell bounced out of the sedan and galloped leggily toward the tennis courts of West Side Park here the other day. Twenty other boys — ranging from 11 to 14 — charged after him yipping, their dungarees flopping, their T-shirts trailing in the breeze.

Waiting for them at the court, grinning, was Hank Peters, tennis pro from an exclusive Summit, N.J., country club. He was here to give the boys of the Newark Boys Club — mostly kids from lower-income families — their free weekly tennis lesson.

To any member of tennis' Old Guard, the scene would have been shocking. Missing were the formal white flannels of the onetime "gentleman's game," the well-combed look and, most of all, the decorum.

They're probably gone forever. An exciting revolution is going on in American tennis; it's sweeping aside conventions, opening up the game to youngsters from both sides of the tracks.

The winners in this bloodless revolution: everybody. Youngsters from grimy city streets are learning a game that's steeped in good sportsmanship. And tennis is gaining a jam-packed supply of fresh new talent.

That talent is badly needed. For although we won the Davis Cup from Australia last year — and boast a strong team to defend it next week at Forest Hills, N.Y. — many tennis experts point out that we lack the multitude of stars of previous years, Don Budge, Bobby Riggs, Jack Kramer, Pancho Gonzales and their ilk. Our wellsprings of talent, some observers have been lamenting, are drying up.

Now, however, we're tapping a new supply. The revolution, in the words of U.S. Davis Cup captain William F. Talbert, is making tennis "a game that the kids next door can play."

So far the kids next door are doing just fine. There's teen-aged Ron Holmberg of Brooklyn, for instance, a finalist in this year's Eastern Clay Courts Championship; kids get free, thanks to generous patrons.

FOREHAND return of a serve baffles this learner; he keeps "popping up" the ball.

FOREHAND shot is twisted off successfully by Tom Pennell, as Peters watches carefully.

and Alan Roberts of New York, last year's national boys' singles champion. Both were developed in New York City "tennis clinics."

Such clinics have sprouted up across the country. Sponsored by tennis enthusiasts who kick in sums from $10 to $1,000 or more, the clinics provide the kids with free lessons from top pros.

A more or less typical one is Vito Malgieri's tennis clinic in Newark. Director of the West Side unit of the Boys Club, Malgieri built his racquet squad with money from the Eastern Tennis Patrons; this group is raising $10,000 this summer to teach tennis to kids in Eastern Seaboard cities. It gave Malgieri $100 last year to buy an armful of racquets, and $150 this year for sneakers, part of the pro's fee and money to cover the 15-cents-a-boy fee for use of the West Side Park courts.

The money has been well spent. Each Tuesday morning Tom Pennell and his 20 friends — led by Malgieri and physical education director Joe Paradise — come out to the West Side Park in a cavalcade of cars. After the initial wild charge, the boys settle down: they know that pro Peters is available for only two hours. Peters explains the fundamentals to the boys — all of whom volunteered for the course — then takes each boy in turn for individual instruction.

Young Pennell responds to all this with the exuberance of a wild colt. A victim of an auto accident that put him in the hospital for several months, he's now fully recovered but still frail. "I used to like baseball better than any other sport," he says, "but I'm sure getting to like this tennis. The first time I saw it was on TV last year and right away I wanted to play it."

First on the court each Tuesday morning, Pennell also spends the longest time on the Newark Boys Club playground on Tuesday afternoons, practicing what was preached in the morning; the boys work out on a scaled-down court marked off on macadam. Right now Tom swears he has no dreams of winning the Davis Cup for Uncle Sam in 1965 ("I like to play tennis because it sharpens my batting eye for baseball"). But his friends suspect that Tom may be losing his love for the national pastime in favor of a game that lets him whack the ball a lot more often.

Tom's whacks are due to the generosity of the Eastern Tennis Patrons and club director Malgieri never forgets it. "We operate right in the center of a low economic area," he points out. "Tennis would be just too expensive for our kids if it weren't for the people who donate to the patrons' group."

Best From the West

The first patrons' group was born in California more than 20 years ago, brought into being by Perry Jones and the Southern California Tennis Association. That was one of the few tennis-developing programs till after World War II (which helps explain why — until recently — top players like Kramer, Riggs and Maureen Connolly were nearly all from Southern California). In 1947 the Chicago Tennis Patrons came into being. Says its head, Thomas Underwood: "Tennis courts are not enough. There has to be someone there to teach the game. And that's where we came in."

Other groups came in soon after — in Kentucky, New England, Detroit, Pittsburgh, New Jersey. There are also the mushrooming clinics of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. A typical Jaycee program is underway in St. Louis, where for $3.75 a youngster gets 10 lessons, the loan of a racquet and tennis balls if he lacks them, and the right to enter the Jaycees' national tournament. This year's tournament attracted entries from Jaycee chapters in 40 states and Hawaii — a total of 23,000 boys competing in home-town matches for the 200 slots in the finals at San Antonio, Tex.

Out of such local tournaments almost certainly will come the Davis Cuppers of 1965 and after. No more need American fans fret about the flow of new tennis players. Thanks to the generosity of a broad range of patrons, and to the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce, we're now making U.S. tennis as strong as America herself — and, if the experience of Tom Pennell and his friends is any indication, as democratic. ■

GI CARTOONS: 1955

Several noted cartoonists — Bill Mauldin, Dave Breger, George Baker—rode to fame with their World War II GI cartoon characters. The hatchet-faced people on these pages may do the same for Pfc. Sheldon A. (Shel) Silverstein of Chicago, a cartoonist for Pacific Stars and Stripes while serving in Japan and Korea. Although some Silverstein drawings are too special for civilians, the samples here (from his first book, *Take Ten) show the common touch that could mean a bright career for the 25-year-old draftee.

"Do you like girls?"

"So, not being able to sleep, I figured I might as well take some of my dirty clothes down to be cleaned, so I put them in my AWOL bag and grab a bus down to the cleaners... Well, Sir, I guess I must have dozed off because the next thing I remember is the bus stopping and there I was back home in Chicago... 'Gee Whiz!' I yelled, 'I'm on the wrong bus!'"

Coturnix are kept in rows of nesting pens, one pair to each compartment, at the Carl Lowrance Quail Farm, where the study is being made. Eggs are being collected for placing in incubators by Eldon Corn, farm superintendent. A Coturnix hen in captivity averages about five eggs a week.

A young Coturnix in a holding cage, where hens hatched last spring have been laying since the end of July. Adult Coturnix is about seven inches long, the bob white about 10 inches. Since 80 per cent of bob whites killed in fall are same year's hatch and are not at maximum weight, the faster-growing Coturnix, when bagged by hunter, is expected to be about as big as most quail that are shot.

Sixteen days after the egg was put in the incubator, a Coturnix chick emerges from it. Chick's bill will immediately be dipped in water to teach it to drink. Chicks eat unaided, do not need to be fed by parent birds. Nest of Coturnix in wild state is little more than depression in the ground which they line with leaves and grass stems.

MISSOURI TESTS NEW QUAIL

Fast-Breeding Asian Game Bird May Augment the State's Depleted Bob White

By OLIVER F. FINK of the PICTURES Staff

IN THESE DAYS of intensive farming, cover conditions are becoming tough for the bob white, native quail of Missouri. Clean fence rows, heavy grazing, lack of undergrowth and several years of drouth have combined with heavy hunting to cut seriously the state's bob white population. The Missouri Conservation Commission is seeking to offset that decline by extensive habitat restoration for bob white and by providing a new upland game bird that will thrive on sparse cover, take some of the hunting pressure off the bob white. It is hoping to find that game bird in the Coturnix, the common quail of the Old World. It seems to like what the bob white considers poor cover, is much more prolific. If all tests in captivity prove satisfactory, the commission will probably release some of the birds in selected areas next year.

Experiment was started last spring with 70 pairs of Coturnix coturnix japonica, a strain found in eastern Asia. Birds are being tested as a propagation project, under contract, at a commercial quail farm near Joplin.

Coturnix is the quail mentioned in the Old Testament as having provided food for the hungering Israelites on their desert flight from Egypt. It is slightly smaller than the bob white, differs somewhat in appearance. It is an excellent game bird, the commission reports, holds well to dogs, "takes off like a rocket," and affords tricky wing shooting. Further, it would be an agricultural asset, since it feeds heavily on insects and weed seeds.

Incubation period for Coturnix eggs is 16 days—a bob white egg takes 23 days. In wild state Coturnix usually nest twice a year, laying nine to 12 eggs each time. Young hens start laying earlier than the bob white, as soon as seven weeks, indicating a potential two generations a year in wild habitat. A bob white hen hatched one summer does not lay until next year; it nests only once a season, averages eight young. In contrast, one pair of Coturnix that nests in spring could, with the offspring of its first hatch, mean 40 birds available for hunting in November.

Coturnix prolificacy is evidenced by the growth of the test flock, reduced by losses to 64 pairs. The birds were first brought into the state April 26. On May 26 second-generation birds began to hatch out and by August 9 the first eggs laid by second-generation Coturnix hatched. In 11 weeks after the first hatchings, the farm had some 1900 birds in holding pens and 150 in brooders, with about 1150 eggs in incubators at the hatchery. By fall the commission expects to have several thousand birds on hand from its original small start. Among them could be fourth-generation Coturnix.

Coturnix eggs (left) are creamy white mottled with dark brown, while bob white eggs are solid white. Geneticists do not believe that the two birds will cross, but the commission is testing this possibility in captivity.

Photos by ARTHUR WITMAN of the PICTURES Staff

Adult male Coturnix. These birds prefer open grassy lands rather than thickets. They fly at about eye level, do not whistle like bob white when they take off. Coturnix was chosen for Missouri tests as it is believed to be less migratory than European varieties. Releases will test ability to survive in Missouri wilds, whether birds will remain in state throughout the year.

Male bob white (colinus virginianus) in cover. White on head is distinctive of male. The bob white travels in families or coveys except in spring mating season. Coturnix do not covey, are usually found singly or in pairs. In cover habits they are more like the meadowlark than the bob white, and in Australia, Coturnix are known as stubble quail.

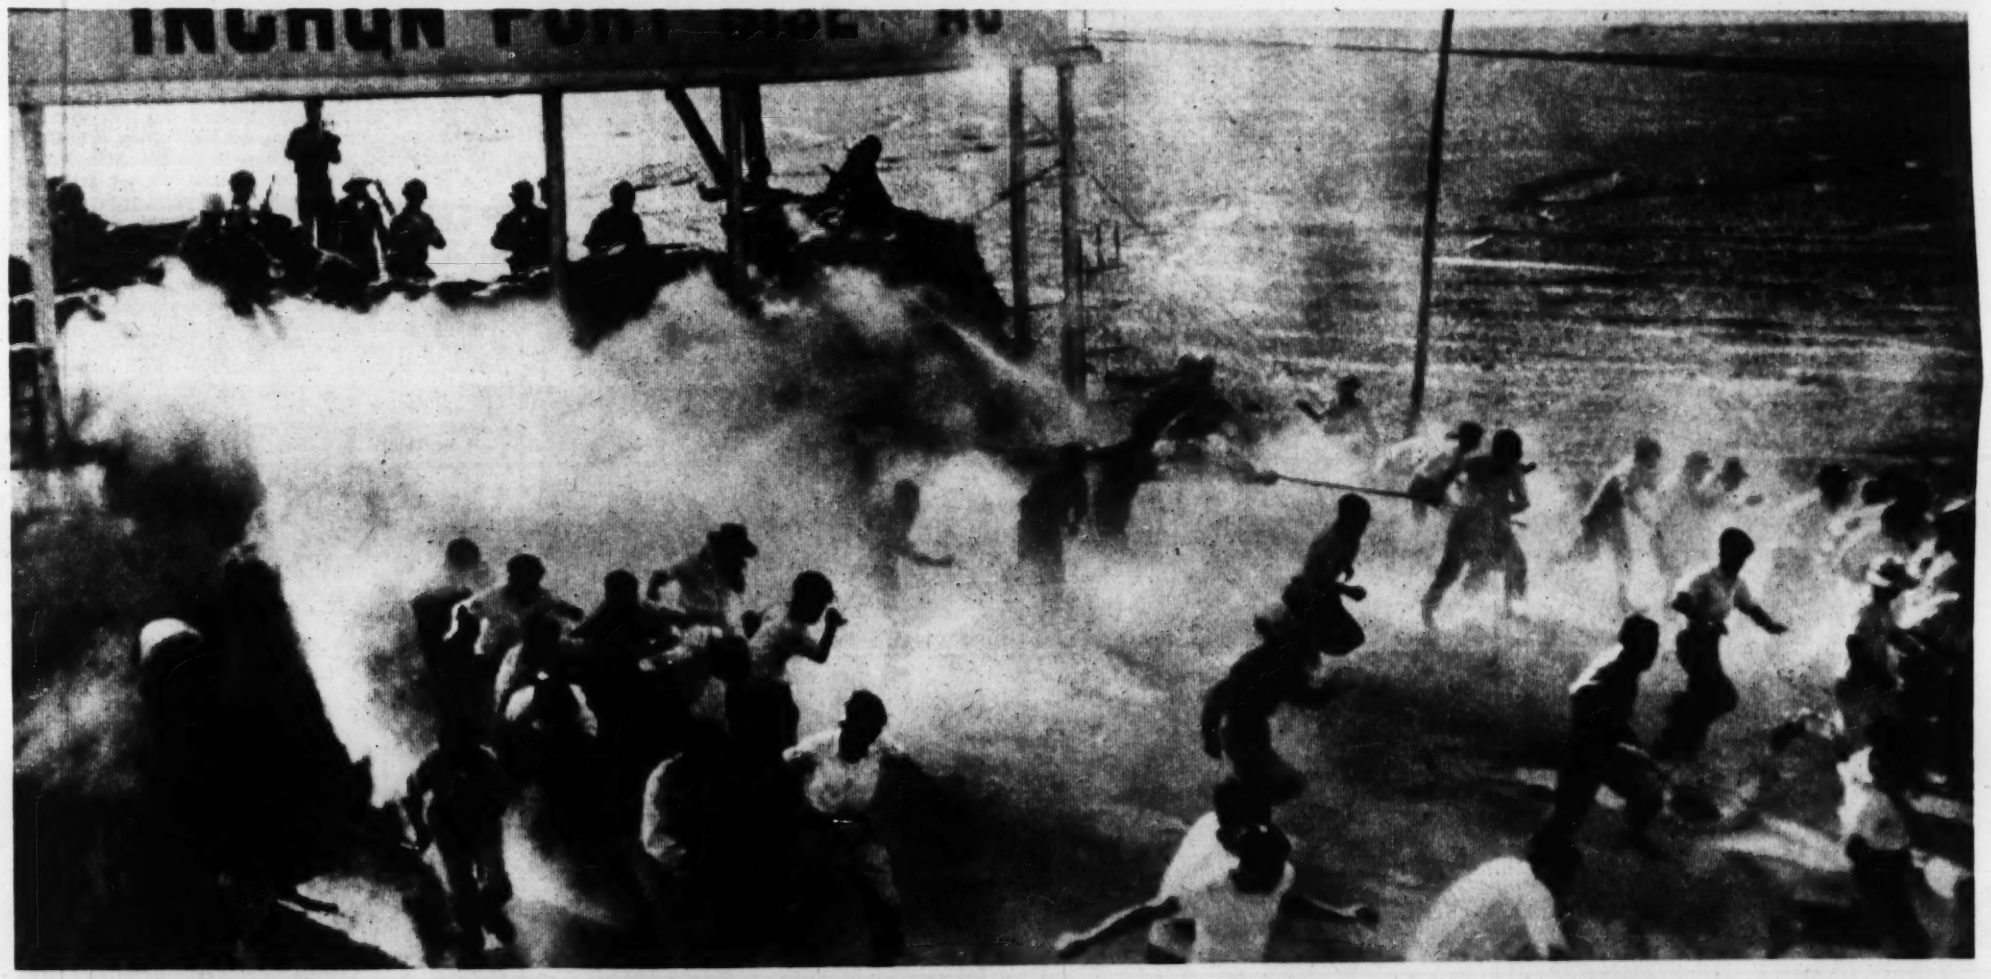
TRUCE TROUBLE IN SOUTH KOREA

Demonstrators Supporting Rhee's Demand For Removal of U.N.'s Red Commissioners Are Turned Back by United States Troops

South Koreans demonstrating against truce inspectors at Inchon storm sandbagged gate on causeway to Wolmi Island guarded by United States troops. In their efforts to seize Communist members of the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission stationed at Wolmi, the demonstrators ignored warning (upper left) in English and Korean hung over Army's entrance sign. The gate was focal point of several riots during a two-week flare-up following statements by South Korean officials criticizing Polish and Czechoslovakian truce inspectors. President Syngman Rhee, who accused them of being Communist spies, issued, canceled, then renewed an ultimatum for the 20 Poles and 26 Czechs to leave Korea. He charged that they had prevented the commission from discharging its chief duty—to see the truce agreement prohibiting a military build-up in North Korea was observed. Rhee's government was believed to be behind the demonstrations but it denied this. The United Nations Command reported North Korea has been enlarging its ground forces and airstrips, importing war materials and Soviet jet planes. The U.N. Command blamed the truce violations on Communist truce inspectors.



The demonstrators are repelled (photo above) by tear gas and streams from firehoses directed by troops behind the barricade. Dashing through the dense cloud of gas (photo left), the rioters scramble away from the gate; one man escapes through an opening in a board fence. Demonstrations also took place at four other South Korean ports of entry where truce teams are stationed. The United Nations Command is responsible for the safety of truce inspectors in South Korea, with most of the guard duty falling to United States troops. Most serious riots were at Inchon, at Pusan, where a mob of 10,000 tried to storm a neutral compound, and at Kangnung, where 3000 demonstrators tried to force their way into a truce team's quarters by ramming the gate with heavy trucks. Guards fought the demonstrators with tear gas, clubs and firehoses; once resorted to gunfire. Some 60 Americans and more than 100 Koreans were injured in the clashes. The situation was tense as the United States indicated it would seek a peaceful withdrawal of the truce commission.

August Blooms

ONE OF THE MORE spectacularly flamboyant shrubs in bloom in July and August is the crape myrtle. Native to China and the East Indies, the crape myrtle is most commonly grown in the southern United States, but hardier strains survive all but the most frigid winters in Missouri. Even when killed back by cold, the shrub blooms from the new growth. It also usually blooms the first summer after planting. Flowers most often are deep pink, vary from white to purple. Shown on this page is a 17-year-old crape myrtle, some 10 feet high, in the back yard of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Molumby at 5422 Geraldine avenue. It is one of the deeper pink strains. The shrub, botanically known as Lagerstroemia indica, gets its common name from the crape-like flowers. Leaves are a glossy deep green.

LIGHT AND COLOR IN STORE DESIGN

Westroads, New Suburban Department Store Branch, Uses Spectacular Display Techniques

Six hand-carved circus wagons and calliope serve as display cases in the toy department of the Stix, Baer and Fuller department store branch at Westroads. Wagon in foreground, lighted from its ceiling as are the others, contains a display of dolls. Nonplaying calliope is at far end. Wagons, built to three-quarter scale, were designed by Tony Duquette, Hollywood interior decorator.

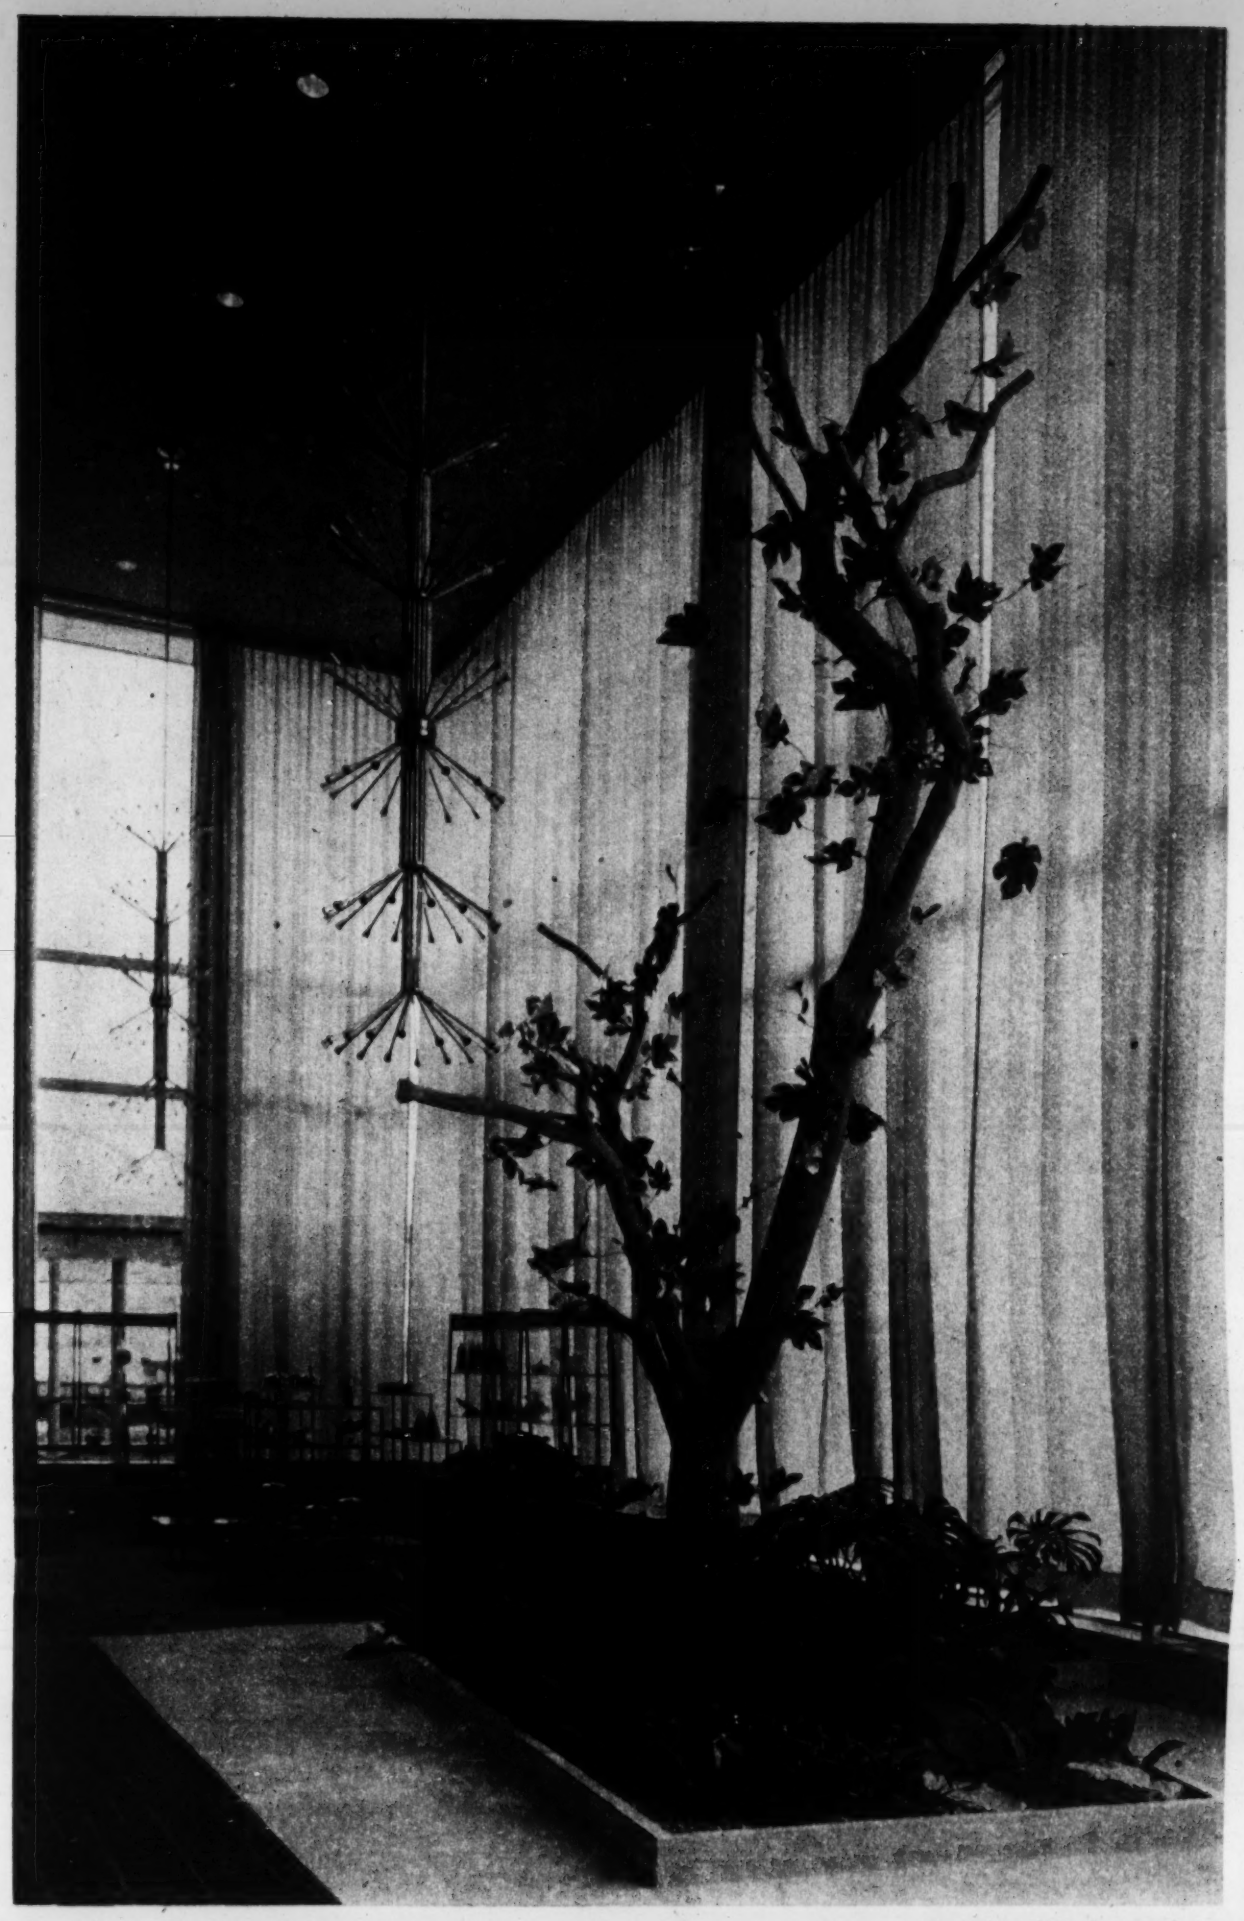
IN SHOPPING CENTERS, the growing use of decoration is having a transforming effect. Instead of background applications of color, store decoration has advanced to the point that it is now likely to pervade the entire building, even be a part of the structure itself. The new combinations of striking architecture with novel interior furnishings of the Stix, Baer and Fuller department store branch at Westroads make the approach to such an establishment and the trip through it something of a scenic excursion.

Although the basic idea is still to transact business, this is carried on in an atmosphere in which the outward indications of commercialism are subdued. The shopper is aware of more and richer colors than he is accustomed to being surrounded by on household errands. The varied interplay of these colors with lights is also a feature of modern shop decor. And the wares are often to be found on exhibition in settings much like those of elaborately mounted theatrical productions.

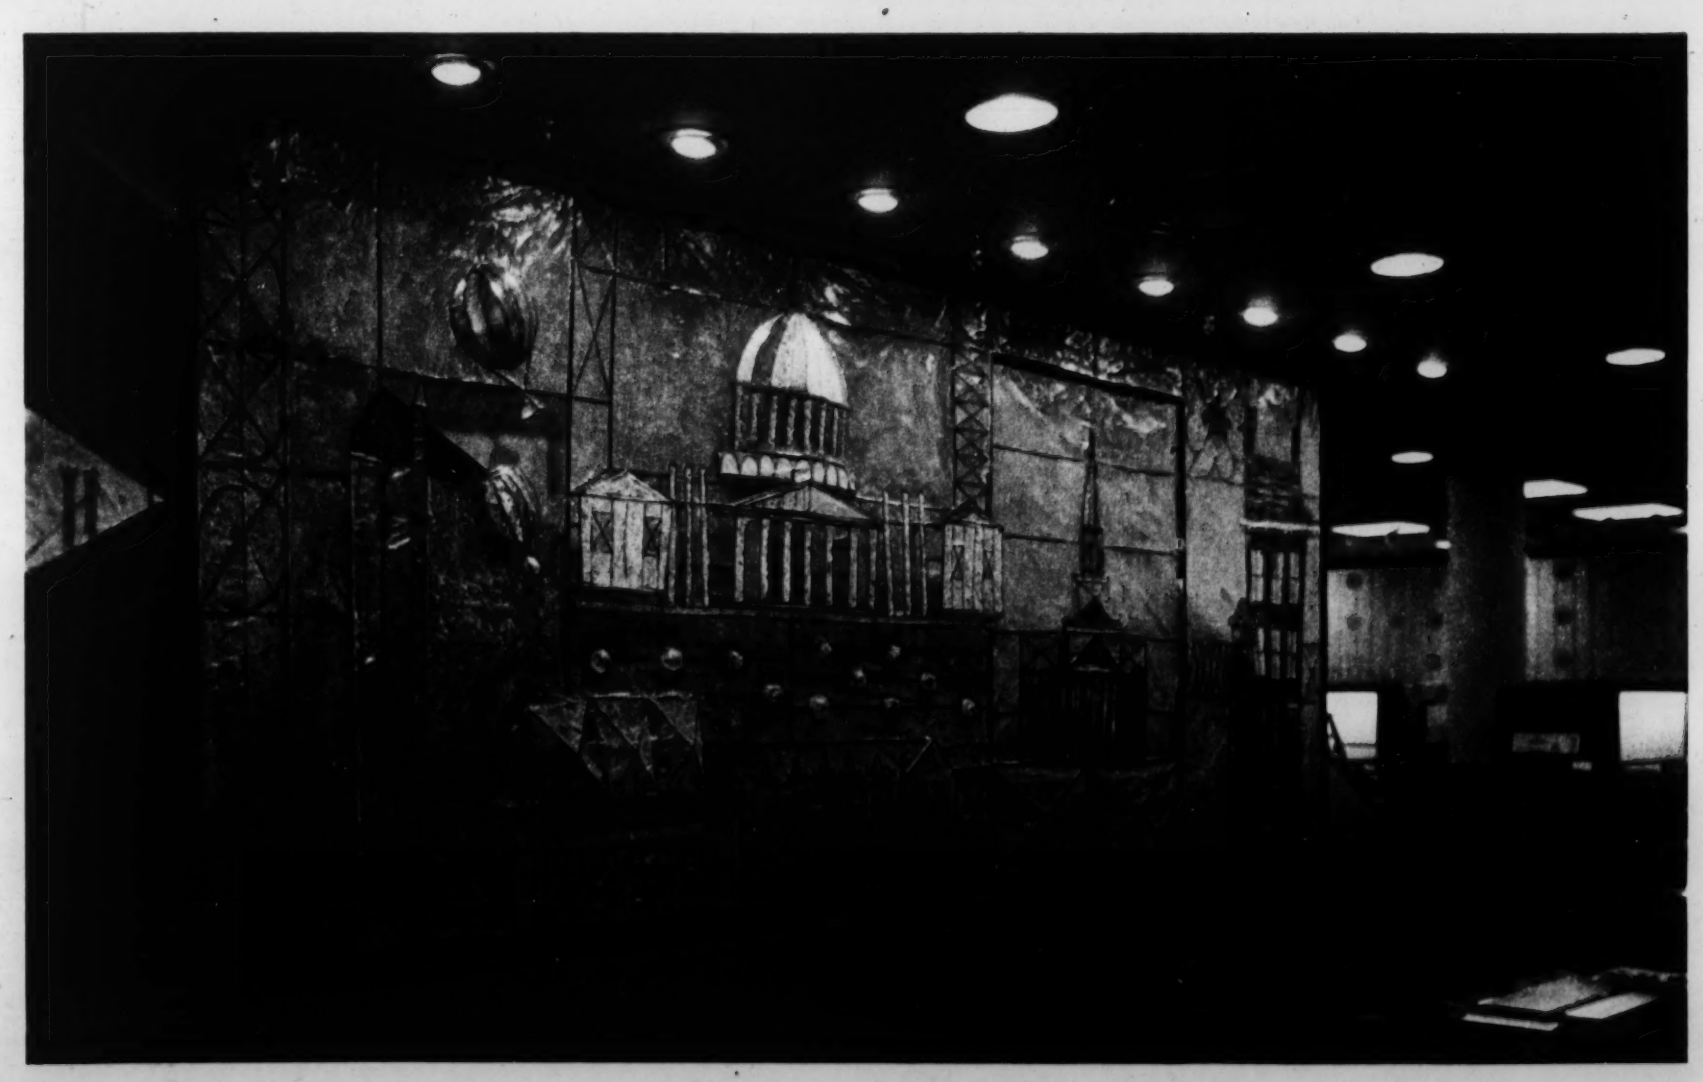
The recent mushrooming of suburban centers has given designers a chance to develop, from the ground up, plans for new kinds of shops and large stores. In the planning of the Stix, Baer and Fuller branch, which opened yesterday, St. Louis artists and others from around the country worked with architects in planning decorative features. These include three-dimensional murals, Italian mosaic glass, spectacular display accessories.

Westroads, at Clayton road and Brentwood boulevard in Richmond Heights, will also include seven other stores in two separate buildings. These stores are scheduled to open in late fall.

Photos by SAM CALDWELL of the PICTURES Staff



Part of a white elm tree that stood on building site was sandblasted and rooted in concrete as a centerpiece for this two-story gift court. At its base is a mosaic-lined pool. Heavy fiber glass draperies are moved by electric motors. Motors also lower the St. Louis-made, 10-foot brass chandeliers when bulbs need to be changed.



Early St. Louis is the theme of this three-dimensional mural of wire, glass and plastic placed against side of electric stairway on first floor. Mural pictures the Union Station, a pioneer balloon ascension, the Old Court House, the Old Cathedral and Campbell House. The store's six three-dimensional murals, each different in theme, were designed and executed by two California artists. Each mural was made in four parts, shipped to St. Louis by truck, assembled in store.

ELEVEN AMERICAN airmen set foot on the continental United States last week after nearly 32 months in Communist Chinese prisons. The Korean war veterans landed in two planes at Travis Air Force Base in California, were quickly dispersed throughout the country in Air Force planes for tearful yet joyous reunions with their families. In their home towns they were given heroes' welcomes.

Domestic trouble marred the homecoming for one of the 11 men, however. Airman Daniel C. Schmidt met his wife Una, who had remarried while he was a captive, saying she believed him dead. He saw for the first time his 2½-year-old son, Daniel Jr. Two days later, Schmidt announced through an attorney he thought it best to divorce his rewed wife.

The flyers had all been on a leaflet-dropping mission over North Korea when their B-29 was shot down by MIGs and ground fire on January 12, 1953. They bailed out, were taken captives, sentenced to prison as spies by the Communists. Their release became a prime objective of the United States in agreeing to talks at Geneva between ambassadors of this country and Red China. Just before the talks began Peiping announced the 11 airmen were being released.

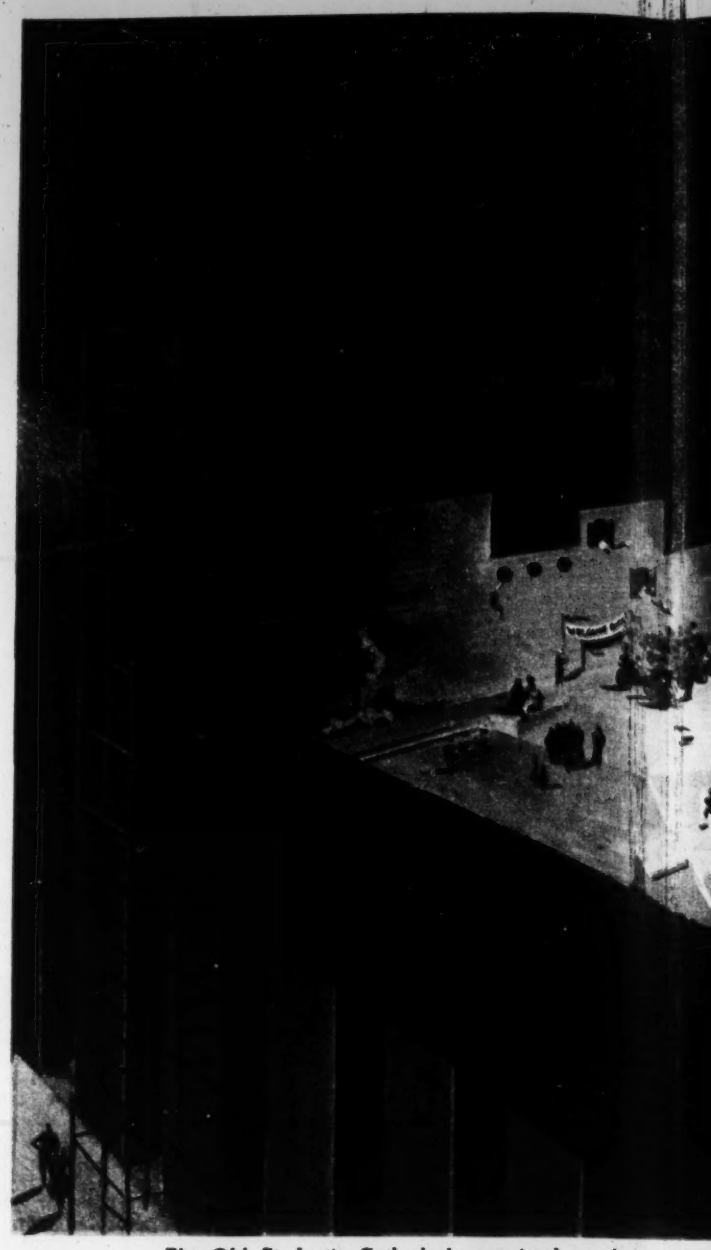
THE JUBILEE TAKES FORM

With Funds in Prospect, Designs Are Advanced for St. Louis Riverfront Expositions

A model farm representative of Midwest agricultural activities would be a major display. Artist's conception shows the farm complete with growing crops (left), a windmill, barns and other buildings for agricultural displays and demonstrations, tents for livestock exhibitions, and an open exhibition pen. On top of poles are decorative heads representing the various types of livestock to be shown.



The Old St. Louis Cathedral conceived as the backdrop for spectacles to be presented nightly during the period of the Jubilee. Grandstand to seat upwards of 4000 persons will face Cathedral and the free form stage. Presentations are to be educ clude and prese ethni

Illustration of one of the 30 or so ornamental, night-lighted pylons that will be on the Jubilee site. They will be intended to carry out the modern, forward-looking atmosphere of the fair, provide illumination. Balloons will be colorful decorations by day, glow by night.

educational, cultural and recreational, will include dramas depicting the city's development and aspirations, with as much emphasis on the present and future as on the past. Cultural and ethnic group presentations also are planned.

A beer garden-restaurant will be among the Jubilee concessions. Designed to call attention to the importance of St. Louis as a brewery center as well as provide refreshments, it is expected to have something of a 1904 "Meet Me in St. Louis" atmosphere. Other concessions would include stands for the sale of light food, soft drinks, souvenirs and novelties. There is no plan for a midway.

Under a great geodesic "Teen Time" dome ornamented with fabric or plastic inserts to symbolize the St. Louis fashion and garment industry, the Jubilee will emphasize the city's leading role as a junior fashion center. Displays will be held under dome, to be adjacent to other modern Jubilee structures.

THE MID-AMERICA JUBILEE planned to begin in St. Louis next year as an annual exposition is apparently assured. About $200,000 has been pledged toward the fund needed to underwrite the fair. A total of $400,000 is sought by City-Country Cavalcade, Incorporated, the nonprofit committee formed by the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce to organize the Jubilee. The amount already raised will more than offset probable losses for the first year, estimated at $167,000.

Described as a "miniature World's Fair," the Jubilee is to be held in the southern portion of the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial area. Each annual showing is to last a month, with the first showing in September, 1956. Plans call for industrial, agricultural and scientific exhibits housed in seven major pavilions of modern design, on about 30 acres of the Memorial area. A nightly dramatic or musical spectacle is to be presented in an amphitheater, with the portico of the Old Cathedral as a background. Permission to use the portico has been received from Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter.

Reproduced here are artists' conceptions of some of the highlights of the Jubilee as presently planned.

Purpose of the Jubilee is to dramatize the interdependence of rural and urban interests, to stimulate business in the St. Louis area, draw people here from the surrounding territory "so they will realize that St. Louis is their metropolis."

Theme emblem of the Jubilee, symbolizing a progressive St. Louis, will be a feature of the Jubilee grounds near the Mississippi River. It incorporates a portion of the proposed riverfront Saarinen arch towering over a replica of the St. Louis equestrian statue and various flags.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

In the Jordan Valley five miles north of the Dead Sea are the ruins of Jericho, whose capture from the Canaanites is described in the Old Testament Book of Joshua. Excavated ruins in foreground are believed to be from the first city of Jericho which Joshua took after the walls fell at the sound of his trumpets.

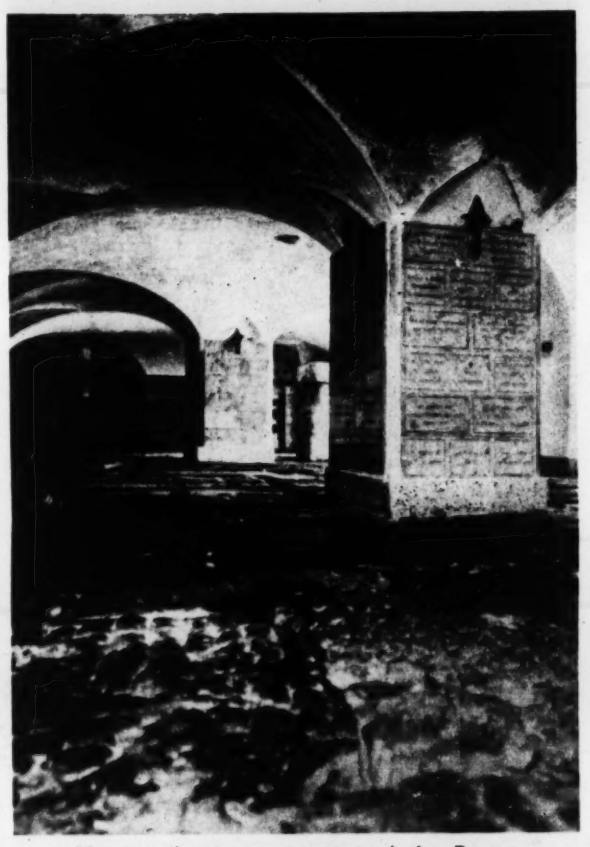
VIEWS OF AN ANCIENT LAND

Bible Society Records Palestine Impressions In Advance of Expected Industrial Changes

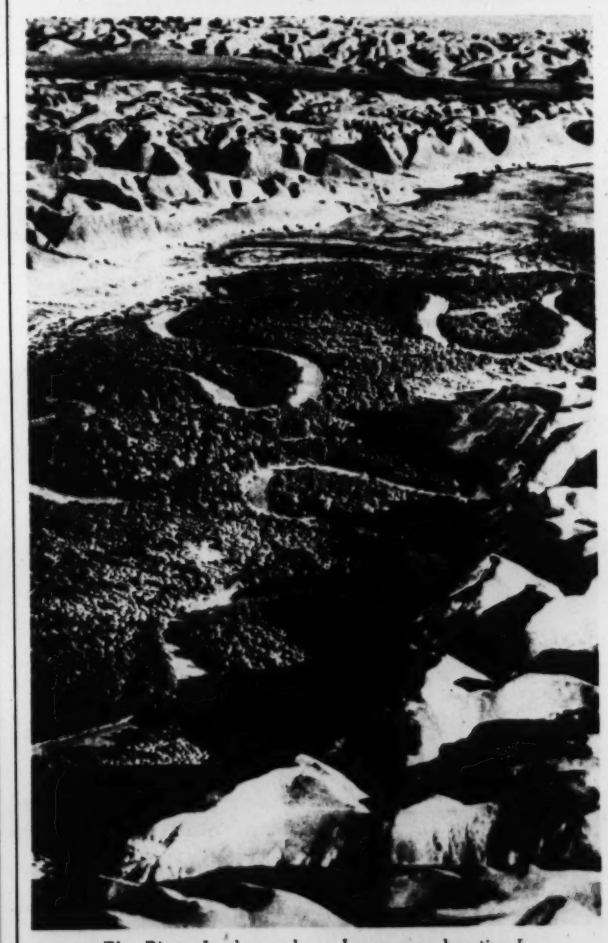
Using a long-handled wooden paddle, a woman tends her bread as it bakes in a stone outdoor oven. Method of bread baking in some of Palestine's villages is little changed since Biblical times.

IN MANY PARTS of the Holy Land, the centuries have made little change in scenes whose names are familiar to Bible students. However, industrial development may soon begin affecting the appearances of the land and of the cities. As ground is filled for industrial sites or excavated for irrigation projects, and as new buildings go up in the villages, the ancient aspect of the Holy Land will inevitably change.

To preserve an unaltered impression of Holy Land scenes, a photographic survey of Palestine has been made by the American Bible Society. From the project it selected 566 photographs and prepared nine maps for a book, "The Good News," using the New Testament as a text. Photographs on this page are from the book.



Massive flagstone pavement of the Roman praetorium or official residence where Jesus stood before Pontius Pilate is still to be seen. It is now the floor of a chamber beneath a convent in the old city sector of Jerusalem.



The River Jordan, where Jesus was baptized by John the Baptist, continues its age-old meandering through a green valley flanked by low foothills on its way to the Dead Sea.

French Pie Made With Eggs, Crackers

1. Jerry separates the eggs which later will be combined with the finely crushed crackers being rolled by Janet.

2. Egg yolks to which two tablespoons of stiffly whipped egg whites have been added are beaten until thick. Sugar is measured and then is well beaten into the yolks.

3. Nuts are put through a coarse chopper and are added, together with the vanilla, after the cracker crumbs have been well mixed in.

4. Remainder of the stiffly beaten egg whites is folded into the eggs and crackers, and mixture is then poured into a greased pie pan and baked.

By MERNA LAZIER

AMONG THE VARIOUS summer activities of 14-year-old Jerry Greenbaum and her sister Janet, 8, is considerable cooking. The girls are the daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Roy Greenbaum of University City. One of the dishes which, working as a team, they prepare for the family dinner is a French pie without crust. It is made of eggs, nuts, crackers and sugar, a combination of ingredients usually found in pantries.

Jerry, taking the lead, separates the eggs while Janet rolls the crackers until they are crushed quite fine. Two tablespoons of beaten egg whites are added to the egg yolks, which are then beaten until thick and lemon colored. Sugar is added and beaten in well. Cracker crumbs are added while mixture is being beaten, then flavoring and nuts—whatever kind the family prefers—are stirred in. Remaining egg whites are folded in carefully and mixture is poured into a nine-inch pie pan which has been well greased with butter. Pie is baked in a 350-degree oven for about 25 minutes or until well puffed and nicely browned. It is then allowed to cool in the oven with heat turned off. Oven door is opened a slight crack to permit heat to escape slowly, which keeps pie from shrinking excessively while cooling. When pie is thoroughly cooled it is topped with whipped cream, or a meringue if preferred. Grated or shredded chocolate, coconut, or bits of well-drained fruit may be used for garnishing. Chocolate pared with a sharp knife will make it curl. Pie serves six.

INGREDIENTS: Four eggs (separated), eight square soda crackers, one cup each of sugar and chopped nuts, one teaspoon vanilla, one-half pint whipping cream for topping, chocolate or coconut as desired.

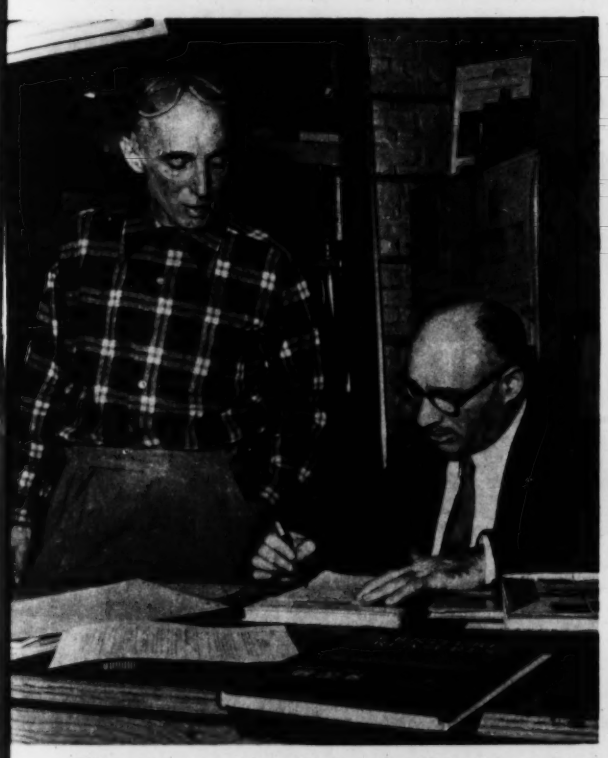
DO-IT-YOURSELF SHOP

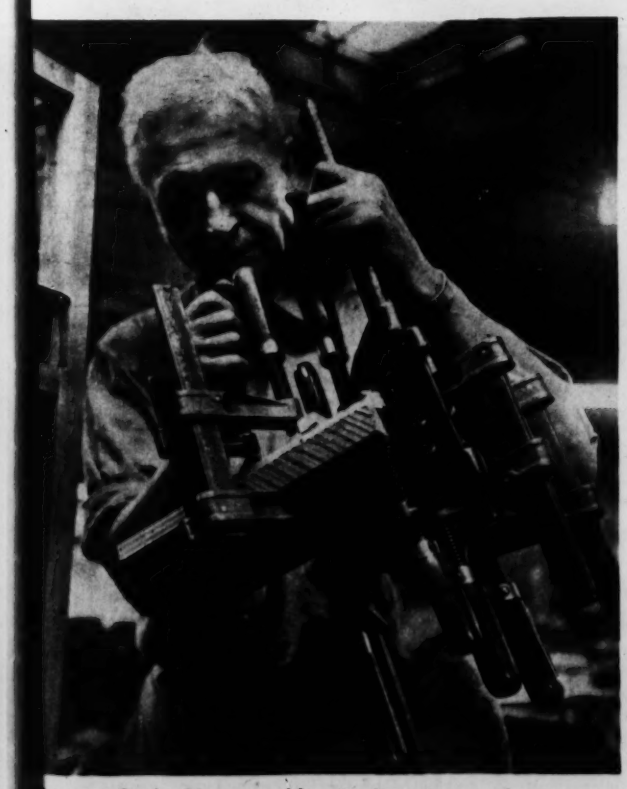
For an Hourly Fee, New York Business People Have The Use of Power Tools for Woodworking Projects

In New York's mid-Manhattan section, a shop equipped with power and hand tools caters to amateur woodworkers. Most of the patrons are business and professional men who like to work with their hands as recreation. They pay $1.50 an hour to use the shop's facilities and build whatever they like. Three European cabinetmakers are on hand to give advice when it is wanted.

Feeding a board into a power planer, Suzanne Szasz, a photographer and the shop's only woman patron, watches the chips fly. The shop provides opportunity to use expensive tools which many of the patrons could not afford or would not have room for at home.



The proprietor of the workshop, Sam Kuhn (standing), advises a patron on preliminary plans for a woodworking project. Kuhn, long a woodworking enthusiast, opened the shop for himself after retiring from a career as a management engineer. He expanded the facilities so others could share his hobby.



homas Cook, 71-year-old retired engineer, clamps a neer to an end panel of a high-fidelity cabinet. He ows up at the shop almost every day. There are also teen-agers among the shop's 40 regular visitors.

1. In a remote mountain area of China, Jim Carmody (Humphrey Bogart), an American ex-flyer who is chief lieutenant of warlord Yang (Lee J. Cobb), reports to his boss after raiding a caravan. Jim is disturbed because one of his men wantonly shot a priest who was on his way to a mission. Yang brushes off the incident, shakes dice with Carmody for his pay on a double-or-nothing bet. Jim loses.

BOGUS PRIEST, BENIGN MISSION

2. When the priest dies, Carmody dons his clothes, escapes the warlord, fighting his way through a storm to the mission that was the priest's destination. He is welcomed by Anne Scott (Gene Tierney, left), is about to confess his identity when something in the doctor's manner moves him to continue his disguise.

3. With Anne, the bogus priest visits the neighboring village. His knowledge of the Chinese people and his understanding of their needs endear him to the populace. •He blesses and in turn is blessed by the village patriarch in keeping with native custom. Anne, ashamed to find herself attracted to the magnetic Carmody, explains that she volunteered as a missionary nurse to look for her husband, a flyer, who crashed in China's interior.

4. Angered by Carmody's desertion, Yang learns his whereabouts, leads a raid on the village to capture his erstwhile lieutenant. The ex-pilot had served the warlord for three years after Yang rescued him following a plane crash.

5. To Yang's demand that Carmody return peacefully and resume his position, Jim makes a counterproposal. He offers to gamble with his former boss: Five more years as Yang's lieutenant against the safety of the village and mission. Yang can't resist the wager. They shoot dice, and Yang loses.

6. Church representatives who are sent to the village to put an end to Carmody's clerical masquerade permit him to leave without exposure when they discover how he saved the village from Yang. After he departs, Anne learns his true identity and, knowing her husband is dead, awaits Jim's return.

Vitaliano Lividini (right) of Detroit, Michigan, who is not yet an American citizen, votes in his native San Marino with the aid of an election official. The tiny country in the Apennine Hills of Italy follows the Italian political pattern, has three principal parties—Communists, Socialists and Christian Democrats, also some splinter groups. The Communist-Socialist coalition has been able to keep in power since 1945.

The woman, Mrs. Miriam Michelotti (in front), came to this country last month to ask countrymen living in the United States to return to their homeland to vote. The men, who paid their own fare, came from New York, Detroit and Sandusky, Ohio. Women cannot vote in San Marino.

BIG POLITICS IN LITTLE COUNTRY

Tiny San Marino, Tucked in Italian Mountains, Campaigns Fervently — The Leftists Win

THE REPUBLIC OF SAN MARINO is known chiefly for its postage stamps and its politics—for its stamps because it prints so many (for collectors, mostly) and for its politics because it is the only Communist-controlled country in Western Europe. While an election in San Marino—a country of 38 square miles and 13,500 population—would hardly upset the balance of world power, it might be significant in terms of prestige. Last weekend the tiny nation in the mountains of central Italy went to the polls.

Using the strategy employed by the Communists four years ago, the anti-Red, Christian Democrat party went outside the country for support. Nearly 100 San Marino citizens now living in the United States were prevailed on to fly back home to vote and help win over their countrymen to Western democracy. But the Communists, who in 1951 gave free trips home to leftist San Marinese in Italy and won the election by 127 votes, weren't to be outdone. This time they brought back sympathetic voters not only from Italy but from Belgium, France and Switzerland as well.

The result: San Marino is still the only Communist-controlled country in Western Europe.

Poster listing Social Democrat candidates is pasted on wall in San Marino's capital, which has same name as country. Despite its government, San Marino has neither collectivism, state controls nor proletarian dictatorship. It is simply a little land of peasants and small traders that depends largely on postage stamps and tourists for its subsistence.
